CBC Tapes Seized

TORONTO, Ont. (CP) — Two CBC radio tapes of interviews with Peter Worthington, editor-in-chief of The Sun, were seized Tuesday by the RCMP, the executive producer of As It Happens, a CBC radio program, said.

Bob Campbell said the tapes, each six minutes long, were interviews of Worthington by program host Barbara Frum concerning a March 7 article in the newspaper which mentioned a secret document on security.

Toronto Sun Publishing Ltd., Worthington and publisher J. D. Creighton were charged Friday under the Official Secrets Act for publishing information detrimental to national security. They are to appear in court April 7.

Two RCMP inspectors, Gordon Butt of the criminal investigation branch and Sonny Saunders of the security service in Ottawa, served the CBC with a search warrant Tuesday afternoon.

The warrant said the RCMP had reasonable grounds to suspect the tape recordings offered evidence with respect to the commission of offence against the Official Secrets Act.

Meanwhile, the RCMP has returned film seized from the CTV network of a news conference held by Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative MP for Leeds, a CTV spokesman said Tuesday.

He said the RCMP told the network that since Cossitt had not been charged, the film was not needed as evidence. The film, still sealed, was returned Monday.

WALLENDA DIES IN 120-FT. FALL

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — A gust of wind today swept 73-year-old Karl Wallenda from a tightrope wire strung between two hotels 120 feet above the ground and he fell to his death.

The elderly head of the "flying Wallenda" family was attempting to cross a wire strung between the Holiday Inn and the old Flamboyan Hotel, which was recently bought by the Holiday Inn and now is being rebuilt.

Witnesses among the 200 onlookers said Wallenda was killed instantly.

They said he had completed about two-thirds of the 200-foot stunt walk when heavy wind from the sea in the beach-front Condado forced him to drop his balancing bar and grab onto the wire at 11:15 a.m.

"He tried to hang onto the wire for a few seconds but then had to let go," said Mike Segarra, a witness. "The wind was too strong for him."

TOTAL LOAD SPILLED

Waves Smashing Oil From Tanker

BREST, France (UPI) — The last intact compartments of the supertanker Amoco Cadiz were broken open today by waves 30 feet high that banged the hulk against razor-sharp reefs and spewed the remaining 50,000 tons of crude oil onto what is already the worst oil slick on record.

A spokesman for Amoco International told reporters that only 50,000 tons out of the 220,000 tons the tanker was carrying were still contained by the vessel and that these were spilling rapidly.

Heavy seas and high winds left experts almost helpless against the black ooze. The initial 110,000-ton spill was rapidly spreading north and threatening the coast of Normandy and the Channel area.

Forecasters said winds of 25 mph would double in force and the spring tide would push the slick higher up the beaches to the top of Brittany's white dunes.

Salvage crews this morning estimated 150,000 tons of oil — about 43 million gallons, or 1½ times the previous record spill from the Torrey Canyon in 1967 — have gushed out of the tanker.

The 230,000-ton vessel, owned by Amoco International and chartered by Shell International, was transporting 220,000 tons of light Arab crude in 12 holds from the Persian Gulf to the Netherlands.

An Amoco spokesman said conditions on the wrecked tanker were "very gassy," confirming reports there was a risk of explosion.

The slick washed over 100 miles of coastline, bathing the pink granite cliffs and white sand beaches of Roscoff port.

Eight Dutch experts landed by helicopter on the tossing ship Tuesday to fix emplacements for 14 American pumps that arrived in Brest from Tulsa, Okla. for funneling the remaining oil into another ship.

But "for the moment there is simply nothing anybody can do in this weather," authorities said. Sources trying to fight the pollution said their equipment was so inadequate it was "ridiculous."

The slick covered 1,700 square miles.

Observers flying over the tanker's hulk Tuesday reported a new rupture spewing out black ooze. Observers with binoculars crowded blackened beaches to watch the gushing oil.

Delays Hit PWA

Members of the Canadian Air Lines Employees' Association working to rule are causing minor delays in Pacific Western Airlines service but a union spokesman warned today service will be disrupted even more by imminent rotating strikes.

The work-to-rule campaign and a ban on overtime were put into effect Tuesday night after negotiations broke off about 6 p.m. Tuesday.

If the parties are unable to get together during the next two days, rotating strikes could inconvenience thousands of people planning to travel during the Easter holiday.

However, threatened rotating strikes were cancelled when negotiations resumed in Calgary Tuesday.

A CALEA spokesman said today the employees' actions so far have resulted in delays of up to an hour for flights leaving Vancouver.

However, a spokesman for the PWA reservation desk in Vancouver said that although flights are late the delays are not major.

PWA's 6:40 a.m. Victoria-Vancouver flight was only three minutes late leaving and the return flight from Vancouver was only a minute late in arriving.

CALEA represents passenger reservation agents, baggage handlers and ramp personnel in about 40 PWA centres including B.C., Alberta, the Northwest Territories, Uranium City, Sask., and Seattle.

The employees' contract expired in August, 1977 and the main issue, aside from the pay matter, is job security.

However, negotiations on the subject of contracting out have been held up pending agreement on the distribution of this year's pay package which comes under the federal anti-inflation guidelines.

The union is seeking parity with employees of other airlines in the second year of a two-year contract. The union says PWA salaries are $150 a month lower than those at Air Canada and CP Air.

A PWA spokesman said Monday the company is not prepared to make any statement at this stage.

He said services will be maintained.

Oscar Rookie Rates

The Times and CJVI are offering a chance on a weekend for two in Hollywood plus 10 major secondary prizes for those who correctly predict the Oscar winners for best actress, best actor and best picture. Entry form is in the advertisement on page 20.

Keaton was nominated for Annie Hall, the almost-biographical account of her marriage to Woody Allen, who plays himself in the movie. The film has been nominated as best picture.

Many critics said Keaton was good enough in Looking for Mr. Goodbar to get a nomination if she had not been even better in Annie Hall.

In almost any other year she might have been a runaway winner but the competition is tough this time. Any one of her four rivals could win in what is expected to be a close vote. The full list of candidates is printed on the entry form.

Palestinian guerrillas today ignored a cease-fire proclaimed Tuesday by Israel and fired salvos of rockets toward Israeli lines from the Rashidiyeh refugee camp outside the encircled port of Tyre, one of the few positions left to them following the Israeli blitz through southern Lebanon.

"The word cease-fire does not exist in our dictionary," said Yasser Abed Rabbo, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization's information department.

A Palestinian guerrilla communique said, "Our forces clashed with Israeli troops in more than one location in south Lebanon throughout the night and early Wednesday."

The guerrillas also reported heavy Israeli artillery fire on the town of Nabatiyeh, a major Palestinian stronghold north of the Litani River. "We returned the enemy fire," the communique said.

An advance guard of Iranian UN peacekeeping troops, meanwhile, moved into Israeli-held southern Lebanon today despite a threat by Christian Lebanese militia to prevent them from entering the area.

"There were no problems," a UN spokesman said in Tel Aviv.

He said 18 soldiers in the 52-man group went through the frontier checkpoint at Metulla, Israel's northernmost town at the tip of the Galilee panhandle. He said

TOKYO (AP) — A severe quake occurred today in the Pacific Ocean about 297 kilometres off the eastern coast of Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido, the Japanese central meteorological agency said. No damage or casualties were reported.

HYDRO SETS 'REVIEW'

B.C. Hydro has agreed to meet next Tuesday with a representative of three unions that have served strike notice on the Crown corporation.

Hydro general manager J. Norman Olsen said Tuesday that the meeting will be a review of the issues in the dispute and not a negotiating session.

The meeting was called at the request of Fred Trotter, president of Local 378 of the Office and Technical Employees Union. Trotter also will represent the Amalgamated Transit Union and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at the meeting.

Trotter was appointed to represent the three Hydro unions at a meeting Monday.

Hydro services have been running smoothly since Monday, when 3,500 ATU bus drivers and mechanics returned to work here and in Vancouver after a week-long strike.

All three unions have agreed that none will sign with Hydro until all contracts have been settled.

Wages are not an issue in the dispute, in which Hydro is demanding greater control of scheduling and rejecting union calls for a shorter work week. (A detailed report on the key issue, the drivers' spare board, appears today on Page 8.)

High Jobless Forecast

OTTAWA (UPI) — Unemployment will remain high through 1978 because growth in the Canadian economy this year will fall short of its potential, the Conference Board in Canada has forecast.

The board also said in its quarterly report Tuesday Canada's economic growth may be a moderate 4.5 per cent while inflation will top 7.5 per cent.

"Although the expected performance ... shows an improvement over the record of the past several quarters, economic growth will still fall short of its potential," said board chief economist Lawrence Murphy.

"Consequently, the unemployment rate is forecast to remain above the 8 per cent level throughout 1978."

The Conference Board said consumer prices are expected to rise by 7.5 per cent. "However, between the end of 1977 and the end of 1978 the rate of increase should be closer to 6 per cent."

The independent research and analysis organization forecast a 4.5 per cent increase in real Gross National Product in 1978, following a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.2 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1977.

In its first forecast for 1978, the Board said it appears there will be a "significant improvement" in the nation's trade balance in 1978 and that will provide the basic economic stimulus.

Report Charges Gov't Snubbing Bilingualism

OTTAWA (CP) — Senior government officials are jeopardizing Canada's survival by ignoring the importance of language reforms recommended by Parliament, says official languages commissioner Max Yalden, in his annual report.

All other factors are given a higher priority than language considerations when decisions are made about new policies and programs, Yalden said Tuesday in a highly critical report of the government and its institutions.

"Only then are language problems brought to the fore, as if they were an afterthought, something dreamed up at the House on the Hill, laudable no doubt as an ideal but not to be taken seriously in administrative circles."

This attitude is endangering national unity, Yalden said.

"Language reform, quite simply, was and remains necessary if Canada is to survive."

Yalden's report lamented that many French-Canadian public servants are still unable to work in their mother tongue and that French-language services to the public, especially in the national capital area, are insufficient.

Even in Parliament, bilingual services are lacking, he said.

"It is painful to have to report that the very institu-

Campbell River Boy Found Under Log

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — A seven-year-old Campbell River boy was found in good condition Tuesday, 51 hours after he went missing in bush country wearing only jeans, a shirt and running shoes.

The youngster was found fast asleep under a log only a couple of hundred yards from where a cougar had left the chewed haunch of a freshly killed deer.

Jason Bishop wasn't too worried about cougars, though. His first concern was for the black baseball cap he had borrowed from his buddy, Joey McLeod, and for his own watch, which had gone astray since the pair of them got lost while cutting sticks for a wiener roast Sunday afternoon. When they realized they were lost Joey sat tight, but Jason walked.

Joey was found five hours after the pair were missed.

Jason was found about 3 p.m. Tuesday by Dale Danell, an engineer at MacMillan Bloedel's Menzies Bay operation who along with five others had determined that one more creek bed had to be searched.

They were among more than 400 searchers, many of whom took the day off work, who turned out Tuesday to pursue the search for the boy in a shoulder-to-shoulder sweep of the heavy bushland.

"There were loggers, drivers, hookers and slingers, all with one goal," Danell said. "Find that youngster."

"He was curled up in a ball in the dry leaves with his shirt pulled right over his head.

"I really didn't know what to think when I saw him; you know, with cougar activity, and with him being missing two days and such a young kid ...

"Anyway, I called his name. He wouldn't pull his shirt down at first, so I helped him.

"He cried a little bit, but not for long. He started talking about the baseball cap and the watch.

"I gave him some sandwiches and cookies. He wolfed them down and then we carried him out to the road where a police helicopter picked him up and took him to hospital," Danell said.

The check at the hospital didn't take long. Said Dr. John Depew: "He was a bit cold; he had wet feet but mostly he was dry. He was in good shape and I was very pleased. I sent him home."

That's where Jason was Tuesday night, sleeping off the two days of tramping through heavy brush and wondering what he's going to tell Joey today about the baseball cap.

CHURCH BELLS HERALD HOSTAGE DRAMA END

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Church bells rang throughout this Laurentian community today as Canada's longest-ever prison hostage-taking ended without bloodshed.

Three convicts, who had been holding six hostages in the basement of the provincial prison here for the last two weeks, gave themselves up to police just before 10 a.m. Their hostages were released unharmed.

The convicts — Edgar Roussel, Roland Simard and Lucien Jacques — were wearing blue turtlenecks and appeared to be relaxed.

The six hostages — five prison guards and an assistant prison director — came out of the building soon after the convicts gave up and were quickly taken away by police.

The convicts had held face-to-face talks with mediator-lawyer Robert La Haye who has been acting as go-between at the prisoners' request since the incident began.

Two of the hostage-takers, Roussel and Simard, are convicted murderers while Jacques was serving a term for armed robbery.

Roussel had already escaped twice from prison and had been involved in two other hostage-takings, the last in January at Dorchester, N.B.

The hostage-takers had originally demanded safe passage to a country with no extradition treaty with Canada, in addition to $100,000 and the transfer of several French-speaking prisoners outside of the province to institutions in Quebec.

The hostage-taking began March 8 after an aborted escape attempt by the three prisoners.

Parks Block 'Out of Tune'

Chief forester Ted Young's statement Tuesday that no more forest land should be set aside for parks in B.C. met stiff criticism today from a ministry of recreation and conservation official.

Associate Deputy Recreation and Conservation Minister Bob Ahrens, responsible for parks, said in an interview he disagrees unconditionally with Young and can't understand why he would suggest such a thing.

"To unilaterally say that there should be no more parks, I personally don't think is defensible," said Ahrens.

Sierra Club spokesman Bob Nixon said Tuesday that "I can't believe Young is so out-of-tune with current thinking in forest management."

Young said in a speech in Montreal that B.C. no longer can afford to set aside huge tracts of land for single-use preservation.

"I am referring to parks, wilderness ares, etc.," Young said. "Not only can we no longer afford to do so, but such luxury is absolutely unnecessary.

"We have not only 10 million acres in parks already but a further 27 million acres in alpine forest and scrub timber.

"There is sufficient untouched wild land that all animal species should be secure if wise game regualtions and mangement is practised."

"I clearly wouldn't agree with his remarks; I don't know what he's basing them on," Ahrens said.

"I don't think that we can determine the full need for parkland forever more at this time," he said. "B.C. has a good parks system but we can't exactly say what the need for new parks will be in the future."

He said that it is up to the government to make decisions on creation of new parks, and neither Young nor he are in any position to decide.

"I will certainly want to talk to him (Young) once I've seen the comments," Ahrens said.

Nixon said Young appeared to be averting public attention from the problems in the forest industry.

"The parkland issue is a red herring," he said in an interview. "The only parks now that are inviolate are Class A parks."

Forestry Minister— Tom Waterland today said that B.C. is reaching the point that it must have multi-use of all its land. There can be compatability between land use for forestry and recreation if the two ministries co-operate, he added.

Six-Hour Blackout

MONTREAL (CP) — Full electrical power was restored by 7 a.m. local time today following a blackout that affected up to 500,000 residents in Montreal, Quebec City and the Laurentians for more than six hours, a Hydro Quebec official said.

Northwest sections of Montreal were the last areas to be restored, spokesman Andre Saindon said.

The problem began shortly after midnight with two transformer failures at Duvernay substation in nearby Laval.

Court Allows Ozard Job Ads

A B.C. Supreme Court judge today refused to stop the provincial government from advertising and filling a senior position in the travel ministry.

Bill Ozard, fired Feb. 16 after less than two hours on the job, has taken court action to get his job back.

In the meantime, his lawyer, Scott Marshall, told Mr. Justice A.A. Mackoff that Ozard wanted a court declaration that the position not be advertised and filled.

But Mackoff said the request for a declaration was for an injunction and court rules don't allow for an injunction against the government.

However, he urged that the "unusual case" be set down for trial of the issues at the "earliest date possible."

Mexican Ship Coming Here

A Mexican naval vessel will join ships from six other countries as part of the Captain Cook Bicentennial celebrations this summer.

The Coahuila will be among 21 vessels which will assemble off Royal Roads Aug. 1 after they escort the Tall Ships to Vancouver.

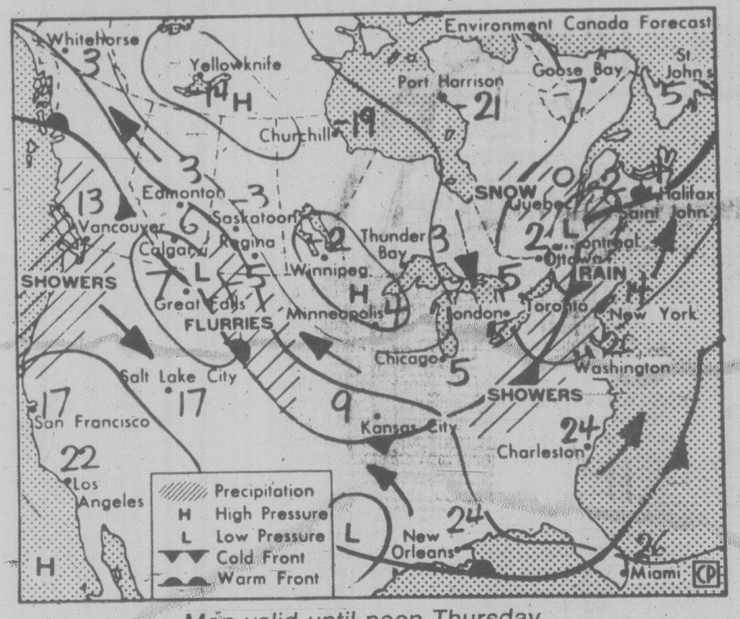

Map valid until noon Thursday.

A weak weather disturbance continues to hover over California while out near the weather ship another system is slowly brewing. Patches of high cloud from these disturbances will drift across the province today. However skies will be predominately sunny. Temperatures Tuesday climbed into the mid to high teens at several communities. Hope reported the Canada high of 20 degrees. A repeat performance is anticipated today. Cloud will gradually infiltrate the north coast later today as the disturbance from the weather ship eases slowly towards the coast. The system will bring increasing cloud to the south coast overnight with showers likely on Thursday.

MAX SPENT LAST $1,224 BUYING OTTAWA A GIFT

OTTAWA (CP) — Would you spend your last $1,224.67 buying a sundial for the federal government?

Why $1,224.67?

"That was all I had in the bank at the time," said Max, who knows no one in Ottawa and arrived by bus to see his unusual gift.

The government offered to fly the unemployed man down to see the gift set up in a park near city hall, but he said in an interview:

"It's good to see after waiting this long. The federal government wanted to fly me down when it was erected but I said no.

"Why spend taxpayers' money on flying me to Ottawa when I could pay to come myself."

Max, 53, got the idea from a similar situation in Toronto.

"I remember once passing a sundial and noticed it had been donated by a former city mayor." he said.

Max said he wanted to see the capital brightened up a bit.

Oak Bay Turnout 58.77%

Social Credit candidate Frank Carson drew 5,109; NDPer Bennett Camp polled 3,498, Liberal Graham Ross-Smith 2,350, and Socialist Party of Canada candidate Larry Tickner 54.

Of the 30,483 eligible voters, 17,915 cast ballots for a 58.77 per cent turnout, compared to 78.94 per cent in the 1975 general election.

The Tories polled 38.53 per cent of the popular ballot compared to 52 per cent in the 1975 vote; the Socreds 28.51 per cent compared to 37 per cent in 1975; the NDP 19.52 per cent compared to only nine per cent before, and the Liberals 13.11 per cent compared to one per cent.

GREENPEACERS HEADING HOME

ST. ANTHONY, Nfld. (CP) — Leaders of the Greenpeace Foundation contingent at the 1978 east coast seal hunt left here overnight for home.

They made no comments to reporters after deciding to depart from the hunt headquarters at St. Anthony.

Earlier Tuesday, Moore had said the group wanted a reply by wire from Prime Minister Trudeau's office to a Greenpeace suggestion the prime minister visit the hunt aboard one of the foundation's aircraft.

A spokesman in the prime minister's office said Tuesday no reply had been wired yet but he added it would be a negative one.

Que. Eyes Trade Tie With U.S.

QUEBEC (CP) — An independent Quebec would seek association with the United States if the rest of Canada refused to form an economic association, an Ontario legislator quotes a Quebec cabinet minister as saying.

Evelyn Gigantes, NDP member for Carleton East, said Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry made the statement Tuesday in one of a series of "very direct and very frank" discussions with five visiting NDP members.

She said Landry was asked what would happen if the people of Quebec supported separation, but the rest of Canada refused economic association.

"If Canada says no, the very next day we'll seek association with the United States," she quoted Landry as replying.

Ms. Gigantes said she came away from the meetings, which included a discussion with Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin, with the impression that the PQ administration is of "extraordinarily high calibre."

The government knows exactly what it wants and is convinced that it will get public approval for its actions, she said. On the other hand, the opposition party leaders "seemed to me to be pretty bankrupt."

Even if a first referendum on independence is defeated, she said, "the rest of Canada has to understand that this is not going to go away . . . We're not going to be able to escape from this one.

"I came out of the meeting thinking that it's going to take every ounce of energy to see us through in any kind of decent shape."

Other members of the group of NDP visiting members, which also had talks with union and business leaders during a two-day visit to Quebec, were Ian Deans (Wentworth), Donald MacDonald (York South), James Renwick (Riverdale) and George Sanis (Cornwall).

Alberta $4B In Black

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's total accumulated operating surplus to the end of 1977 combined with the Heritage Savings Trust Fund equal almost one-half the federal deficit of $8.8 billion revealed last month by federal Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

Two interim reports released Tuesday show that the $4-billion total is also about $200 million more than the provincial government needs in order to pay its bills for the 1978-79 fiscal year.

Figures released in the third-quarter investment report of the Heritage Fund and the operating statement for the government's first nine months of expenditures in 1977-78 do not include all the government's anticipated wealth.

An increase of $697.2 million during the three-month period ending last Dec. 31 is shown in the Heritage Fund report from Provincial Treasurer Merv Leitch. This brings the fund to within $500,000 of $3 billion. Oil and Natural Gas royalties for the current quarter have not been added to the fund.

The nine-month operating statement from provincial auditor Douglas Rogers shows a surplus to the end of 1977 of almost $151.7 million. Added to past years of excess funds there were almost $945.8 million in the surplus account.

The 1977-78 third-quarter surplus compares to a $164-million deficit at the same time a year ago.

When we designed the new Chevette, we made a great little car even better. Because this year's Chevette Hatchback Coupe has 18 additional standard features. Some were formerly extra-cost options. All are now included as standard equipment.

Outside, Chevette looks snappier than ever with whitewall tires, bumper rub strips, body side mouldings, deluxe grille, wheel trim rings, chrome headlight bezels and bright hood edgemoulding. All standard.

Tucked under the hood is an efficient 1.6 Litre overhead-cam L-4 engine with 4-speed manual transmission. Standard. And here's the best part: even though you get more, you pay less. Based on manufacturer's suggested retail prices, the price of a Chevette Hatchback Coupe is $199.60 less than last year's model with the same equipment.

Visit your Chevrolet dealer today and discover the better-than-ever Chevette. It's a lot more car for a lot less money.

A Draconian Law

The Official Secrets Act under which Toronto Sun editor Peter Worthington and the company which publishes it were charged is a catch-all relic from the days of the Second World War, clearly designed to catch spies and preserve military secrets from falling into the enemy's hands.

Even considering the exigencies of wartime, however, its terms are so broad and all-encompassing as to make it an exceedingly harsh and draconian statute. How much more are the injustices of such a totalitarian law multiplied in peacetime, when no foreign power is at war with Canada, when this nation is threatened by no one?

Any Canadian who does anything, inside the country or out, that "is calculated to be or might be or is intended to be directly or indirectly useful to a foreign power" is guilty of an offence under the Official Secrets Act if it is "for any purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state."

There is no definition in the act of what may be prejudicial, or what constitutes an official secret. Interpretation by the courts indicates that any document marked restricted, confidential, secret or top secret can be considered an official secret.

Government officials and police have not been sparing in their use of such rubber stamps. The Globe and Mail notes that the RCMP stamped Top Secret on a copy of a federal order-in-council from the cabinet which established the royal commission into charges of RCMP irregularities. The order had already been made public by former solicitor-general Francis Fox.

On another occasion a security unit of the force in Montreal sent to headquarters in Ottawa a transcript of a public debate in the Quebec legislature — marked, again, Top Secret.

But what got the Sun into trouble was not publishing such innocuous documents, and the federal authorities have not been promiscuous in their use of the Official Secrets Act to stifle free speech and publication — in more than 30 years, there have been only three prosecutions — but the law (in the words of freedom of information specialist Prof. Arthur Siegel) "stands in the background as an untested sword. It stiffens the spines of people with access to secrets and it softens the vertebrae of journalists."

The law is also contrary to the basic foundation of our system of justice, that one is presumed innocent until proven otherwise, that an accused person need say nothing at all in court — it is up to the Crown to prove beyond all reasonable doubt that he is guilty as charged.

Section 3 (2) states that "it is not necessary to show that the accused person was guilty of any particular act tending to show a purpose prejudicial to the state . . ." Even if the Crown does not prove such an act occurred "he may be convicted if, from the circumstances of the case, or his conduct, or his known character as proved, it appears that his purpose was . . . prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state . . . ."

Merely the fact that a person has communicated with or tried to communicate with an agent of a foreign power, in Canada or out of the country, is considered sufficient evidence in this regard. The Globe notes that one person found guilty in the Gouzenko spy case, a civil servant with access to classified material, was convicted solely on the basis that he was a brother-in-law of a Soviet spy and knew MP Fred Rose (who was also convicted of spying for Russia). He was acquitted on appeal, arguing that he couldn't help associating with his wife's relatives and he knew Rose only socially.

The 1969 royal commission on security remarked that these were "extraordinarily onerous" provisions. Nine years later, with the law dragged out to avenge embarrassment in the RCMP and high Liberal circles, they remain so. The Official Secrets Act is a bad law, and prosecution of the Sun and editor Worthington in such a politically-charged atmosphere is not going to enhance respect for the law or the government which has laid the charges.

What Election?

Election soon? Signs proliferate:

☐ The National Harbors Board has announced a $100 million harbor beatification project for Vancouver. A nice round number, easily mouthed in a campaign speech.

☐ Messages are going out with family allowance cheques telling mothers that it was tough to decide to spend $49 billion but the Liberals did so "to keep Canada growing."

Now, all we need is another announcement of that thrice-promised waterfront park for Toronto.

BARBARA McLINTOCK

Don't Look for Miracles

There were some very good reasons for Oak Bay voters to elect new Conservative leader Vic Stephens as their MLA in Monday's byelection. In doing so, they did much to ensure the survival of a moderate, third-party option in B.C. politics, an essential piece of the political puzzle if complete polarization between the extremes of left and right is to be prevented.

Just how the third-party option is going to work out remains to be seen. Stephens' election leaves him and Liberal leader Gordon Gibson still as two one-man caucuses, struggling over the same piece of turf — a piece of turf that is scarcely big enough these days to hold one party, let alone two.

Sole Focus

The chances are probably slightly better than 50-50, however, that Gibson will change arenas when the writ comes down for the next federal election (next month? the month after that?) in the hope that (a) he can get elected somewhere in B.C. as a federal Liberal, a task that will be only slightly easier than getting elected as a member of the Recognized Party of Man-Eating Sharks; and (b) if he does get elected, he can make more progress with his proposals for reforming our whole political system at the federal level than he has been able to provincially.

Gibson's departure would be a blow to the B.C. legislature; since his arrival he has been one of the few sane voices in a place known bitterly to observers as "the zoo," "the lunatic asylum," and "the stone castle." However, his leaving would be a blessing to Stephens; the Tories would then be the sole focus in B.C. for all those who are discouraged with both the bottom-line mentality of the Socreds and the perceived inefficiency of the NDP.

If Gibson does not decide to leave — and his decision is far from a sure thing — he and Stephens will doubtless maintain an uneasy truce, each hoping to prove to the electorate that his party is the best alternative to the government or the official opposition. The momentum Stephens has generated through his Oak Bay win will doubtless give him an immediate edge in that contest; however, Gibson's political experience is so much greater that that could easily be turned around within days of the opening of the legislature.

Oak Bay appears to have shown that the voters are not yet ready to make a choice between the two "minor" parties but prefer to keep both options open. They could, after all, have guaranteed the demise of the Tories by electing anyone other than Stephens; it has long been proved in B.C. that a party without a seat in the House is a virtual nonentity.

Despite all this logic behind the election of Stephens, however, there are discouraging indications that that the Oak Bay electorate chose the Tory leader not for these good reasons but out of a myth that grew from a mood of frustration and near-despair.

Stephens himself came close to articulating the myth when he said that people were voting against the government because the Socreds had promised to "get B.C. moving again" and had not done so. That was probably a correct analysis.

But the myth inherent in that idea is that a different government would (or at least could) get B.C. moving again. The conclusion is that since the Socreds have not done so, nor the NDP before them, we will look to yet a third party (in this case the Tories) to provide a solution to our province's many problems.

It is a safe way of thinking, a safe way of not having to face what may be unfaceable — the fact that perhaps nobody, and in particular, no government, is going to be able to "get B.C. moving again," to solve the economic difficulties of inflation, unemployment and the sagging dollar, or, for that matter, many of the social problems that also plague our province.

A different government might have handled B.C.'s economic problems a bit differently — might have allowed the government to develop an operating deficit rather than hiking taxes and charges, for instance. That might have kept more money circulating in the private sector and hence eased some problems. But at the same time a growing provincial debt and increasing government spending would have been fuelling the fires of inflation and creating a different set of problems.

No Solutions

The realization that every B.C. resident may eventually have to reach is that the boom times of the late 1960s and early 1970s are gone, and a government composed of the wisest men in the kingdom would not be able to bring them back. The changes that are needed are changes in our expectations and our attitudes, not changes of administration every time a government has not done the impossible in four years.

The maintenance of all possible options in B.C. politics through the election of Stephens is probably a good thing, but no one should be deluded into thinking that this renewed option is going to provide any miracle cures for the deep-seated illnesses of our province.

RICHARD GWYN

Press and 'Official' Secrets

OTTAWA — Probably the most serious breach of an official secrets act to take place in any country since World War Two happened in 1971 when The New York Times published the Pentagon Papers. These documents, leaked by Daniel Ellsberg, revealed for the first time the top secret bombing raids from U.S. bases in Thailand, and as well as the gross inaccuracies in the Vietnam "body count."

At the time, the U.S. was engaged in a brutal, bloody and ruinously expensive war. The incident severely damaged both U.S. national security, and its ability to continue to prosecute the war.

The New York Times was never prosecuted. An attempt by the government to secure an injunction to prevent publication of the Pentagon Papers was dismissed by the courts. The courts later dismissed a personal breach of security suit launched against Ellsberg.

To this story, so descriptive of the open, argumentative, untidy but enormously vital U.S. political system, there is one significant footnote. In 1974, just three years later, the same Republican administration which had been harmed by publication of the Pentagon Papers (mind you, by this time Gerald Ford had succeeded Richard Nixon as President) enacted the most radical Freedom of Information Act in effect in any democracy excepting, arguably, Sweden.

National Security?

Now take a look at the beam in our own eye. Last March 7, the Toronto Sun published an article which summarized several "anecdotes," or unsubstantiated intelligence gossip, contained in a Top Secret RCMP report on Soviet espionage activities.

The government, neither then nor in Justice Minister Ron Basford's statement of last Friday, has made no claim that The Sun story actually harmed national security. Indeed, the "anecdotes" described in the article, like the one that fretted about a Canadian company that had bought Soviet YAK-40 airplanes, seem to be so insubstantial, if not downright foolish, that national security is more likely to have been embarrassed than to have been endangered by their publication.

Yet the Toronto Sun is to be prosecuted. The newspaper's publisher and its editor face up to 14 years imprisonment for a breach of the Official Secrets Act, "prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state."

Some commentators seemed surprised by Basford's decision. In fact, because it was in character, it was predictable. In 1973, Basford was minister of urban affairs when a senior official, Walter Rudnicki, was fired for showing to Indian and Metis leaders a draft cabinet document recommending a housing program about which they had been promised "full consultation."

About Basford's action, therefore, there is little to be said. No more, indeed, that the same government which for three years has resisted enacting a freedom of information act was bound to be outraged by the breach in its secrecy regardless of whether, at the same time, national security may or may not have been breached.

It's the reaction to Basford's action that matters. Or, rather, the lack of reaction. One newspaper praised Basford for being "so scrupulous."

One columnist pronounced that the government "cannot ignore the leak" and applauded Basford's statement as "intelligent, carefully reasoned, nonpartisan."

Actually, Basford's statement struck me as pretentious (he legitimized his decision by referring to "my personal conversations with the attorney-general of England and Wales"), sloppily reasoned (he produced no evidence The Sun had harmed national security as opposed to merely breaching the Official Secrets Act, a technical offence committed every day in Ottawa, often with cabinet ministers as the source of the leak), and highly partisan (The Sun unlike Conservative MP Tom Cossitt, whom Basford let off, cannot clothe itself in the gaudy garb of a political martyr).

Reviews of Basford's prose are neither here nor there. It's the political climate that counts — the climate, that is, of clubby distaste for raucous public debate (The Sun, let's face it, is a rag), of indifference to the first prosecution since Confederation of a newspaper under the Official Secrets Act, of supine acceptance that the government must know what it is doing.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not flying the frayed flag of freedom of the press. A few shots have been fired at us. In Quebec, a government report proposes to regulate newspapers as "services in the public interest." In Ottawa, national unity funds are being rammed down the throat of the CBC. Yet the media in Canada are in no real trouble. Rather, we exercise considerable power with very little direct responsibility, and with even less accountability.

We Play Games

In the end, the responsibility of the press is to tell it like it is, as the press thinks it is, and to accept the consequences in terms of public and official criticism. Instead, as the lack of press reaction to the Toronto Sun affair demonstrates, we often play let's-pretend-to-be-critics games with the government.

"The Canadian political system," says York University political scientist Arthur Siegel, who has studied relations between the press and the government, "is based on absolute secrecy, tempered by institutionalized leaks." In exchange, we reporters, far too often, live by leaks instead of by criticism.

Could the Pentagon Papers have been published in Canada?, I asked Siegel. "Never," he answered. "Not because of what the government might have done but because newspaper editors and reporters could never have brought themselves to do it." The enemy to be met, therefore, isn't Basford. It is us.

Tanker Alarm

As chairman of Esquimalt's provincial emergency program committee I am disappointed by the U.S. Supreme Court's decision to allow supertankers to ply the strait of Juan de Fuca. However, further protests by Canadian environmental groups will fall on deaf ears; instead I would ask them to demand of our own government that we be suitably prepared for any tanker mishap.

The equipment available on the west coast seems more suited to dealing with a leaking ship's valve in harbor than taking care of a major tanker disaster on a raging sea.

I can't agree with the belief of David Anderson that larger tankers are no more hazardous than smaller ones. First of all, these larger ships take a far greater distance to stop and for the sake of cheapness, are built with a single screw which makes vessels of this size infinitely more difficult to manoeuvre. On top of this their extreme dimensions compound their structural problems and considerably increase their vulnerability to "break up" when grounded.

I plan to seek from the federal and provincial governments commitments for funds to ensure we have equipment and trained personnel on hand to afford maximum protection for our beaches and sports fishing areas. — Ald. Colin Blair, Esquimalt.

No Solution

I would like to take issue with your editorial Mortgaging Political Capital (March 11) in which you apparently take Norman Levi to book for making political hay of the tragedy which is facing so many homeowners today.

Surely the official opposition should criticize the economic policies of the government which have resulted in this sad state of affairs. The Socreds have taken every opportunity to criticize the economic policies of the NDP when it was in power and surely one would not expect Henry Block, who operates the biggest real estate business in B.C. to agree with the views of Norman Levi and the NDP.

Anyone who knows Norman Levi would know that he is a most compassionate man and following the pattern of the past he will always side with those who are caught in the economic mismanagement of the present government. To say "it should be cause for concern not political point-scoring or glossing over the true dimensions of the problem" is not in reality a solution to the problem which faces the victims of the financial policies of the provincial government. — M.P.B. Wrixon, 301—1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

Industrial Park

Tonight at 7:30 p.m. at a public hearing in the Garth Homer Achievement Centre, 813 Darwin Avenue, Saanich council will be making the single most important decision affecting Greater Victoria in recent years.

Council will be asked to approve the Royal Oak light industrial park, which will produce $30 to $40 million worth of construction jobs and over 1,600 jobs on a permanent basis. The impact is easy to imagine for the nearly 10,000 unemployed in Greater Victoria.

It will result additionally in excess of $900,000 in property taxes annually, enabling the municipality to levy a lighter property tax load on residents.

The decision would appear to be clear. Yet I recently heard the economic development commissioner for Greater Victoria (the man who is trying to get industry to move into Greater Victoria to create new jobs) state, even though he now has nowhere to offer to companies wanting to move to Greater Victoria, that Saanich might further delay it or, worse still, vote it down. If that happens these companies will move to Vancouver or to Nanaimo's recently approved industrial park.

Greater Victoria needs the jobs. Saanich needs the tax revenue. All of us will benefit from this development and I urge all those who want an economically healthy Greater Victoria to be present and either speak in favor or at the very least applaud those who do stand up and speak in favor of jobs and tax dollars. — Richard D. B. Talbot, 2430 Whidby Lane, Sidney.

Mothers' March

On behalf of the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C. and the Kinsmen Clubs of Juan de Fuca, Saanich, Sidney and Victoria, I wish to thank the citizens of the Greater Victoria and Sidney areas for their generous response to our recent Kinsmen Mothers' March Campaign — $103,500 has been collected to date, a substantial increase over last year.

This increase in funds will enable the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation to further its many programs to assist handicapped children and adults of this province. My thanks to the thousands of women volunteers, and the youth groups such as Demolay, Job's Daughters, student nurses, and the Girls Club from Sooke, who gave many hours of their time to organize and conduct this campaign. — Sheila Manifold, Co-ordinator, Victoria Kinsmen Mothers' March Campaign.

James Bay Power Special Symbol for Quebec

By JAMES STEWART
Montreal Star

Toward the end of 1979 — perhaps about the time the Levesque government is putting its referendum on sovereignty-association to the voters — the first electricity will be delivered to Montreal from the gigantic James Bay power project.

The $16-billion development on La Grande River is forging ahead smoothly. After six years of intense planning and construction, the end is now clearly in sight for the initial phase at LG2. Engineers say work is six months ahead of schedule. The first turbines should begin spinning in November, 1979.

That will undoubtedly be an occasion for official ceremonies of pride and joy, collective congratulation and public celebration.

The tendentious political history of the James Bay project will be forgotten in the glory of another remarkable achievement by Hydro-Quebec — that very special symbol for Quebecers, their living proof that Quebec sait faire, and can do it in French.

Premier Levesque will share the glory, as he has every right to do. And he may be expected to use it to support his aim of sovereignty for Quebec, which is also his right.

A few spoilers may try to remind the population of the PQ's virulent opposition to the James Bay project after Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa made the initial announcement in 1971. But the PQ changed its mind about James Bay soon after taking office. For the PQ government, it is now the Project of the Century, just as Robert Bourassa said it was.

Besides, Rene Levesque has longstanding and legitimate claims to a share of the credit for hydro-electric development. He was the minister in the Lesage government of the early '60s who led the project for nationalization of power companies. In a sense, he created the modern Hydro-Quebec.

The James Bay hydro-electric development, which at full capacity could produce three times the power of Churchill Falls in Labrador, is Hydro-Quebec's greatest achievement.

Giant project will start generating electricity next year

Even before it is in full production, Hydro-Quebec crews will have moved north to harness the Great Whale River which flows into Hudson Bay. With full government backing, Hydro-Quebec will be fully occupied till the end of the century tapping the energy resources of the rivers of Quebec — one of the last great hydraulic reservoirs on the continent.

The James Bay development — perhaps because of its trouble-plagued history — has not yet entered the public imagination as forcibly as did Hydro-Quebec's earlier projects on the Manicouagan River.

La Manic truly became the pride of Quebec. Songs were written about it, products named after it, superlatives were showered on it. The world's highest multiple-arch dam went up at Manic 5 and it represented Quebec's new dimension of the '60's, the quiet revolution, the coming of age.

In September, 1968, Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson travelled to Manic 5 to host a grand reception and to pour the final bucket of concrete on the main arch. He died in his sleep in the guest house there.

The James Bay project, however, was controversial from the start. The development originally announced by Premier Bourassa was not the one that is now nearing completion. It involved James Bay rivers south of La Grande and presented difficult technical problems which Hydro-Quebec has yet been unable to solve.

The project was moved north to La Grande River and the cost escalations began. The expected costs now are more than three times the original estimates. There were management and control problems stemming from the Bourassa government's creation of umbrella corporations to oversee the work. Hydro-Quebec resisted these restrictions and eventually overcame them.

The work began with little consideration of the native population or for environmental effects. The project was closed briefly when the native people won a court judgment which forced the Quebec government to recognize their rights and eventually to negotiate a settlement. It was closed again when union activists sacked the place in a dispute over union jurisdictions.

The PQ opposition attacked the project from the start, favoring a program of nuclear power plants to meet Quebec's energy needs.

But that is changing. The old reputation is being lived down, and as the project nears completion it is becoming — like La Manic — a symbol of excellence, dynamism and self-hood for all of Quebec.

Energy Minister Guy Joron visited the project last year and pronounced it the best thing the Bourassa government had ever done.

Levesque ready for glory despite early opposition to giant hydro project

The PQ government has turned around on energy policy. Mr. Joron, in fact, has imposed a two-year moratorium on nuclear development in the province. Nuclear power is out, hydro electricity is in. It's full speed ahead, and dam the rivers.

Hydro-Quebec is a government agency, but it operates almost like a private corporation. It remain a state within a state, as former Resources Minister Jean Cournoyer once said.

But Hydro-Quebec and its James Bay project are also the Quebec government's great assets just now, at a time when the government can not count on too many others. Hydro is keeping the province's investment figures reasonably respectable. It is maintaining Quebec's credit rating in international markets. It is efficient, world-class and comfortable with high technology. And it operates in French.

The PQ government needs agencies to demonstrate those qualities which it seems to lack itself. Even now, in the early stages of its struggle, the government needs the reflected glory of Hydro-Quebec. By the time the first power sings down the transmission lines from La Grande River, the government's need may be even greater.

'Official' Secrets: Just Who Are They Protecting?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Peter Treu is on trial. Charged with a violation of The Official Secrets Act, Mr. Treu if convicted is liable to a maximum sentence of 14 years' imprisonment. He has pleaded not guilty.

The trial, in Montreal, is being held in secret.

All evidence, both for the Crown and for the defence, has been presented in secret.

The verdict of Quebec Sessions Court Judge Luc Trudel, scheduled for April 28, will be handed down in secret.

Only the passing of sentencing, should Mr. Treu be convicted, will be conducted in public.

Mr. Treu, a former Northern Electric engineer, was charged in March, 1976, with having violated Section 4 of The Official Secrets Act with having "unlawfully retained information and documents" and with having "failed to take reasonable care of the documents concerned, or conducted himself in such a manner as to endanger their safety."

The public, however, is not permitted to know the full nature of the charge against Mr. Treu; nor the evidence that has been presented in prosecution; nor the evidence that has been presented in defence; nor the manner in which the trial has been conducted; nor that the trial has been conducted fairly.

The public is not permitted to know these things because, according to a provision of The Official Secrets Act, it is not necessary for the public to know these things. Section 14 (2) states that the court if it chooses may close the trial to "all or any portion of the public" upon application by the prosecution that "the publication of any evidence to be given or any statement to be made in the course of the proceedings would be prejudicial to the interest of the State." The passing of sentence, however, must take place in public.

The section, to be sure, is permissive. Whether or not a trial under The Official Secrets Act will be closed to the public, what portions of the trial will be closed to the public, and what sectors of the public they will be closed to — these are all matters left to the discretion of the court. Why, then, given such broad discretionary powers, did Judge Trudel rule that all portions of the trial of Mr. Treu (apart from sentencing) be closed to all sectors of the public? Not, surely, because that was the intent of the application made on the first day of the trial by Crown prosecutor Francois Handfield. Such an application has no binding effect on the court. Not, surely, because Mr. Treu at the time made no formal objection to the sealing from the public of his trial (he has certainly objected since). The rights of a defendant, or the waiving of those rights by a defendant, are not the only matters left to the consideration of the court. And not, surely, because every statement made and every piece of evidence presented at the trial would have been "prejudicial to the interest of the State" had they been publicized. Perhaps such a claim can be made concerning evidence closely related to the contents of the documents Mr. Treu is charged with having mishandled. If so, the trial could have been closed for the presentation of that evidence and open for the rest — as has been the case in other trials conducted under The Official Secrets Act.

The public is left in a quandary — and not by any means a benign quandary. Certainly, a charge laid against a particular individual under a particular law will be a matter of particular concern to that individual. At the same time, however, the relationship between individuals in general and the law in general is and must be a matter of profound concern to all. Yet, in this case, the public has had and will have no knowledge of the constraints that this law imposes upon an individual (and, by extension, upon the public itself). Worse, the public will have no assurance that these constraints are being imposed fairly.

Perhaps there is a need for official secrets, but the only possible rationale for such a need is that official secrets protect the public. Whom has its secrecy protected? Not you, not us, not Mr. Treu, not anyone. So far as we can gather, it has only protected another official secret.

That's the problem with official secrets. They breed like beasts, they grow fangs, they rove in packs.

The Celebrity Circus

By ANATOLE BROYARD

"Dad," my 13-year-old son asked, "have you ever met any famous people?"

I was saying good night to him, a ritual I enjoy because he is between sleep and waking and his unconscious comes to the surface. It is a time when we grow philosophical and he asks me to tell him about my Army experience, or to relate once more how I picked up his mother in a subway station.

"Famous people?" I said. "What kind of famous people?"

"Any kind," he said. "Movie stars?"

"Well, yes, I have met some movie stars. I met Steve McQueen."

This was promising. The Great Escape, starring Steve McQueen, is one of my son's favorite movies. "What is he like?"

"Well, the last time I ran into him, he wasn't famous yet. We were at a party in a kind of attic. There was a low, steel beam across the ceiling and Steve McQueen hit his head on it."

My son considered this for a moment. "Who else did you know?"

"Well, I met Marlon Brando. He wasn't really established yet, either. I was in a cafeteria with a girl and Marlon Brando came in and said hello to her. Then he caught a fly in his hand and showed us his calluses from his motorcycle."

"Did he squash the fly?"

"No, he let it go. I used to see George Segal a lot before he went to Hollywood. His brother was a friend of mine. George used to do pushups between two chairs because he thought his shoulders were too narrow."

"Didn't you ever meet anybody AFTER they were famous?"

"Let me see. Oh, yes, I met Paul Newman after he was famous. It was at a dinner party. Everybody was standing around talking in the living room, but when we started eating dinner, which was a buffet, Paul Newman and his wife, Joanne Woodward, took their plates into the bedroom and sat on the floor between the twin beds in there. Most of the other people at the party tried to sit on the floor in the bedroom, too, but there wasn't enough room."

My son suppressed a yawn. He did it very cleverly, massaging his jaw as if to see whether he needed a shave. I ran 10 years of the Late Show through my head, trying to think of famous people.

"I spent an evening once with Barbra Streisand and Elliot Gould. Her gynecologist was a friend of mine and he invited me over to meet them. I was engaged to your mother at the time, so I took her along."

"Did she sing?"

"Your mother?"

"Barbra Streisand".

"No, she talked."

"What did she say?"

"I can't remember."

"What did Elliott Gould say?"

"Please pass the butter."

My son got out of bed. "Excuse me, dad; I have to get a drink."

He was obviously giving me a chance to collect my wits. I did. I was ready for him when he came back.

"Here's a good one," I said. "I met Norman Mailer."

This got a stir out of him. My son and his friends are reading The Naked and the Dead.

"Is he pretty tough, like his book?"

"That's just what I was going to tell you. He invited me to punch him in the belly."

"Did you?"

"Well, yes and no."

"How do you mean, yes and no?"

BRANDO . . . fly-catcher

"Well, I didn't exactly punch him I just gave him a light tap."

"Why'd you do that?"

"I didn't know how hard his belly was and it wouldn't look good, you know, for a book critic to double up a famous writer with a punch."

"How hard was it?"

"Pretty hard."

"Did you invite him to punch you in the belly?"

"No, but he did anyway."

"Did he give you a light tap, too?"

"No, he didn't. Or maybe he thought it was."

"Did you double up?"

"Not really."

My son's eyes grew thoughtful. That never happened when I told him Army stories. I had to do something fast. "You know the famous black writer James Baldwin?"

"We don't read him till Grade 9."

"Well, I used to know him in New York and then I met him again in Paris. We were in the same restaurant, at different tables. Somebody at his table was telling a joke and when James Baldwin laughed, he threw his head back so far that we saw each other upside down."

This story earned me a sardonic look. Sardonic looks from your 13-year-old son are almost as bad as the Oedipus complex. I brought out my ace in the hole: "I met Adlai Stevenson."

"THE Adlai Stevenson?"

"There was only one."

He waited for me to continue. His face took on an expression of energetic patience. "It was at a wedding reception. There were a lot of people, but when the bride arrived, they all rushed out to greet her, and Adlai Stevenson and I were left alone in the room, this far apart."

"What did you do?"

"Well, I looked at him, you know, but I was so surprised to find myself alone with Adlai Stevenson that I couldn't think of anything to say."

"What did he do?"

"Wait, let me think . . . He looked at me, then he looked at the floor, and then he put his hands in his pockets."

My son looked at me, then he looked at the ceiling and then he put his hands under his head. "Gee, Dad," he said carefully, "you've certainly had an exciting life, haven't you?"

Scrap Gold Profits Soar

British Columbia Forest Products Limited Executive Appointment

Michael E. Hoole

British Columbia Forest Products Limited annouces the appointment of Michael E. Hoole as General Counsel. Mr. Hoole, who joined BCFP in 1976, will be responsible for all corporate legal matters. He will be located at the Company's head office in Vancouver.

BCFP

BRAMPTON (CP) — With little apparent effort, Johnson Matthey and Mallory Ltd. can display a stack of gold bullion worth about $6 million.

The leading processor of precious metals in Canada, Johnson has increased its production of gold 10 times — from 100,000 ounces annually to one million — in its new, modern Brampton plant.

When it moved part of its operations here from Toronto, the company doubled its staff to 70.

"This represents a 500 per cent increase in employee efficiency when we compare former and present production," said Tony Hart, the division general manager.

Johnson's chief activity, however, is recycling 250 tons a year of electronics scrap, nearly 20 per cent of the total of such scrap in North America.

The recycling recovers micro-thin gold plating applied to printed circuitry. With the price of gold in the $170-per-ounce catagory, the process ranks as essential.

The company also handles large quantities of spent platinum catalysts and silver photographic wastes. Silver production has risen to five million ounces annually from two million.

Six million dollar girl Anne Bradley with recycled gold

About 90 per cent of the company's gold production is shipped as bullion, mainly to metal markets in New York, Chicago and Winnipeg.

From these sources, 65 per cent of the world's gold recycling is used in the jewellery trade. Much of it goes into dentistry and industrial plating.

Its parent, the Johnson Matthew Group of London, was founded 160 years ago, shortly after Wellington won at the battle of Waterloo.

John Lutely, president of the Canadian firm, said the company handles a fair part of the 1.6 million ounces of primary gold, worth about $300 million, dug up in Canada each year.

This gold, he said, is produced by gold mines or as a byproduct of delving for copper.

Copper Up At Afton

TORONTO (CP) — Smelter operations are being fired up and production of blister copper is expected to begin later this month at the Afton Mines Ltd. copper complex, near Kamloops, says the vice-president of Copperfields Mining Corp., Toronto.

N. B. Keevil said in a speech at the company's annual meeting that tune-up operations at the mine have progressed to the point where the mine and mill are operating at, or better than, designed capacity.

After 2½ months of tune-up production, Afton has produced more than eight million pounds of copper, he said.

Keevil said that Copperfields, which indirectly controls Afton through Teck Corp. Ltd., Vancouver, expected some income from the Afton project this year. The small income reflected the fact that there would only be about five months production at currently depressed copper prices.

Copperfields' holdings of Teck shares represent a 52-per-cent voting and a 37.4-per-cent equity interest, he said, making Copperfields profits greatly influenced by Teck's operations.

Teck's operating profit for the first quarter, ended Dec. 31, declined to 4.2 cents a share from 9.4 cents a share because of the decline in zinc profits, he said.

That decline was reflected in Copperfields' first-quarter results, which show a loss of two cents a share compared with a profit of four cents a share a year earlier.

Subject to a favorable tax ruling, Copperfields has arranged to convert $4.5-million in bank loans to an income debenture to cut about four per cent from its interest rate, Keevil said.

Direct interest costs in 1977 were $194,000.

If that change was in effect now, the saving would be about $200,000 or five cents a share, he added.

He said copper, zinc and nickel markets are weak, with surplus inventories keeping prices down. But there were signs that world producers were taking steps to reduce production and inventories to bring prices back to a more realistic level.

"In the meantime, it is encouraging to note we have significant interests in production of oil and gas, gold, silver and niobium and that markets for all of these are reasonably strong."

KEY ISSUE IN BUS TALKS

Drivers Have 70 Years Invested in Spare Board

For B.C. Hydro bus drivers the spare board means much more than a tag end stuck away in the shed.

For them it is a complex system for assigning rush hour or substitute work which has been built up over a 70-year period and is operated by 150 bylaws in the union's constitution.

Along with the demand by the Amalgamated Transit Union for a shorter work week, control of the spare board is a major issue in the current dispute with Hydro which has already led to a week-long shutdown of the transit system.

Hydro feels the board is being abused and wants to replace the union's rules and regulations with four guidelines which would allow Hydro to control the board.

The Crown corporation says it could save the deficit-ridden transit division half a million dollars a year.

Basically, the spare board was set up to organize drivers in a business where the difference between peak and slack periods is so pronounced.

The board provides drivers for extra runs and replacements for those who book off sick.

There are then two work schedules for the drivers — a regular 7½-hour shift and another one where a driver signs up for the spare board and provides extra runs when needed.

Those who are eligible to sign up for the board are guaranteed 75 hours for each two-week pay period and they can be assigned work anywhere between 5 a.m. and 8 p.m. each day.

Once a driver has 7½ hours for the day he receives time-and-a-half as overtime for trips covering the next 2½ hours and double time after that. The base rate is $8.90 an hour.

The bus drivers average about $17,000 a year and the union doesn't disagree with the company's statement that some drivers on the spare board have been making as much as $32,000.

However, the union says there are only about four in that bracket and they may have to work close to 60 hours a week to get it.

The union also contends that those who use the spare board are driving during the busiest times and therefore exposed to tougher driving conditions as well as coping with larger numbers of passengers.

Hydro's position is that it wants to distribute the spare board work more evenly among the drivers so as to cut down on overtime. The company says its guidelines will only affect about 300 of the 2,000 Hydro bus drivers.

But the ATU members say the spare board has set the pace for over-all working conditions and they don't want to see those eroded without a fight.

The ATU has said it is willing to negotiate the issue and has a counter proposal ready. However, it wants something in exchange, like agreement from Hydro to cut the members' work week to 35 hours from 37½.

Blood Donors Honored

Four Victoria men who have hit the century mark in giving blood will be presented tonight with Red Cross certificates by Mrs. Walter Owen, wife of the lieutenant-governor.

The recognition ceremony at 8 in Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, will also involve 23 donors who have given blood 50 and 75 times, and will be attended by Gordon Squire, president of the B.C.-Yukon division of the Red Cross Society, and commissioner Bev Howard.

Hundred-time certificates go to V.A. Deane, 406 Davida; R.K. Nicholson, 5140 Delmonte; W.E. Mills, 536 View Royal, and C. Reeve, 502 Whiteside.

Fifty-time donors are A.A. Albertson, 3420 Bethune; Mrs. D.E. Bouchard, 1558 Earle; G.K. Harvey, 515 Richmond; H. Anderson, 921 Leslie; J.A. Carlos, 1780 Townley; E.J. Knowlton, 2976 Leighton; C.E. CRTC RULING ON HOCKEY

The Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission has been asked to rule on an application by New Westminster radio station CKNW to join with 38 other stations, including Victoria's CJVI, to continue carrying the Vancouver Canucks hockey game of the week during the 1978-79 and 1979-80 seasons.

Persons wishing to intervene have until April 19 to send a submission to the CRTC and the applicant, stating grounds for support or opposition to either proposal, and whether or not a personal appearance will be made at its hearing.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Wife Not Allowed To Testify

A county court judge ruled Tuesday that a wife could not testify against her husband who was accused of arson.

After the ruling by Judge Montague Drake, Crown counsel David Lisson said the prosecution would not call any evidence and Judge Drake directed the jury, as a matter of law, to find Gordon Robert Sillars, 43, of Esquimalt, not guilty because there was no case to consider.

Sillars was accused of wilfully setting fire to a unit of the Wedgwood Motel, 540 Goldstream, last Nov. 20.

The jury was excused before evidence was called and a voir dire, or trial within the main trial, was held.

When the jury returned later, Judge Drake said he had held an inquiry as to whether Sillars' wife could be a witness. He explained that in certain circumstances a spouse can testify where the other is accused of a crime "but not this case."

A 17-year-old was charged in provincial court Tuesday with two counts of breaking and entering and six counts of attempted breaking and entering.

Gavin Wood, 134 Moss, was charged in connection with Monday break-ins and attempted break-ins and was remanded in custody by Judge William Ostler until Thursday for election of his trial method and possible bail hearing.

Wood was charged with break-ins at Carole's Craft House, 333 Cook, and the Village Beacon, 249 Cook. The attempt charges were in connection with Fairfield Jewellery, 313 Cook, Hugo's Tailor Shop, 311 Cook, Fairfield Barber Shop, 309 Cook, Ethel's Cake Shop, 305 Cook, Park Beauty Salon, 355 Cook, and Garden of The Earth, 242 Cook.

Two men charged separately with drug-trafficking offences elected their trial methods and had preliminary hearing dates set.

Todor Grant Michael Cuckovich, 20, of 694 Goldstream, elected trial by judge and jury on charges of trafficking in cocaine and possession of cocaine for the purposes of trafficking and had a preliminary hearing date of June 29 set.

Phillip George Keeler, 19, of 948 Esquimalt, elected trial by judge without jury on a charge of trafficking in hashish and his preliminary hearing was set for July 4.

Preliminary hearings were also set for two men charged separately with perjury.

Dean Wesley Bowman, 17, of 2173 Malaview, charged with perjury in connection with his testimony during trials March 7 and Feb. 13, had a hearing set for April 20.

Larry Grunow, 21, of 2639 Fifth, charged with perjury in a Dec. 19 trial appearance, elected trial by judge and jury and had a hearing set for July 6.

Bowman's preliminary date was set earlier because he was denied bail March 13.

Two men were fined $1,000 each for drinking-driving after Ostler learned it was the third conviction for each.

Mervin Bernett Black, 33, of 3117 Alder, received the fine after Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court Black was convicted on Nov. 12, 1974, and June 29, 1976, of impaired driving, and was fined $400 and $500, respectively.

Kent Freeman Henley, 35, of 951 Claremont, received his fine when the judge learned from Crown counsel Richard Law that Henley was convicted Jan. 24, 1968, and Dec. 10, 1975, for impaired driving and received a $250 fine in the first instance and a 14-day jail term in the second case.

Savings, Share-the-Wealth In Amalgamation: Study

Amalgamation of Greater Victoria's balkanized civic administrations would achieve long-term financial savings, spread the wealth of the metropolitan area over the entire community, and provide more efficient local government which would be "accountable and politically responsive to all segments of the public."

The claims are made in a study prepared by a private group of citizens, the Greater Victoria Association for Amalgamation, headed by Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie.

The report, written for the association by local government consultant F.H. Finnis, recommends three major steps for immediate action:

— Establishment of the Capital Regional District as a senior municipal government, with all municipal mayors serving as ex officio board members and other regional directors elected at large, without municipal ties.

— Expansion of the CRD's role to include responsibility for such things as police and fire protection; building, plumbing and electrical inspections; registrations and licensing; water supply; and library service.

— And appointment of a steering committee and task force to make recommendations on the early amalgamation of the four core municipalities, later to include the four western electoral areas of View Royal, Langford, Colwood and Metchosin.

Copies of the report have been sent to Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils, and to the Capital Region Board.

Saanich council gave the hefty document the perfunctory received-and-filed treatment Monday night, without any dicussion.

The report is far more comprehensive and detailed than an earlier one presented by McKenzie's group of amalgamation proponents almost a year ago.

That original effort was heavily criticized for its lack of statistics and background material.

One of the most vocal critics was the present Saanich mayor, Mel Couvelier, who dismissed McKenzie's amalgamation speech at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon as a monumental publicity stunt.

By contrast, the latest study contains 16 pages of appendices and tables, in addition to 20 pages of text.

The report has some harsh things to say about Greater Victoria's local government structure, "characterized by a bewildering variety of local councils, boards and commissions which fragment local responsibility, delay decision making, cloud accountability for those decisions which are made and confuse the electorate."

"The result is an almost complete lack of resource sharing — as if each municipality had built a fence around itself," the report adds.

"A way must be found to allow the benefits of the economic base . . . to be spread more equitably over the whole economic unit of the core and probably beyond."

Gov't Process Discussed

The Canadian legislative process will be examined this weekend by politicians, journalists and academics during a national conference at the University of Victoria.

Premier Bill Bennett, provincial Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair, MP Flora MacDonald and former federal Conservative leader Robert Stanfield are among the speakers.

The conference is sponsored by UVic and the Montreal-based Institute for Research on Public Policy.

Lectures and discussion sessions will focus on the legislatures of Canada — their members, rules, responsibilities, achievements, failures, relationship with the cabinet, public service, constituents and media.

All sessions are public.

Search Extended for Crewmen

The search for five members of the crew of the herring seiner Ocean Invader I, found overturned off the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands last Thursday, has been extended over a wide area off the B.C. coast.

Search and rescue officials said aircraft and surface vessels are covering the area from Dixon Entrance, north of the Charlottes, to Cape Scott, at the north tip of Vancouver Island.

Good weather and calm seas aided the wider search through the waters of Hecate Strait and Queen Charlotte Sound.

The body of crew member Eric Parnell was found near the overturned vessel. Still missing are Sam Parnell, his son Sam, Earl and David Parnell, and Larry Brown.

STROUD, England (CP) — Princess Anne is at the centre of a row between her neighbors, local milkman David Jones and news-agent David Furley.

The princess gave Jones the push in favor of Furley, who could deliver milk six days a week to Jones's restricted three-day-a-week delivery.

Gov't Vows Strict Curbs In Island Spray Program

Strict regulations controlling the use of toxic sprays will be applied to a B.C. Hydro operation that will see 2,4-D used to retard alder growth along Vancouver Island transmission lines, a government spokesman said Tuesday.

The pesticide control committee spokesman said environmentalists should not be alarmed about a permit that allows Hydro to spray its rights-of-way in the Campbell River and Gold River areas from May 1 to Oct. 31.

Although some of the lines cross important fisheries streams, he said stringent controls will be applied to ensure that none of the deadly spray reaches the water.

"The areas near fish streams would definitely not be sprayed — there are numerous strict regulations that vary depending on the terrain."

He said the project will be checked by federal fisheries officers.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Forest Service says about 2,500 acres of timber throughout the province will be sprayed with chemical herbicides this spring and summer.

Largest control project will be in the Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island. A total of 1,784 acres will be treated.

The service said in a news release the herbicides 2,4-D, Tordon and Krenite will be used mainly to curb invading brush which is hindering the growth of young conifer stands.

In the Kamloops district, two knapweed control projects have been scheduled to improve rangeland.

One will be conducted in the Kamloops-Merritt area using an aerial spray over about 400 acres, the service said, while another in the northern region of the district involves manual and "spot" treatment of individual plants using Tordon.

CONTRACTS AWARDED

B.C.Hydro has awarded two contracts for the research and development of a new high voltage underwater power cable from Cheekey near Squamish, north of Vancouver, to the Dunsmuir substation on Vancouver Island.

One contract, worth $1,376,293, was awarded to Industrie Pirelli S.P.A., of Milan, Italy. The other, valued at $1,270,800, was awarded to Standard Telefon of Kabelfabrik-AS, of Oslo, Norway.

Jobless to Continue

A new program of occupational training is needed in northwest B.C. to counter an expected continuing high rate of unemployment, a report prepared by the ministry of economic development has concluded.

The North West Report '77 says that while the region has substantial growth potential in the long term, particularly in mining, its short-term prospects are only limited.

"Much of the region's currently undeveloped mineral and forest resource potential is characterized by high costs relative to the quantity and quality of the resources," the 30,000-word report says.

"As such, significantly higher price levels will be prerequisites to major new resource developments in most the north west.

The report states that in spite of the recently-announced federal-provincial industrial development agreement, which includes incentives and small business assistance programs applicable to northern B.C., the region's economy will retain its strong resource-orientation and many of the new projects will be relatively large-scale.

"As a result of this basically-unchanged economic-employment structure, the Northwest could continue to under-utilize a substantial portion of its potential labor force," the report says.

Worrisome Spray Just Water Over the Trees

The B.C. Forest Service spraying program along the Koksilah River near Duncan that has worried residents is as natural a spray as can be — it's water.

The service is spraying cold water on its Douglas fir seed trees to slow down Mother Nature.

The cold shower treatment is to retard the flowering of the carefully tended trees in the 10-acre fir nursery so the trees won't flower at the same time as other fir trees in the area.

This is to prevent cross-pollination with the lesser quality species, defeating the whole purpose of the tree farm in which fir are designed to produce high-quality seed for the province's reforestation program.

People seeing the spraying began wondering if chemicals were being used, a spokesman said.

Moth Control Under Study

Several insecticides to control the winter moth, recently identified as a major pest in the capital region, are being tested by Agriculture Canada, provincial entomologist Jack Arrand said Tuesday.

He also said the forest research centre on Burnside Road is conducting research on two European parasites which are natural enemies of the insect. They may be brought in next year to control the month.

These are some of the steps being taken to control the larvae of the moth which strips the foliage from fruit and oak trees.

The larvae were originally thought to be those of the spruce budworm, but investigation last fall revealed they were winter month larvae, a far more serious pest.

The pest exists in Nova Scotia where it is mainly controled by parasites.

FIRE WIPES OUT GARAGE

Children playing with matches are suspected of causing a $6,000 fire that destroyed a garage and damaged a home at 566 Walter Tuesday afternoon.

Saanich fire officials said two lawnmowers were also destroyed.

A spokesman said the siding and rear roof of the house was slightly burned.

Language Priority Bid

tion which unanimously adopted the Official Languages Act eight years ago is far from being in the vanguard with respect to its rapid and effective implementation," the report said.

"That the image of a bilingual country is still not reflected in the Parliament Buildings simply cannot be considered satisfactory."

Air Canada, a Crown corporation which was frequently criticized by Yalden's predecessor, Keith Spicer, was once again rapped on the knuckles for its failure to always provide bilingual services in such linguistically mixed areas as Ottawa.

Yalden told reporters that if he was a teacher, he would give the federal and provincial governments only a "bare passing mark" for their current efforts in language reform.

The federal government believes the public service is irreversibly bilingual, Yalden said.

"How they conceive of this, I don't know."

The government is foolish he said to gradually eliminate language training for public servants, excpecting a new crop of bilingual youth to come on stream.

While many schools, which are under provincial jurisdiction, have improved second-language programs, there still will not be enough bilingual graduates to fill future public service requirements, he said.

By eliminating public service training the government is discriminating against Canadians who may want to work for the government but will be unable to because of no exposure to both official languages while a student.

Yalden said the provinces have not met the challenge to implement sufficient second-language programs to produce bilingual students.

He also criticized the federal government for what he termed its "fascination for seemingly contradictory notions such as that in a bilingual country individuals don't need to be bilingual."

Prime Minister Trudeau has often said Canadians can remain unilingual when the federal government offers bilingual services.

Yalden's report recommended that his office he further divorced from the government so it can criticize the government without the fear of being emasculated.

Dodd House Gets Breathing Space

The oldest home in Saanich, a 119-year-old veteran in "eminently restorable" condition," will find a temporary resting place in Lambrick Park while municipal officials and council members decide what to do with it.

Saanich's planning committee recommended Tuesday night that the home, built by pioneer Capt. Charles Dodd in 1859, be moved to the park from 1710 Kenmore Road, which is to be developed for an apartment site.

The home, decorated inside with fine California redwood panelling, has been donated to the municipality by the developer who will also bear the costs of the move.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said one suggestion is that the building be used to store the Saanich archival material.

An earlier proposal envisaged moving it to the municipal complex on Vernon, in front of the fire hall, but development manager Bill Weir said that would interfere with access and parking for emergency vehicles.

Staff were asked to recommend possible uses for the Dodd house, together with cost estimates for installing it in a permanent location and any necessary restoration.

First UN Troops In Lebanon

the remaining 34 soldiers would go through later in the day.

Maj. Sa'ad Hadad, the Christian commander, said earlier his men would use force if necessary to keep out the blue-bereted international troops. But the soldiers did not encounter resistance from the Christians and went as far as the Christian village of Marjayoun, five miles from the frontier, the spokesman said.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday that Canadian soldiers will soon follow other United Nations peacekeeping troops into southern Lebanon.

But while Canada will provide logistics support for a temporary UN force it's unlikely to serve with any permanent buffer force, Jamieson told the Commons.

Canada now has more troops assigned to UN peacekeeping roles than any other nation. It spent $28.9 million last year maintaining 1,050 troops in the Sinai and on the Golan Heights and $12.6 million on 515 combat troops in Cyprus.

Meanwhile, against a backdrop of strained U.S.-Israeli relations, President Jimmy Carter is pressing Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin during their meeting in Washington for an Israeli commitment to withdraw from the west bank of the Jordan River as part of a Middle East settlement.

The two leaders were continuing their talks today, with U.S. officials saying Carter considers Begin's reluctance to agree to a pullback as one of the major stumbling blocks in the way of stepping up negotiations between Israel and Egypt.

Silly Sport

What Do They See in Skiing Anyway?

Skiing reminds me of the comedian who used to say he enjoyed banging his head against the wall.

Why, someone would always ask.

Because it's lovely when you stop, he'd say. And to me nothing could describe this silly slippery sport better.

You dress up in the most ridiculously uncomfortable clothes surpassed in bulkiness only by the suits America's astronauts wore to the moon; you clamp on two slender pieces of wood (you have to put those on or you'd never be able to move those ugly great boots!); you dangle precariously from the most fiendish contraptions man has ever devised to reach what are fondly referred to as "the slopes"; and then you take the most unbelievable risks in hurtling downward so you can (hopefully) reach the bottom and do it all over again . . .

After doing it enough times that your feet have forgotten how to walk and will only slide and the rest of your body has been pulverized by the snow which just looks soft, you head back for what can only laughingly be called the "apres ski." For me that consists of undoing the buckles (which I'm sure could have been used as torture devices in medieval days) on those great boots, lowering myself gently into a hot bath and seeking sympathy for my aches and pains.

Avid skiers (the crazy ones who will actually go through all this winter after winter) will tell you, of course, that zooming down the slopes is an exhilarating experience. It is not. Don't envy any of them!

They'll tell you, too, as they give the impression that they're relaxing in all those colorful sweaters beside a roaring fire that they feel great. Great is not what they feel at all. It's relief. They're relieved to get those boots off and find they can actually move their toes again. They're relieved that it's all over for another day. As the comic said, it's lovely when you stop.

Now I (mercifully) wasn't exposed to the sport of skiing as a child. My children are getting the chance to learn early and at ages seven, nine and 11 they're lapping it up. They leap eagerly on to the chairlifts (never fearing they'll fall off or be tipped out) and come flying even more fearlessly down the slippery slopes.

They are not afraid of going out of control and into a giant somersault thus breaking every bone in their body. I am. And I suspect that is the main thing keeping me from being a skier.

That and the fact I haven't the slightest idea of what I'm doing. And don't say take lessons because I tried that and couldn't do what the young lady instructor told me to do.

And so I come down the hills so gingerly doing the snowplow almost the whole way (because if you don't the things run away with you) that by evening I'm walking around like a pigeon-toed cowboy.

Yet actually I've experienced more trouble getting UP the slopes than coming down.

At the Island's Forbidden Plateau it took me a long time to graduate from the rope tow (which by the end of the day has wrenched your arms from their sockets) to the T-bar.

This is so called because there is a T-shaped thing which is supposed to slide behind you and drag you gently on your skis up the hill. It doesn't, of course. It knocks you flying.

"Don't sit on the T-bar," a sign tells you but your first reaction when something clips you under the buttocks is to take a seat. That's what I did, crashing to the ground while my larger friend travelling with me shot skyward and we both ended up being dragged feet-first for about 20 metres.

Being petrified of heights, I didn't dare try a chair ride until we went for a skiing holiday last week to Washington's Crystal Mountain.

The chairs swing high and the alpine scenery is unbelievably beautiful — when you can bear to look — and you see the maddest things. High on a post just before you swing out over one of the deepest ravines is a sign saying 'No jumping off the chairs. Violators will lose skiing privileges.'

You'd be very lucky if that's all you lost and who the hell would jump off a chair anyway? I had enough trouble just sliding down the ramp at the end of each ride without crashing into somebody.

For three of the days we were there, soldiers of the U.S. Army were training in the snow, uniforms and all. That made me feel good not because I'm pro-military but because here obviously were some other non-skiers. Just like me they let go of the rope tows, hollered 'Look out below!' and ended in a crumpled heap at the bottom.

Well, what do you think of skiing? I asked one young soldier later in the store.

"Painful," he said. "But what I can't understand," he added shaking his head, "is how you people can PAY to do it."

I didn't like to tell him that I couldn't understand it either . . .

Shortage of Space Shadows Sundance

A space shortage rather than a surplus is the biggest problem faced by the Sundance school, one of six eyed by the school board for possible closure.

Sundance has a small flexible program established in 1973 as an alternative to the regular elementary school system. Enrolment is stable at a yearly average of 120 pupils, but the school, the former Quadra Primary, has no room to expand.

At a public hearing Tuesday night, the million dollar question was how and where to expand the program.

Teachers, parents and administrators took a look at the options while Greater Victoria school trustees sat in as observers.

Six schools have been singled out for possible closure, space reduction or program shuffling next fall but Sundance is the only one not faced with declining enrolment, district planner Evan Oakley told the group.

It has no gymnasium, a tiny playing field and a shortage of office, staff, storage and medical space.

The staff washroom doubles as a medical facility, principal Donna Woolliams said.

Woolliams explained that grade structures do not exist at Sundance, students progress at their own rate and parent participation in all areas is encouraged.

Oakley said Sundance costs 14.6 cents per square foot per month to run, two cents higher than the district average.

He said trustees can leave the school as it is, add portables at a cost of $6,000 each, renovate to the tune of $270,000 or close the school and move the program.

The first and second options are not satisfactory to parents and teachers, who would like to expand the program to a maximum 200 students.

The school is already inadequate on its 1.2 acre site and couldn't accommodate portables, which would rob it of valuable play areas, they said at the meeting.

Ministry of education approval for the third proposal would be almost impossible to obtain, according to school superintendent Allan Stables.

And the fourth option is unlikely at this point because there's nowhere to put the program.

The school board today announced it has cancelled its April 11 decision-making public meeting on school closures and instead will hold meetings April 12 and 13.

Spokesman Bill Stavdal said the meetings will be in the Paul Building media centre, adjacent to the school board offices and will start at 7:30 p.m.

No Leads In Reid Stabbing

Saanich police are at a standstill in their investigation into the stabbing of Mount Douglas Senior Secondary School vice-principal Reg Reid last December.

A spokesman said today despite the posting of $3,000 in rewards police have received no new information on the case.

"We've had no phone calls and we're getting nothing from the kids," the spokesman said.

Saanich Sharply Split On Subdivision Sizes

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Saanich aldermen were presented Tuesday night with two directly conflicting requests concerning the permissible minimum size of rural subdivisions.

Contractor Nick Liberto submitted a 140-name petition to the planning committee, asking that the present five-acre minimum in the Hector-Liberto-Ivor area be reduced to two acres.

And municipal planner Gil Laurenson submitted a separate report, strongly urging that the subdivision minimum in the rural area outside the urban containment boundary be doubled to 10 acres.

Laurenson indicated to the committee there is some urgency in discussing the matter due to the "really alarming" rate of building activity in outlying rural areas in recent months.

But the committee chairman, Mayor Mel Couvelier, urged aldermen to table both matters.

By the time Laurenson's report came up for discussion Liberto had already left the meeting informed that his petition would be tabled, and Couvelier said in fairness to him the planner's request should also be held over.

In Liberto's case, the delaying action was taken so that some aldermen unfamiliar with the area in question could accept his invitation to "walk over" it and assess the validity of the petitioners' arguments.

Among these were the claim that reducing the permissible lot size would "create a better economic housing environment, and make a smaller acreage available to those who cannot afford five acres."

But the fact-finding walk may accomplish little besides aldermanic exercise. At least three committee members — Ald. Howard Sturrock, Ald. Robert Cameron and Ald. Ian Cass — said somewhat ominously that they know already how they will vote on the matter.

In his report, the planner expressed concern that increasing subdivision activity in the rural areas is eroding council's policy of urban containment.

"Scattered subdivision, even with a minimum of five acres, will cost the municipality additional dollars for police and fire protection, costs that are somewhat hidden," he noted.

"Inevitably, the municipality will be faced with improving roads to serve these subdivisions. Also, the school board will be hit with the increased cost of providing additional classroom space, or by having to expand their bus routes."

Laurenson's report recommends that the subdivision bylaw be amended to increase the subdivision minimum in rural areas from five to 10 acres.

He suggests the five-acre freeze now in effect within the urban containment boundary remain unchanged, except for most of the Blenkinsop Valley which should also be increased to 10 acres.

The planner told committee members that much of the subdividing in outlying areas has been carried on under a section of the Municipal Act nicknamed the "relative clause," whereby a property can be subdivided to provide a home for the owner's relative.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said he is concerned that this method of bypassing subdivision regulations is eroding valuable farmland in Saanich.

WOSK'S HIRING

Wosk's Ltd. has begun hiring 20 employees for its Victoria store which opens in May.

Store manager Gene Archambault said local people will be given preference.

The company is renovating the former Kelly Douglas building at 1810 Store and plans to carry $1.5 million worth of stock.

The company has a lease on the building with an option to buy.

Archambault said the opening will make Wosk's among the two largest furniture stores in the city.

Sidney Ferry to Continue

Washington State transportation commission has agreed to keep some type of ferry service on the Sidney-Anacortes run despite a U.S. federal decision against providing funds to buy a new vessel.

Ralph White, deputy general manager, said today the corporation will put a small vessel on the run indefinitely until a permanent solution can be found.

Most likely, he said, the 100-car ferry Evergreen State will be used, running twice a day starting June 18. At the present time it is running once a day in each direction.

The Sidney-Anacortes ferry had been the 160-car vessel, Kaleetan, but it is being renovated and will be used closer to Seattle to handle commuter traffic.

White said the U.S. government decided against making a grant because it feels ferry service is a Washington State responsibility, including the international run to Sidney.

White said Washington State has reluctantly accepted this decision and is studying alternatives. Funds from the federal U.S. government would have been used to buy the Finnish vessel, the Polar Express, for about $3.5 million.

Among the options, White said, would be to continue service with the Evergreen State or for the state to buy the Polar Express with its own funds.

The state is in the middle of a ferry construction program but the vessels will not be ready for three years. After that time, pressure would be eased and better service might be available on the Sidney-Anacortes run.

White said a decision on these options might be taken at the next meeting of the state transportation commission on April 17.

In any case, the commission will recommend that minimal service be continued to Sidney until a permanent solution can be found.

Turner Favor Sought?

TORONTO (CP) — As the RCMP were closing in on the Hamilton harbor scandal, an accused executive in the dredging trial boasted he would straighten things out by talking to his "good friend, John Turner, the minister of justice," the chief prosecution witness testified Tuesday.

Horace Grant Rindress, former president of J. P. Porter Ltd., said he went to Porter director Bruno Desjardins on Dec. 10, 1973, after the RCMP made two raids on Porter's Montreal head office and retrieved documents linking the company with a pay-off to Hamilton harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott.

"I told Desjardins that in my opinion we were in serious trouble," Rindress testified before an Ontario Supreme Court jury.

On trial with Desjardins are 10 other dredging executives and nine companies, charged with defrauding the Ontario and federal governments and the Toronto and Hamilton harbor commissions of more than $4.27 million.

"As I recall Desjardins said to me, 'Well, I see no problem here. I've handled (Rindress said it was either several or many) cases like this before.

"'All I have to do is talk to (Rindress said it was either 'our' or 'my') good friend John Turner, the minister of justice and the whole matter will be straightened out,'" Rindress quoted Desjardins as saying.

Man Charged

EDMONTON (CP) — A 23-year-old Edmonton man has been arrested and charged in connection with the theft of a $128,000 bar of gold.

The gold, which police believe was taken at Edmonton International Airport while being transferred on a flight from Yellowknife to Ottawa, was later delivered to the post office in Camrose.

Table Proposals for Pipe B.C. Indians Urge Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — An Indian group from British Columbia called on the special Senate pipeline committee Tuesday night to table the government's northern pipeline legislation until a special inquiry investigates its impact on the province.

The Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs, one of three Indian groups appearing before the committee, said special inquiries have been held in the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

But the government has not bothered with similar studies in the province which will see more pipeline construction than the Yukon.

Indian people were angry and fearful because they did not know how they might be harmed by the pipeline, said union president Ray Hance.

They made the presentation as the senators prepared to consider legislation paving the way for construction of a $10 billion pipeline across Canada to carry Alaskan gas to U.S. markets.

The Council of Yukon Indians repeated earlier demands that no pipeline be constructed prior to settlement of land claims. But they later agreed the project likely will go ahead at this point and their second position would be provision of a section in the bill protecting native claims.

Harry Allen, chairman of the council, said he felt the land claims could be settled in a year if there is "an all out effort" by government negotiators. He said a comprehensive claim for the Yukon is expected to be filed by May 1.

Noel Starblanket, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, said he wants a clause in the bill clearly stating that the legislation does not extinguish native land claims, something similar to a clause proposed by the government during Commons committee hearings.

Originally, the legislation made no mention of land claims, but following complaints from Indian government proposed an amendment to say the bill would not extinguish native claims.

That was withdrawn to allow negotiations with the opposition parties on wording of a new amendment.

The Indian groups say a Progressive Conservative amendment now before the House says claims and rights would be extinguished once settlement is reached.

The Yukon Indians said they want changes in the legislation to ensure they get maximum advantage from any construction of a pipeline.

Share of Marriage Worth $50,000

TORONTO (CP) — A woman sued for divorce by her husband on grounds of adultery has been awarded a $50,000 divorce payment for her contribution to their marriage.

In a decision Tuesday, Madame Justice Janet Boland of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled that although the woman committed adultery and now is living with the co-respondent in the divorce case, her contributions to the marriage and her husband's real estate business could not be ignored.

The divorce involved Frank Zidner, a real estate broker and former president of the Toronto Real Estate Board, and his wife, Violet Eva May, who filed a counter-petition on the ground of cruelty.

The judge said it would be unfair to allow the husband to keep all assets accumulated during the marriage and say the wife is entitled to nothing.

"It cannot be ignored that, over the years, she contributed to the marriage by raising six children, managing the home, assisting in maintenance of the house, looking after business calls and the entertainment of clients," she said in her judgment.

The judge dismissed the counter-petition and did not grant Mrs. Zidner any periodic maintenance payments because the 46-year-old woman has an annual salary of $9,000 and now is living with the co-respondent, whom she plans to marry.

Court was told that the Zidner matrimonial home and a farm property registered in Zidner's name are valued at $180,000. The couple separated in 1974 after 25 years of marriage and their three youngest children continued to live with Zidner.

HOMOSEXUAL GETS CUSTODY

TORONTO (CP) — The case of a Montreal homosexual awarded custody of his children will not set a legal precedent, says Simon Fodden, an Osgoode Hall Law School professor.

In his judgment, County Judge Elmer Smith said the 37-year-old businessman was the parent with the most meaningful emotional ties with the children, an eight-year-old girl and a 13-year-old boy.

The judge said the children's mother had psychiatric disorders and her relationship with the children was strained at times.

In an interview from his Ottawa office, Judge Smith said that people should not assume the law is beginning to recognize homosexuality as being normal behavior. However, the law is looking on it as not being grounds for not awarding custody of children.

Judge Smith said the man had been discreet, had not indulged in unusual or exhibitionistic behavior and was not inclined toward militancy.

The custody hearing was intiated by the father in an attempt to alter an interim divorce decree that eight months earlier had awarded the custody of the children to their mother, who lives in Ottawa.

Pressure Urged Against Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — Groups representing labor unions, churches and students announced support Tuesday for a campaign to withdraw accounts from four Canadian banks making loans to South Africa.

Group spokesman Donald Montgomery, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, said at a press conference it would not be possible to estimate how many millions of dollars would be withdrawn from the four banks named — Royal Bank of Canada, the Toronto-Dominion Bank, Bank of Nova Scotia and the Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Included in the press conference were representatives from the Canadian Labor Congress, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Oxfam-Canada, the Task Force of the Churches and Corporate Responsibility, the Canadian Universities Services Overseas and the National Union of Students.

Grace Hartman of the public employees union said her group was taking its money to credit unions.

While the CLC and CUPE were making immediate withdrawals, CUSO said it was giving the banks two months to change its policy of making loans to South Africa.

Rev. John Zimmerman, representing the churches, said no decision has yet been made by the churches to withdraw accounts.

In Montreal, a spokesman for the Royal Bank of Canada said there was "not a hell of a lot" the bank could do about the campaign.

"All we can do is explain the situation," he said.

The spokesman said the Royal Bank has refused any multi-purpose loans to South Africa or loans for foreign exchange because "the ultimate use of the funds could not be clearly determined."

Fred McNeil, chairman and chief executive officer of the Bank of Montreal, said the move had been expected but he had no idea to what extent union locals and others would go along.

At any rate, added McNeil, "I don't think it would break any of us."

Strike Right For Servants Stressed

OTTAWA (CP) — The organized labor movement will unite to defeat any politicians who support a federal government proposal to restrict bargaining and strike rights of federal public servants, Shirley Carr, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Tuesday.

"We will make it clear that if they don't support the public employees of this country, we are not prepared to support them," she said following a meeting of 30 employee organizations representing three million public servants at all levels of government.

A bill introduced in the Commons March 8 by Treasury Board President Robert Andras would tie public sector wage increases to salaries in the private sector.

Job Plan Labelled Glorified Welfare

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conservative MP James McGrath said Tuesday the Progressive Conservative party's study on unemployment views the federal government's Canada Works program as a form of glorified welfare.

McGrath, who represents the Newfoundland riding of St. John's East, said the one million jobless in Canada need something better. He said many people look upon the program as welfare because they can only get the minimum wage.

The study group members said at a news conference that any recommendations on changing Canada Works would go before party leader Joe Clark before being made public.

Mcgrath, James Gillies (PC—Don Valley) and Bill Clarke (PC—Vancouver Quadra), were visiting the city as part of a tour to form party policy on unemployment, with an eye to the expected 1978 federal election.

"I want to say frankly that this is a pre-election exercise," McGrath said at a residents association meeting.

Workers Protected If Firms Go Bust

OTTAWA (CP) — Revised federal bankruptcy laws giving additional rights to wage earners of bankrupt companies were introduced in the Senate Tuesday.

The government proposals, though watered down from an earlier bill introduced two and a half years ago, still tighten the rules for directors and officers of bankrupt corporations.

Originally, the government had proposed to give employees of a bankrupt company an absolute right to claim up to $2,000 of unpaid wages and benefits. These claims would have priority even over secured creditors.

This proposal has been changed. Wage earners would still have priority over unsecured creditors for up to $2,000 of unpaid wages per employee and for another $500 to cover pension and health and welfare fund contributions. But wage earners would not have priority over secured creditors.

The original proposal ran into a storm of criticism from corporate representatives and the Senate who claimed it would make it harder to raise money for financing corporate activities if wage earners had absolute priority in the event of bankruptcy.

However, the revised bill still would make directors of a bankrupt corporation personally liable for unpaid wages.

ECC Watchdog Role Opposed by Labor

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) will "not have anything to do" with the Economic Council of Canada in its role as pay-and-price monitoring agency after mandatory controls end, CLC executive vice-president Shirley Carr said Tuesday.

"Just dressing it up and giving it to the economic council does not make any difference to us," Mrs. Carr said at a news conference. "We are not going to be monitored to death."

Earlier Tuesday, council chairman Sylvia Ostry told the Commons finance committee the council will attempt to obtain voluntary co-operation from labor and business.

But she said if there is an absence of co-operation with a council request for more information, the government will then have to decide if it will use the federal Inquiries Act to demand the information.

The 2.3-million-member CLC withdrew its representatives from the economic council in March, 1976 because labor leaders said their positions were not being listened to.

Labor had repeatedly demanded the total withdrawal of mandatory controls and the CLC later said it would not agree to a monitoring agency after controls were lifted. The federal anti-inflation program will be dismantled gradually, starting April 14.

Mrs. Ostry said the council — much like an existing similar body in the United States — might get its first inkling of significant wage-and-price developments fro news reports.

The council would first try the voluntary route, but if there was resistance, "in our judgment", and there was a possibility the increase would have a spillover effect on the rest of the economy, the the cabinet could force the parties to make information available.

The CLC has taken the position that a monitoring agency is unnecessary because wage increases will be moderated by the current economic slump.

At the Commons finance committee, Mrs. Ostry rejected a suggestion from Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) that the council is in danger of becoming an instrument of the government by accepting the monitoring role.

"I thoroughly agree the council must be independent and objective," Mrs. Ostry said. "That's where its legitimacy arises."

Mrs. Ostry said in a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau last week that she accepted the monitoring role for the council in principle, but that more would have to be done to clarify its functions.

She told the committee the council intends to set up a special unit to act as the monitor. The unit would have a life of two years after which it would be evaluated and a decision would be made on whether to continue it.

"I have no desire to build up a large special unit," she said in response to Bill Kemploing (PC—Halton-Wentworth). "I want to keep it as small as possible."

Another Tough Year For Que.

QUEBEC (CP) — Projected spending of $12,760 billion by the Quebec government in fiscal 1978 spells another year of austerity, Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said Tuesday.

Parizeau, tabling his estimates for the year ending March 31, 1979, in the Quebec national assembly said the amount alloted represents a 10.9 per cent increase over 1977 estimates of $11,505 billion.

Quebecers will only learn whether the increase will be made up in the form of higher taxes or more borrowing when Parizeau brings down his budget April 18.

The cost of maintaining existing government programs would be $12.655 billion, he said, adding that reductions in spending would shave off $205 million and the government would spend an additional $310 million.

However, $160 million of the $310 million has already been budgeted under the government's economic stimulus program announced last October.

New spending will include $60 million on road construction in outlying areas, $5.8 million on a new maternity leave program, $1 million to inform American businessmen of the state of the Quebec economy and $1.2 million for new foreign delegations.

The budget of the environmental protection service will rise by 40.5 per cent to $29.7 million, and that of the natural resources department by 24.2 per cent to $65.5 million.

The department of social affairs, Quebec's big spender weighing in at $4.4 billion, will have 13 per cent more to spend.

COUNCIL INQUIRY STALLED

OTTAWA (CP) — A motion favoring a parliamentary inquiry into Canada Council accountability and its mandate to support the arts failed to reach a vote in a Commons committee Tuesday night.

Though two Liberal MPs — Ursula Appolloni (York South) and Mark Raines (Burnaby-Seymour) — supported the motion in the committee on broadcasting and the arts, other Liberal MPs quietly left the committee room so there was no quorum.

Gifted Chosen

HONG KONG (AP) — China has selected 20 exceptionally intelligent students aged between 11 and 16 for study in a special youth class at a technological university.

Handicap Curbs Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government announced plans Tuesday aimed at giving handicapped persons a better chance eventually to get public service jobs.

The government pledged to gradually remove barriers to jobs which handicapped persons face, including discriminatory hiring practices, architectural obstacles, negative attitudes and a lack of helpful services.

The announcement was made by Treasury Board President Robert Andras.

Highlights of the plan:

—The department of public works will study how all government buildings can be converted by 1983 to accommodate handicapped employees and members of the public;

—All government departments are to develop action plans to make employment of the handicapped easier and will have to report their progress regularly;

—The public Service Commission is reviewing hiring practices to ensure the handicapped are not screened out through practices designed for the non-handicapped.

—An information campaign will be launched within government to wipe out myths and misunderstandings about the abilities of the handicapped.

VICTORY FANS PLAYOFF HOPES

Cougars Trample Bruins

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The scramble for playoff positions in the Western Canada Hockey League's Western Division will probably go right down to the wire, and it's still not safe to say either Victoria Cougars, New Westminster Bruins or Seattle Breakers will wind up as the odd team out.

That left Victoria and New Westminster tied for third place, three points behind the Breakers. Seattle did what it had to do, and then some, by defeating Medicine Hat Tigers, 11-1.

The Breakers and Victoria both have two games remaining, including a head-to-head confrontation Friday in Seattle. The Cougars conclude their schedule Saturday night at Memorial Arena against Medicine Hat while Seattle's other game is against the West Division-leading Portland Winter Hawks on Thursday.

The Bruins play Medicine Hat Thursday and then wind up their campaign with a home-and-home series against Portland next Sunday and Monday.

When any and all variables are considered, including tie possibilities, it boils down to one of the most exciting finishes in WCHL history.

"In my 16 years in junior hockey," said Victoria coach Jack Shupe, "I've never seen a more exciting finish."

Victoria fans are warming up to the events. Tuesday's crowd of 3,559 — the largest mid-week turnout in three years — boosted the Memorial Arena count in the past three home games to over 10,000.

And when the Cougars decided late Tuesday to lay on an excursion to Seattle for Good Friday's all-important bout in Seattle, they had no trouble filling three buses in short order.

Had the Bruins won Tuesday, the interest in Friday's game would not have been quite as intense.

But the Cougars didn't give the Bruins a chance to damage the enthusiasm of the hometown fans. The Cats started quickly when Bill Jobson scored at the 1:19 mark, made it 4-0 after the first period and ran it to 8-0 by the midway point of the game.

The Geordie Robertson-Jobson-Bob Jansch line sparked Victoria's humming offense. Robertson scored his 58th and 59th goals and added two assists to run his point total to 129. Jobson and Jansch each connected once. Dennis Fenske, with two, Gary Lupul, Mike Shields and Sid Giroux scored the others.

John Ogrodnick struck for New Westminster's two goals within 53 seconds late in the second. Ogrodnick scored his first with the Cougars two men short and got the second just as Victoria defenceman Glen Cochrane came out of the penalty box.

The significant contribution to Victoria's assault was supplied by Lupul and Shields. Along with captain Curt Fraser, they form a line that hasn't been able to score in three previous games. The breakout was appreciated by the players as well as Shupe.

The hard-knocking game was marred by the antics of New Westminster defenceman Boris Fistric. With the Bruins trailing 4-0, Fistric made an obvious attempt to goad Robertson into a fight at the start of the second period. Robertson didn't fall for it, and Fistric was hustled off to the penalty box to watch Lupul score a power-play goal.

Fistric broke his stick and Robinson suffered a badly-bruised cheekbone. Both were tagged with five-minute fighting penalties and Fistric also took a high-sticking major.

Craig Padre Boss

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) - "This is probably the biggest shock in my entire baseball life," said Roger Craig when San Diego Padres named him to replace manager Alvin Dark. "But it is also the best shock I ever had."

The Padres fired Dark in a suprise move Tuesday, telling him the team's players felt he couldn't communicate.

Craig, a pitching coach for nearly a decade, was named interim manager when Padres vice-president Ballard Smith announced Dark's ouster. And at a later news conference, Padres owner Ray Kroc said Craig would be his manager.

The 47-year-old Craig was offered a one-year contract with undisclosed terms following San Diego's 9-8 exhibition victory over San Francisco.

"I've been a darned good pitching coach over the years," said Craig, "and I feel I can be a darn good manager, too."

Dark, 56, was stunned by the firing.

"It was such a quick thing," said Dark who had two years remaining on the contract he signed last May 30 when he succeeded John McNamara.

Under Dark, the Padres won 48 games and lost 65 last season to finish fifth in the National League West Division with an over-all mark of 69-93. Before Dark was sent packing, San Diego was 5-8 in spring exhibition games.

Players have complained that Dark was distant, called pitches from the bench and was unwilling to bend.

Craig promises he'll delegate more authority to his coaches and to turn the unhappy ball club around.

Helmet in Place, Rick in Rare Form

By The Canadian Press

Rick Martin is showing no ill effects from the concussion that almost ended his National Hockey League career last month. In fact things could hardly be better for the Buffalo Sabres left winger.

"Things are going good for me now," Martin said Tuesday night after scoring twice to help the Sabres beat Los Angeles Kings 6-2. The two scores gave him a total has six goals and four assists for 10 points in his last six games.

In other NHL games Tuesday night, Minnesota North Stars beat Pittsburgh Penguins 7-1 and Boston Bruins defeated Cleveland Barons 5-3.

Martin landed hard on the right side of his head when upended by New York Rangers defenceman Dave Farrish in a Feb. 9 game. He suffered a severe concussion and missed the next 11 games, but his return to the Sabres, with a helmet on his head, has produced pleasant results.

"I've been kind of lucky that I'm still playing," said Martin, who scored a goal just 24 seconds into his first shift back 13 days ago.

"I decided to go to a helmet last season, when a friend of mine said it saved him from serious injury."

And after Martin was injured because he wasn't wearing head protection, that reminded him of his decision. The Sabres won seven and tied one of the 11 games he missed, and have three victories and two ties in six games since he returned.

Los Angeles, meanwhile, has not been faring well.

Los Angeles has won just one of its last seven games and leads the third-place Detroit Red Wings by two points in the Norris Division race.

Jonathan has scored seven goals in his last five games, raising his total to 27 for the year. Middleton has scored in four of the last five for the Bruins, who have lost just one of their last 15 and two of their last 21.

American Fitness Surprising Swedes

By Canadian Press

Kjell Larsson, coach of an all-star Swedish team touring World Hockey Association cities, says he has noticed some startling differences between European hockey and the North American brand.

"The Americans are much stronger than we are," said Larsson. "The checking is much closer and they shoot much faster."

Larsson and his team suffered their second loss in as many appearances Tuesday night when they dropped an 8-3 decision to Houston Aeros.

In regular WHA league play Tuesday, Birmingham Bulls beat Quebec Nordiques 5-4 and New England Whalers defeated Indianapolis Racers, 6-1. (Summaries on page 20).

Houston's Don Larway scored three goals and Larry Lund added two in the romp over the visiting Swedes. Larway's third goal near the end of the second period gave the Aeros an 8-1 lead.

The Swedes, who started their tour against Indianapolis, continue with a game at New England on Saturday.

"Houston played much better against us than Indianapolis did," Larsson said. "I think this was a dirty brand of hockey. They play more with their sticks up high than European teams do."

New England's Gordie Howe, Mike Antonovich and Johnny McKenzie scored within a span of 30 seconds in the second period to clinch the victory over Indianapolis.

The three goals set a league record for the fastest scoring burst, surpassing the mark of 32 seconds set by Chicago Cougars in 1972.

Howe, who will be 50 years old next week, increased his season goal total to 39.

All-Stars Shoot For Second Win

Vancouver Island Soccer League All-Stars will be trying for two in a row while tackling Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American League in the fourth annual Victoria Cup exhibition match tonight at 7:30 in Royal Athletic Park.

The Whitecaps won the first two matches, tripping Los Angeles Aztecs in the first tussle and then downing the Island All-Stars 1-0 in the 1976 encounter.

In 1977, the All-Stars won, 1-0.

Meanwhile, George Orchison of Powell River Villas has been named to replace Dave McCaig in the All-Star lineup tonight. McCaig had prior commitments.

Spinks Has WBA Vote

PANAMA CITY (AP) — The World Boxing Association confirmed Tuesday it will continue to recognize Leon Spinks as the heavyweight champion.

"We recognize Spinks as the titleholder, and if he chooses to fight Muhammad Ali in his next match, it will not violate any of our rules," said WBA vice-president Rodrigo Sanchez.

On Saturday, the rival World Boxing Council, headquartered in Mexico City, withdrew recognition of Spinks for not complying with its edict that the first title defence be against top contender Ken Norton.

Spinks said he wanted to fight Ali, whom he defeated for the crown in February.

The WBC said it stripped Spinks of the title because he failed to honor a signed commitment to negotiate his first title defense against Norton by March 17. Norton then was declared WBC champion.

"Spinks has chosen to fight Muhammad Ali for his first title defence," Sanchez said. "Dr. Elias Cordova has sanctioned the fight. I believe it will be sometime in September."

Cordova is chairman of the WBA championship committee.

Sanchez said that under WBA rules, Spinks is required to meet the top contender within one year of the time he acquires the title.

'VICTORY AT ANY PRICE' SCORED

Tougher Stand on Brutality Urged

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Forty-one amateur hockey players in Quebec province lost their sight in one or both eyes during the 1976-77 season, while the year before 57 players were rendered blind or partially blind because of similar on-ice accidents.

This was one of the findings contained in the 350-page Neron report pertaining to hockey violence at the amateur level throughout the province.

The report, commissioned by the Quebec government at a cost of $67,772, was three years in the making and was compiled by a committee headed by Gilles Neron, a member of the physical education faculty at l'Universite de Montreal.

The French-language report, published in book form, was introduced at a news conference Tuesday by Neron accompanied by Claude Charron, minister of youth, leisure and sport. The minister said a first run of 20,000 volumes, priced at $3.75 each, will be made available to the public.

Charron said he will supply his counterparts in the nine other provinces an English-language version of the report.

In order to compile the report and arrive at the 69 recommendations contained in the volume, Neron's committee interviewed players at all amateur levels, as well as coaches, general managers, team owners, arena proprietors and parents.

Some of the recommendations may prove startling to these groups, long imbedded in the theory that "victory at any price" should prevail in amateur hockey as well as at the professional level.

For example, the report recommends that no statistical information, such as team standings and individual scoring statistics, should be kept or made public for bantam class C and below.

It also suggests that the provincial government set up a "quasi-judicial" administrative body to look into individual incidents of violence in sport.

Neron also would like the provicial justice department to modify the Civil Code articles applicable to hockey.

At the same time he would have the federal goverment modify the Criminal Code articles applicable to the game.

The report calls on the Quebec courts to be less tolerant of "brutality in sports" and the "illegal pressures" sometimes placed on young players.

The report also recommended that alcoholic beverages be banned from arenas during amateur hockey games.

Another recommendation was that the player starting a fight be expelled from the game. As well, his team should play at a numerical disadvantage for the duration of the five-minute major, as well as two additional minutes for the minor infraction, whether or not his team is scored against.

Neron also recommended that all penalty boxes be completely protected from the spectators.

MEANWHILE IN THE WBC . . .

Norton Crowning Set

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Ken Norton will be crowned World Boxing Council heavyweight champion here on Wednesday, March 29, several sports newspaper reported Tuesday.

The newspapers said Norton will arrive on March 28, accompanied by manager Bob Biron, to receive the symbolic championship belt.

Jose Sulaiman of Mexico, president of the WBC which withdrew title recognition from Leon Spinks, was not available for comment because he is on vacation. The WBC office here was closed for Easter Week.

However, a spokesman for Norton said the date was correct but that the ceremony might take place in Los Angeles.e

Sulaiman said Saturday that Spinks was avoiding the top-ranked Norton and dealing with bad faith with the WBC. Spinks is still recognized as champion by the rival World Boxing Association.

At the WBC in Madrid last November, the council ruled that the winner of the Muhammad Ali-Spinks fight must defend the title against Norton first because Ali had bypassed Norton to fight Spinks.

Roy Clark, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control and a member of the WBC executive committee, was in favar of taking the title from Spinks but felt it should have been declared vacant.

Estuary Expert Supports A Priority for Fisheries

OUTDOORS
stewart lang

"Wood products, farm products and sea products are the three basic renewable-resource industries of British Columbia. Long term preservation and enhancement of these baseline industries would seem to be a logical provincial goal and policy in the context of a world society of limited resources."

Wolf Bauer, a consulting engineer and shore-resource consultant to the provincial government, makes a good case for preserving all estuaries, including the controversial Cowichan River mouth, in a position paper which formed part of an inventory analysis of the coastline of southeastern Vancouver Island from Esquimalt to Duncan Bay.

Bauer points out that the usual conflicts between these three industries occur on "low-gradient, river-mouth estuaries where the riverine environment provides irrigated floodplain soil for farm products, food and habitats for fin and shellfish production and handy shoreline for wood products processing, storing and shipping."

"In view of the fact that these three industries are, by their nature, harvesting industries, they require the setting aside of controlled environments and ecosystems that ensure repetitive harvests, whether that be trees, crop and animal protein or fin and shellfish protein," he adds.

Unfortunately, while the primary land for both silviculture (tree production) and agriculture is protected in various ways, the estuarine habitat essential for fish and shellfish production hasn't yet been set aside for that specific purpose.

Certainly, there is a measure of protection under the new federal fisheries act. And, at the present time at least, fisheries minister Romeo LeBlanc appears ready to impliment some of the power the act gives him to protect fish-rearing habitat — even in the face of opposition from the provincial government.

In addition to the fisheries values, estuaries also provide some prime habitat for waterfowl and wildlife. These values, in turn, enhance recreational opportunities.

Bauer goes on to state:

"In the competition for space, it should be immediately apparent that the wood products industry is the one with the greatest potential or flexibility in the use of non-estuarine space for its activities.

"The sea products industries, on the other hand, have no such alternate options to create, or locate elsewhere, the fish-crop raising environments furnished only by the existing estuaries."

Thus it is only logical for the wood products industry to locate in less-sensitive areas. But nobody could ever accuse governments in general, who have the final say in matters of this sort, of being overly logical.

Further along in the paper, Bauer suggests that governments should consider all estuaries in British Columbia to be "an endangered species."

He also makes a strong case for rehabilitating some of the estuaries which have been degraded through industrial encroachment.

"As in the case of our unrestricted past use of diminishing petroleum resources with consequent current need for developing alternate and higher-cost sources of energy, so it is now too a time to conserve what few remaining estuary systems are still viable, or available for rehabilitation — even at the extra cost of subsidizing phase-out and relocation moves."

Bauer points out that every bit of the estuary can be critical to the entire system.

"Over-all estuary output may drop alarmingly with only small but critical alienation and use of functional space.

"It is therefore completely unrealistic to apply some minimum space-removal ratio to any one or all estuaries without a prior consideration of whether the remaining space can continue to support itself as an integrated system and habitat."

Or as one wag put it:

"Limited development is like limited drug addiction."

Leafs Fly In Opener

Esquimalt Maple Leafs mauled Victoria Athletics 13-2 in the opening game of the South Island Big Six Hockey League best-of-seven playoff final Tuesday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Dale Cook led the Leafs with four goals while Dale McLachlan added two and singles were contributed by Kerry Brewster, Randy Krantz, Bill Gidden, Rugs Pritchard, Bob Martin, Les Bergman and Steve Andrejkew.

John Entzminger and Brian Hamilton scored in the second period for Athletics, who trailed 6-0 after the first 20 minutes.

The second game of the series is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Thursday at Pearkes Arena.

Nicklaus On Top Of Money Pile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, a winner in two of his last four tournament appearances and runner-up in the other two, has taken the lead in the Professional Golf Association money-winning race for 1978.

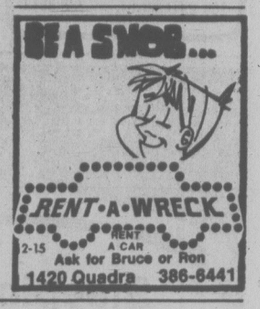
Nicklaus's latest victory, in the Tournament Players Championship which ended Sunday at Jacksonville, Fla., was worth $60,000 and increased his golf earnings for the year to $157,065.

Tom Watson, who did not make the 36-hole cut for the TPC event, dropped to second place with $103,181.

Bill Rogers is third with $74,135, followed by Hubert Green, $72,499; Hale Irwin, $60,481; Gil Morgan, $57,051; Lon Hinkle, $55,051; Ben Crenshaw, $54,918; Tom Weiskopf, $52,742, and Lou Graham, $50,223.

Dal Canton Released

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Veteran pitcher Bruce Dal Canton has been released by the American League Chicago White Sox. The White Sox said Dal Canton is free to make a deal for himself. However, if he is not signed by another baseball team, Dal Canton will be offered a job in the Chicago minor league system, the team said.



FANS Group Looks At Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The American-based consumer group FANS — Fight to Advance the Nation's Sports — is attempting to expand into Canada, Peter Gruenstein, executive-director of the group, said at a news conference Tuesday.

"What we would really like to accomplish," Gruenstein said, "is to encourage Canadians, particularly in Toronto, to start local chapters of FANS so that they can begin to work on the problems in sports that concern them, whether they are high ticket prices or problems associated with amateur sports."

"We think that fans that organize locally can have tremendous impact on a day-to-day basis."

The FANS organization was started about four months ago with assistance from American consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

Gruenstein said about 1,000 persons in New York state, the Boston area and Washington have already joined the non-profit organization.

He admitted he wasn't fully aware of all the problems in Canada, but said "we share the same leagues in baseball and hockey and obviously those problems are very similar."

Asked about response from owners and various league officials, Gruenstein said: "They wish we'd go away. I think they have responded to us very much the way they responded to the player associations 10 or 15 years ago."

"They see us as an inconvenience at best and they resent us very much because they have never been forced to consider their customers as consumers."

Glover Agrees To Terms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defensive tackle Rich Glover, once a star at the University of Nebraska, says he has agreed to terms with British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

"We've agreed on the terms, now it's just a matter of me sitting down with the head man . . . and straightening things out," Glover said in a telephone interview from Pullman, Wash.

Glover was named winner of the Outland Trophy in 1972 as the top lineman in United States college football. He failed in brief flings with various National Football League teams.

Vic Rapp, head coach of the Lions, said Glover was "the quickest college lineman I've ever seen."

Glover, 27, was an assistant coach in 1977 at Washington State University and plans to report to the b.C. training camp here May 27.

"The layoff won't hurt," said Glover. "The coaching has made me smarter and wiser."

How Your Garden Grows

Proper lawn care

From early spring until fall, your lawn needs continuous care if it is to remain green and healthy—

Spring renovation. Most lawns become compacted over the winter months, and the grass suffers from a lack of aeration. This can be remedied by punching holes in the turf with an aerator or digging fork. Next, rake to remove aerator plugs and thatch (accumulated clippings, etc.). Then, mow the lawn to improve its ragged appearance and give grass an even start.

Spring is also the time for Green Valley Dolomite Lime. Apply at the rate of 4 lbs. (1.75 kg) per 100 square feet ($9m^2$) and water in. After two weeks, apply Green Valley Super Lawn Builder 12-4-8 at 1 lb. (.45 kg) per 100 square feet ($9m^2$) and water thoroughly. In another three weeks, your lawn will be thick and healthy.

If your lawn is uneven, you may apply a top dressing of screened compost or a 50-50 mix of peat and sand. However, this is not recommended unless the lawn needs levelling. Where top dressing is over one inch deep, scratch in a little Penn-High Lawn Seed.

During the growing season. Proper watering is essential for a healthy lawn. A good soaking once a week during dry weather is recommended, ideally on a cloudy or cool day to avoid excessive evaporation. Do not sprinkle lightly, as this encourages shallow rooting. Fertilizing is also important. Three applications of Green Valley Super Lawn Builder 12-4-8—in April, July and September—will maintain healthy, thick turf. If your lawn is growing vigorously, be sure to mow often—twice a week if necessary. If using a reel type mower, remove cuttings. With a rotary mower, cuttings may be left on lawn.

Fall care. To bring your lawn through the winter in the best possible condition, apply Green Valley Winter & Spring Lawn Food 3-15-6 at the rate of 2 lbs. (.9 kg) per 100 square feet ($9m^2$). October is the month for this final step.

Curling Race Gets Tighter

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Betty Johnston of Saskatchewan dropped from sole possession of first place in the Canadian Senior Women's Curling Championship Tuesday by suffering a 9-8 loss to Ontario's Jo Wallace in the afternoon draw and then sitting out the evening draw with a bye.

Meanwhile, Hadie Manley of Alberta and Dorothy MacKenzie of Manitoba each won their games to move half a step ahead of Johnston in the standings. Alberta and Manitoba each have five wins and one loss. Saskatchewan has four wins and a loss.

The Tuesday evening round featured several decisive victories, including Quebec's 10-2 clobbering of P.E.I. that featured a five ender in the third end. P.E.I. conceded after six ends.

Alberta also scored a decisive 9-4 victory over New Brunswick in a game called after nine ends.

Ontario defeated Nova Scotia 8-4, and Manitoba defeated British Columbia 9-5. Newfoundland had the bye.

Supreme Body for World Sport To Halt Political Interference

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, has called for permanent contacts between representatives of the Olympic movement and other groups, including governments if possible, to halt political interference in sport.

At a news conference to release a manifesto on how the IOC sees its role and that of other bodies in the light of such interference, Killanin condemned "exaggerated nationalism, discrimination of all kinds, the manipulation and exploitation of athletes."

The manifesto was drawn up by the IOC's Tripartite Commission, made up of representatives of the IOC, the international federations for the various sports, and the National Olympic Committees.

Killanin said the Tripartite Commission had not yet worked out details of how or when the contacts with governments or sports bodies might take place.

A major proposal in the manifesto said the IOC was studying the possibility of forming a "supreme body for world sport" comprising representatives of the three branches which form the Tripartite Commission plus other groups involved with sport.

Killanin admitted that progress towards forming such a body "will not be very rapid," and said it would not include representatives of governments.

Asked if it could therefore be called supreme, he said: "It would be supreme as far as amateur sport is concerned."

Asked whether he did not consider the IOC's expulsion of South Africa and Rhodesia as a case of political interference in sport, Killanin said these countries were expelled "because of the political situation which prevented their National Olympic Committees from abiding by our rules."

Politics get involved in sport. This (the manifesto) is an effort to diminish bad political influence and that sport be used for political purposes," Killanin said.

As for what the manifesto might mean for the individual athlete, the IOC president said: "I hope they will have the maximum of freedom and full facilities from earliest childhood."

Stingers, Racers Hit With Fines

HARTFORD, Conn. (CP) — The World Hockey Association levied fines amounting to $17,900 and suspensions totalling 12 games Tuesday to coaches and players of Cincinnati Stingers and Indianapolis Racers for their part in bench-clearing incidents last Saturday night.

Larry Gordon, WHA executive director, said the league held a hearing Tuesday to review events of the Stingers fight-marred 4-2 victory at Cincinnati, which included 108 minutes in penalties called after an outbreak during the first period.

The resulting fines from the first and third-period bouts, Gordon said, were the largest single-game figure for a WHA game in the league's six-year history.

"I sincerely hope that both teams get the message . . .," Gordon said. "We won't allow bench-clearing incidents."

"We are serving notice immediately to all the coaches in the WHA that they will be held fully responsible for the conduct of their players whether they are on the ice or the bench. Our aim is to provide WHA fans with fast, hard and clean hockey of the highest calibre."

Cincinnati coach Jacques Demers and forward Alf Handrahan received the stiffest penalties. Demers got a five-game suspension for the next three Stingers games, their next two games against Indianapolis plus a $1,000 fine.

Handrahan was fined $1,100 and suspended for the next two Indianapolis-Cincinnati contests. Those games are scheduled for April 2 and 7 at Indianapolis.

Cincinnati left winger Butch Deadmarsh and defenceman Paul Stewart were also suspended for the April 2 game. Deadmarsh was also fined $650 while Stewart got $850.

Indianapolis coach Bill Goldsworthy was suspended for the next two Cincinnati games and received a $500 fine. Left winger Kevin Devine was suspended for the April 2 game, plus $750.

All 19 players on both clubs were fined, the smallest amount being $50. The Stingers were fined a total of $9,950 and the Racers $7,950.

Liverpool Draws Borussia

ZURICH, Switzerland (Reuter) — Defending champion Liverpool has drawn West German soccer champion Borussia Moenchengladbach in the semi-finals of the European Cup.

The first leg of the tie—a repeat of last year's final which Liverpool won 3-1—will be played in Germany March 29. The second leg is April 12. The dates are the same for other European soccer semi-finals.

The draw paired Juventus of Italy and the Belgian club Bruges in the other European Cup semi-final. Juventus is strongly fancied to become the first Italian club since 1969 to win the cup.

In the European Cup Winners' cup, the semi-final pairings are Dinamo Moscow against Austria Wien and Dutch side Twenty Enschede against Anderlecht, the Belgian club that won the competition in 1976 and was runner-up last season.

Grasshoppers Zurich of Switzerland drew French club Hastia, and PSV Eindhoven, runaway leader of the Dutch league, drew Spain's Barcelona in the European Football Union (UEFA) Cup semi-finals.

Canada Edges India

V.J. Phillips scored to give India a 1-0 lead in the 57th minute.

But Canadian skipper Alan Hobkirk tied the game two minutes later by converting a short corner, then put the Canadians ahead on another short corner conversion in the 66th minute.

Kelvin Wood sealed the win for Canada when he converted a penalty shot in the dying seconds of the match.

Hooligans Governed By Unwritten Code

LONDON (Reuter) — Hooligans at soccer matches in Britain operate under a code of unwritten rules, says a book by two Oxford University anthropologists and a London social worker.

The fans' antics, described by the press as "mindless violence," are in most cases rituals which minimize violence, say Peter Marsh, Rom Harre and Elizabeth Rosser in their book, The Rules of Disorder. (Routledge and Kegan Paul).

They based their remarks on three years of watching, interviewing and videotaping teen-agers who occupy the London Road end of the Oxford United football ground.

They dubbed the loudest terrace group the Rowdies, boys between 12 and 17 dressed in steel-toed boots, denim, team scarves and pennants.

The novices, aged about 10, watch and applaud the rowdies.

The town boys, 18 to 25, don't dress up, fight or chant but are respected by the rowdies as "tribal elders." Most were once rowdies themselves.

The chant leader is described as the rowdies' "high priest." He must be tall, loud and able to compose and lead profane chants belittling the opposition.

Top dog among the rowdies is the "aggro leader,"—the one who will lead an assault on the visiting fans.

Among the rowdies are hooligans, who have a reputation for entertaining antics. The authors explain that stealing a gum machine from a shop would not be enough to get a boy known as a "right hooligan," but stealing it and waltzing down the middle of the road with it would gain respect.

In interviewing rowdies about recent matches, the authors heard exaggerated tales of fights. Videotapes on the afternoon in question showed that nothing much happened besides a bit of pushing and shoving.

"What the soccer terraces offer is a chance to escape from the dreariness of the weekday world of work or school to something which is adventurous or stimulating," the authors write.

But for this to work, the terraces must be viewed as places of danger and uncertainty. The boys must "conspire to construct disorder."

ENGLISH SCHOOL RUGBY TEAM PLAYS AT CLAREMONT

Every Point Brought Reigate Side Closer

LONDON (CP) — Every point they scored was a step closer to Vancouver for the Reigate Grammar School rugby club which begins a seven-game British Columbia tour on Good Friday.

"The boys canvassed for sponsors who pledged to pay whatever they could for each point scored by the first XV," said Allan Brett, the father of one of the players.

"They scored 300 points in 16 games and raised 1900 pounds ($1,800)."

The 28 players and four coaches will play in New Westminster March 26, Victoria March 29, Cowichan April 2, Port Moody April 5, Kelowna April 9, and against Mountain School of Langley, April 12, leaving for home the following day.

Claremont Spartans will provide the opposition in Victoria with the game set for 4 p.m. at Claremont. The Cowichan under-19 squad will be host for the April 2 game in Duncan.

It will be a return tour for the club which visited B.C. in 1975 on the school's 300th anniversary, an occasion upon which they walloped the opposition.

The basic cost of the tour this time is 17,500 pounds ($15,000). Parents contributed a total of 14,000 pounds.

The rest came from "rummage sales, discos, auctions, and two barn dances," Brett said.

"None of us had ever seen a barn dance but we got a group to put them on and they turned out to be the most popular event we held."

Reigate Grammar School, just south of London, has an enrolment of 850 boys and "a handful of girls."

The school, one of the top preparatory schools for Oxford and Cambridge, has an intensive sports program.

SITMAR CARIBBEAN

3 PEOPLE CRUISE FOR THE PRICE OF 2!

Now a Sitmar 10 or 11-day Caribbean cruise is one of the most exciting vacation values going. Because starting June 24 through August 16, all third berth passengers in double cabins will cruise free! And that means 3 people can enjoy the Sitmar Experience for the price of 2 adults. Sitmar's incomparable Air/Sea Program offers substantial savings on air fare. What's more, you'll fly round trip to board ship in Fort Lauderdale aboard a regularly scheduled airline. So you can stop over after your cruise for shopping or sightseeing. There are a few conditions, which we'll be glad to explain. You'll sail aboard the magnificent Liberian-registered T.S.S. Fairwind — one of the most spacious ships cruising to the Caribbean. And you'll be pampered by Sitmar's warm Italian crew. Take advantage of one of the best vaction values of your life. Ask us about Sitmar's "3 for 2" summer Caribbean. cruises. We know.

Travel Firm Opens New Office in Victoria's Harbour Square.

Canada's Largest Travel Agency has now opened a new office in the lower mall of Harbour Square, the building between Government and Wharf Streets in Victoria. Offering complete travel advisory and booking services to lower Vancouver Islanders, manager Bob Beecher is justifiably proud of his new premises, and invites all his previous customers and friends as well as potential ones to drop in and see them in their new spot!

Experienced travel consultants, knowledgeable, and helpful, are always ready to exchange ideas and to help you plan your trip, whether it's a short business sojourn or an extended holiday. People travel for many reasons, and whether it's a necessity or for pleasure, careful planning and reliable information can make the best use of your time and money.

P. Lawson Travel was founded in 1931 in Calgary. It was the first travel bureau opened in Alberta.

Originally it was a one-man operation, selling mainly steamship tickets to Europe. After World War II, of course, air travel became much more popular as did travel in general, and the company rapidly expanded until in 1957 there were six employees and this growth has continued so that the firm now has 70 offices from Victoria to Halifax.

In their new offices the P. Lawson Travel staff of expert travel consultants welcomes customers to a world of special services. There is no extra charge to the customer for these services. The firm is paid by the airlines, hotels, and other tourist related firms for their services. Travel agencies are established as a convenience for their customers who are able to complete all travel and holiday details at one time.

GYPSIES STAY PUT, MOTEL TAB UNPAID

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 32-member gypsy band, recently denied refugee status in Canada, is still being housed in a local motel and their bill — rising to more than $2,100 Tuesday — still has not been paid.

The group has said it has no money to pay the bill.

Sukchail Gill, owner of the Deluxe Motel, said police told her to hire a lawyer because they can't evict the gypsies without a court order.

Meanwhile Bill Vander Zalm, British Columbia's human resources minister, said he has been trying for two days to contact Immigration Minister Bud Cullen to discuss the matter.

"The feds let them into the country so it's their responsibility to look after them," said Vander Zalm.

The human resources ministry cut off aid to the group a week and a half ago and the federal government has not agreed to provide financial assistance.

The gypsies, members of the Sadinovios and Petrov families, originally from Yugoslavia, arrived here March 6 in five cars after travelling from Montreal via the United States. The group includes 15 children under age 10, a pregnant woman and a 61-year-old man with a heart condition.

The federal government last week turned down the group's August, 1977, application for refugee status in Canada. The department said the group will be "advised in due course of the time and place of further action."

An immigration department spokesman said a department inquiry will be held shortly to decide if the gypsies entered Canada legally. Most of them arrived in Montreal from France two years ago.

The gysies turned down an offer from Emilio Pirro Tuesday to live on his five-acre farm at nearby Maple Ridge.

"My conditions were stay away from the neighbors, no stealing, no scams, no shenanigans," said Pirro, a Montreal-born gypsy and retired scrap dealer.

Pirro said he also told them they would have to help fix up the cabins and that he would help them establish their own scrap business so they could become self-supporting.

"But my cabins weren't fancy enough for them," he said.

Crippled Ship In Port

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The 193-metre Adriatik arrived at the Fairview Docks Tuesday night and a spokesman aboard the wheat-laden vessel said it likely will remain here two or three days while damage to the hull is assessed.

The Panamanian-regisered freighter had faced high seas and winds during the last few days after leaving here with wheat bound for China.

A ship's spokesman, who did not wish to be identified, said there was water in the third hold — one of seven holds laden with wheat — but that the hold hadn't burst from the water-swollen grain.

He said it is suspected there is water between the walls of the ship's hull and the vessel is consequently bow-heavy because the third hold is near the front.

The spokesman said that once divers assess the damage, the ship probably will go to Vancouver or Victoria for repairs.

Cut-Rate Night Flight Beef

VANCOUVER (CP) — The general manager of Vancouver International Airport wants Air Canada to call off late-night good-neighbor flights to the rest of the country because they violate a gentleman's agreement.

Lorne Howell said Tuesday he has written to Air Canada asking them to cancel their "Nighthawk Flights" — special discount trips flown late at night to encourage Canadians to keep tourist dollars at home — because the take-offs could endanger the peaceful sleep of airport neighbors.

The gentleman's agreement to set an unofficial ban on flights between midnight and 7 a.m. was reached several years ago by the airport management and the airlines, Howell said.

"All of the airlines have pretty well adhered to it," Howell said.

But now Air Canada wants to start the cut-rate "Nighthawk Flights" out of Vancouver to the east. Twice a week beginning in June, the flights will roar out of town at 1:30 a.m.

The Nighthawks are part of Air Canada's "Share Canada Program," which is in turn part of the federal government's plan to keep tourists at home.

The idea is to offer air rates so low that tourists will be persuaded to take their vacations in Canada, giving their travel dollars to Canadians.

Howell said he has sent a letter to Air Canada "strongly advising" the airline to run their Nighthawks on a schedule more in keeping with the convenience of those who like to sleep at night.

"We can only say that we're protecting the interests of the residents here," Howell said. "If its our headquarters' position that they're prepared to violate these curfews for this, we'll have to go along.

"At the moment we've received no direction."

Air Canada spokesman Al Cameron said that the airline's response is on its way to Howell, but he would not reveal the letter's contents before Howell sees it.

Meanwhile, a transport ministry committee is scheduled to meet next Wednesday to decide whether the company's nighthawk flights will get off the ground.

The airline's summer schedule must go before the airport's three-member noise abatement committee composed of Howell, regional transport ministry controller Darrell Smith, and Don Mills, MoT superintendent of airways.

Union Charges BCR

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The Canadian Union of Transportation Employees has called on Manpower Minister Bud Cullen to investigate what the union terms deliberate abuse of a Canada Manpower training program by the British Columbia Railway.

Ernie Dermody, president of CUTE Local 1, said in a letter to Cullen released Monday that the railway has "hundreds of thousands of dollars of federal government funds to train employees who are now mostly unemployed."

He asked Cullen to conduct an inquiry and make BCR repay the federal funds.

Demody said that in 1974 and 1975 the BCR offer to train trainmen to become locomotive engineers.

About 40 trainmen enrolled in the program and they were told they would have year-round employment, Dermody said.

He explained the company forced the men to give up their trainmen's seniority and after the training was completed most of the new locomotive engineers found themselves increasingly unemployed.

"BCR did not live up to its part of the bargain," Dermody said.

He also said the railway used the program to create a pool of skilled workers for which it had no corporate responsibility and on which it could draw any time it wanted.

"Had these men remained trainmen they would not be unemployed," Dermody said. "Now they are drawing unemployment insurance in increasing numbers."

GROUP HOMES UNPRODUCTIVE

SURREY (CP) — Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said the province opposes putting juveniles into group homes because the youths concerned come out as "educated juveniles."

Vander Zalm told members of Surrey council that his ministry hasn't found the group home system very productive, partly because of expense.

Vander Zalm said no new group homes will be established because "we're gearing the programs towards leaving them in their own home.

If that fails, juveniles will be placed in foster homes and, if necessary, in a treatment centre, the minister said.

Logging Near Park Opposed

FERNIE (CP) — If the Akamina-Kishinena Valley just west of Waterton Lakes National Park is logged, "you can kiss the last piece of wilderness in southeast British Columbia goodbye," author-naturalist Andy Russell said Monday.

Russell told a public meeting that the valley, under consideration for logging during the next three summers, has unmatched geological features, beautiful lakes, outstanding wildlife potential and unique archeological features.

The B.C. forest service says beetle-infested pine in the area must be logged within two years if its commercial value is to be retained.

Dave Lewis, forester with Crow's Nest Industries, told the audience: "We are not going to destroy the area."

Code Challenged By Security Firm

VANCOUVER (CP) — Private security firms should be excluded from Human Rights Code provisions which prohibit an employer from asking an applicant's place of origin on job application forms, says the president of a rent-a-guard company.

Randolph Sterzer, head of A. A. A. Rentagard Canada Ltd., was appearing before a British Columbia human rights branch board of inquiry into alleged infractions of the code.

B.C. branch director Kathleen Ruff is the complainant in the action in which Sterzer's firm is accused of contravening the code by using employment application forms which ask into the place of origin of the applicant, as well as the place of origin of the applicant's spouse.

The test case of the code was brought after the company refused requests to delete the questions, saying they were necessary by nature of the security business.

Sterzer said that not only do other security firms ask the same questions, but so do RCMP forms used under the Private Investigators Licensing Act.

Sterzer challenged Ruff to give any instance where his firm had denied employment to any applicant because of the questions on his firm's form.

Sterzer said every person he employs has to be bonded and he must determine that the applicant has no previous criminal record.

This meant going back to the police in an applicant's country of origin, he said, and "we ask for maiden names because, under the maiden name, there could have been a criminal record somewhere down the line."

John Hall, counsel for the human rights branch, said the inquiry must consider the wording of the statute under which the complaint was brought.

Prof. Leon Getz, sitting as a one-member board of inquiry, told Sterzer he understood the argument he was making for exclusion, but "this is not the place to make this argument."

Getz reserved decision.

Program Go-Ahead

RICHMOND (CP) — Richmond school board voted Monday to go ahead with implementation of a French immersion program, chairman Alex Waterton said.

Waterton said the program, which will get underway in September, will start at the kindergarten and Grade 1 levels and will cost about $192,000 for 170 students.

He said the program, which is voluntary, has already attracted about 180 interested students.

Waterton said funding will come mostly from the provincial and federal governments on a cost-sharing basis. He said two funds will provide a total of $184,660.

As long as funding is available, Waterton said, the program will be expanded regularly, with an additional grade being added each year starting with Grade 2 in 1979.

Penticton Backs Milfoil Control Plan

PENTICTON (CP) — City council voted Monday to endorse the provincial government's 1978 program to control Eurasian milfoil weed in the Okanagan Lake system with both mechanical harvesters and the herbicide 2,4-D.

Council passed the motion by a 5-1 vote after Alderman Rod Barrett said the city should oppose the use of 2,4-D until there is absolute proof that it is not a health hazard.

Barrett said council should back up Kelowna city council's demand that the provincial government provide an unconditional assurance that the chemical is not hazardous to public health.

Mayor K. A. Kenyon told council the chemical has been found safe in the limited quantities planned for the 1978 program.

"Those quantities are in minute and restricted areas," he said.

The debate was sparked by a letter from Environment Minister Jim Nielsen outlining this year's program. Nielsen said the program will aim to prevent the spread of the weed to unaffected areas, to eradicate the plant in Osoyoos and Kalamalka Lakes, and to control and reduce its growth in public beach areas.

Nielsen said the program will use mechanical methods as much as possible.

Penticton has applied for an eradication program in six areas on Okanagan Lake and in nearby waters close to marina and tourist facilities. The city has left it up to the government to decide the method of eradication.

End of Appeal Trail

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city policeman convicted of assaulting an undercover RCMP officer faces an internal investigation by the police department now that he has exhausted judicial appeals.

Michael Thomas Carpenter, 34, was suspended indefinitely without pay following provincial court conviction July 14, 1977, of common assault. He was fined $800 for the beating of RCMP Const. Barry Milewski the previous April. He lost an appeal to the British Columbia Appeal Court and Monday the Supreme Court of Canada refused to hear an appeal.

Deputy chief Const. Tom Dixon said Monday an internal investigation by the police department will go ahead now that appeal proceedings have been completed.

He said the investigation, to be held in camera, is expected to decide within the next few weeks whether Carpenter will be disciplined and, if so, what form the discipline will take.

Meanwhile, he said, Carpenter will remain suspended without pay.

The incident occurred when Milewski was stopped for jaywalking by Carpenter and city police Const. Mervin Douglas Morrison.

Morrison, 31, was fined $700 for assault causing bodily harm in the beating and has resigned from the force.

FLUORIDE USE ENDING

CAMPBELL RIVER(CP) — The Greater Campbell River Water Board has decided to discontinue the use of fluoride in its water system on April 1.

The board decided that since there is no record of a referendum on the issue ever having been held, the use of the chemical might be illegal.

The decision has come under criticism by municipal officials who say a referendum was held in 1958.

Bargaining Body Okayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C.'s 17 construction industry trade unions reached agreement in principle Tuesday on a constitution for a bargaining council to deal with the Construction Labor Relations Association which represents the contractors.

"Not all unions were able to agree at the meeting and have to go back to their membership for approval," said Roy Gauthier, secretary-treasurer of the B.C.-Yukon Building Trades Council.

"I think we should be in a position to start negotiations with the industry by the third week in April."

Paul Weiler, chairman of the B.C. Labor Relations Board, earlier this month sent a draft constitution to the unions in a final attempt to get them together.

The LRB earlier ruled that collective bargaining with the industry must be carried out jointly, beginning with negotiations scheduled for April.

The unions had been split into two groups. Nine of them, led by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, supported a common front industry bargaining structure, which would carry out complete joint bargaining and be part of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council.

Six unions headed by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, favored a construction union bargaining council, a loosely-controlled organization dedicated to bargaining only key issues.

Weiler and vice-chairman Ed Peck, who assisted in discussions with the unions, recommended that a bargaining council be formed separately under the administrative auspices of the existing trades council to negotiate common issues.

Go Bananas Over Muffins

By MARY MOORE

It is like bringing an apple to the teacher when I give you new muffin recipes. It is a sure way to win your good favor for good behavior.

My guess is that the big supermarket chains have some secret communication system whereby one of them has bananas on "special" in alternate weeks. When they do I notice there is a tremendous display early Thursday but they are all gone by Saturday closing time.

Bananas are popular and good for us. Remember they contain that valuable mineral potassium.

BANANA OATMEAL MUFFINS
(20 to 22 large)

1 c. rolled oats
1 c. milk
2 c. unsifted all-purpose flour
½ c. granulated sugar
5 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ c. margarine, melted and cooled to lukewarm
2 eggs
2 tsp. vanilla
2 c. mashed ripe bananas (approximately 4 to 5 medium)

In a medium bowl combine oats and milk and set aside until needed.

In a large bowl mix together flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg.

To the soaked oats mixture stir in the melted margarine, eggs, vanilla and bananas. Add this wet mixture to the dry ingredients and stir only until all flour is blended in. Line your muffin pans with large paper cup cake liners and spoon batter in to ⅔ full. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 20 to 22 minutes or until cake tester inserted in centre comes out clean. Yields 20 to 22 large muffins.

Mrs. Moore has asked the Times to apologize for inadvertently leaving out the words "with one-quarter cup sugar" in last Wednesday's recipe for St. Patrick's Mint Pie. The section referred to should read as follows: Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in softly-set custard. Beat cream until stiff with one-quarter cup sugar and fold in.

DIET TREATS BRAIN, RESEARCHER FINDS

TORONTO (CP) — A professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology said today that within five to 10 years physicians will be able to use nutrition instead of drugs in the treatment of diseases and disorders of the brain.

Dr. Richard Wurtman told doctors, educationists and experts in the field of nutrition at a symposium that recent findings show that diet-induced changes "have important physiological effects on such brain functions as sleep, food consumption, pain sensitivity and hormone secretion."

"Until we did this work, everybody, myself included, have told you that the brain regulates its own business and that the brain is so important that it gets whatever it needs from circulation," he said.

But he said the hour-by-hour dependence of the brain on the level of nutrients in the blood is a "very great exception;" since scientists assumed the brain got first pick of the body's nutrients because it was true for glucose, oxygen and heat.

Dr. Wurtman said he could not say why nature had allowed something as important as the brain to be vulnerable to nutrient blood levels.

But he added physicians and scientists can take advantage of the phenomena in many ways.

"A previously untreatable neurological disease has been treated by using lecithin for its effects on the nerves and it will probably have numerous other uses as well"

Dr. Morris A. Lipton of the department of psychiatry at the University of North Carolina told the seminar he disputed the findings of recent studies of the effects of food coloring on hyperactive children.

Dr. Lipton said that food colorings do not generally make children "hyper."

He was responding to claims made by Dr. Benjamin Feingold, a California pediatric allergist, who said that at least 40 per cent of children with hyperactivity and learning disabilities improved noticeably when coloring agents were removed from their diets.

Dr. Lipton said that "Dr. Feingold has continued to repeat and even enlarge his claims and has generated considerable support in the form of parent self-help groups."

Dr. Lipton, chairman of the United States advisory committee on hyperkinesis and food additives, said that some pre-school children with the hyperactivity syndrome respond to food-coloring agents with increased irritability and distractability. He said the symptoms appear within an hour of ingesting the food additives and last for about two hours.

"It raises the possibility that food coloring agents may not be entirely innocuous," he said. "However, no data has been presented to suggest the need for major changes in food manufacturing and labelling."

Dr. Lipton said that in tests children were fed additives in cookies.

At some points they were on standard medication for hyperactivity while at other times they took no such medication.

Parents said their children changed most when they took the additives while on medication, he said. However, teachers noticed the effects most when their young pupils were off the medication.

Because of the experiment's inconclusive results, Dr. Lipton called for continued research.

"At this time we can't be certain that food additives are utterly devoid of adverse effects in all children of all ages," he said.

Balanced Diet Key to Sports Success

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

DEAR RUTH AND ZAK:

Soon, I'll be starting on a three-month training schedule which will hopefully have me prepared for the National Marathon.

I am averaging four-six miles a day now, but the climax of the schedule will have me running up to 20 miles a day.

T.H.B.—Dorchester, Ont.

DEAR T.H.B.:

There is so much mythology about diets for athletes. Claims are made for everything from vitamin E pills to 16-ounce steaks. The truth of the matter is that the athlete like everyone else, must eat a balanced diet. However, since athletic performance makes great demand on energy expenditure, it is important to have more calories. There is also increased demand on the B vitamins since these are needed for the body to release energy from the food. In addition, iron has to be in the diet in adequate amounts.

Let us see what this means in terms of food and diet: The needed calories will go for muscle work. Muscles prefer carbohydrates as a source of energy. The favored carbohydrate is starch. This means eating more foods like bread, rolls, muffins, macaroni, spaghetti, rice, potatoes, more vegetables and fruits. Many of these foods will supply you with B vitamins, iron and more.

eating right

If it makes you feel better to have a vitamin and mineral supplement, pick one that contains thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, pyridoxine, folic acid, vitamins B12, E and C as well as iron and other minerals. It is more important that the supplement has a large variety and low amounts of these vitamins and minerals. Do not go for vitamin-mineral tablets that are labelled "For Therapeutic Use". This means that they contain very high levels of certain vitamins and minerals and will tend to throw your diet out of nutritional balance.

Of course, it is vital to recognize that you lose a great deal of your body water during exercise. Drink water as often as you need. Never restrict your intake of water before and after your runs.

Certainly eat and drink as much as you need, as long as you don't gain weight during training. Chances are you wouldn't, if you eat right.

DEAR RUTH AND ZAK:

I have been told that adding chocolate powder to milk destroys the calcium in the milk. Although I only add it occasionally to my child's milk, I would be interested in knowing if in fact it destroys the milk calcium.

A.W.—Vancouver

DEAR A.W.:

Milk has so much calcium and the amount that the chocolate pwder might bind is so minute that it is not correct to refer to it as destruction of calcium in chocolate milk. There is no destruction of calcium, to speak of, from adding chocolate to milk.

It is the sugar in the chocolate preparation that you need to worry about. Most of these preparations contain high levels of sugar, more than is needed to cover the bitter aftertaste of choclate. It would be more reasonable, if you were to add a chocolate preparation to your child's milk, to use one that contains no sugar and meter out only enough sugar to cover the bitter chocolate flavor.

Foiled by Anger

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — An anonymous caller made a hoax call to police about a bomb in a large store. Suspecting a hoax, the officer treated it with coolness, whereupon the caller became angry and said he wanted to complain about the policeman's attitude. He was asked for his name so the complaint could be passed on—and gave it.

Baked Casserole for Easter

For one of your Easter meals this year enjoy a flavorful baked casserole with your choice of fresh green vegetables and quickly-made fruit pie. A leafy green salad will add the spring touch.

Both recipes allow for substituting other main ingredients according to what is most available, yet the total nutrition values are but little changed if the general suggestions are taken.

The casserole I call Cheese Squash Casserole, a lovely combination if you have winter squash or pumpkin, or need to buy a chunk of Hubbard Squash. Substitute yellow turnip or carrot. Use a mixture of these vegetables if desired, though separately each gives a distinctive flavor.

CHEESE SQUASH CASSEROLE

- 3 cups winter squash, cubed, raw; or see substitutes above.
- 1 small onion
- ½ cup mild or medium Cheddar cheese
- 1½ cups soft wholewheat bread crumbs
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. dried herbs, include rosemary
- 2 small eggs beaten
- ½ cup ground peanuts
- 1 Tbsp. softened margarine
- 2 Tbsp. wheat germ
- 2 Tbsp. very soft margarine

Grind squash cubes (or substituted vegetables) in Mouli hand grinder, with onion, cheese and bread (include crust).

Mix in salt, herbs, nuts, beaten eggs and 1 Tbsp. softened margarine. Spoon into greased casserole. Top with wheat germ and dribble with 2 Tbsp. very soft margarine.

Bake in moderate oven 177 deg. C. for about 30 minutes until browned. Serves 4 with a cooked green begetable — broccoli, spinach, Swiss chard, green cabbage, kale or young turnip greens.

For one person, halve ingredients, bake in a smaller casserole; use half while hot the first day. The second half will be a different dish next day, sliced cold with a green salad and wholewheat bread or homemade buns.

The second recipe is also adjustable. Cranberries were chosen because they may be a "left over" in the freezer that should be used now at the tail-end of winter. Or you may have frozen raspberries or blackberries, either of these will make a special kind of pie together with the few raisins to take the place of some of the sugar.

CRANBERRY AND RAISIN PIE

- 1 cup whole cranberries (frozen)
  OR 1½ cups raspberries or blacks (frozen)
- ½ cup raisins chopped on board
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ½ tsp. dried angelica leaf
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- ¾ cup water
- 1 Tbsp. (heaping) flour
- 1 Tbsp. soft margarine.

Boil all ingeredients except margarine, together, until thickening, stirring frequently. Simmer gently for 15 minutes. Allow to cool in cold place while making pastry.

Single 9-inch crust pastry with top strips:

- 1¼ cups unbleached flour
- 1 Tbsp. wheat germ
- ¼ tsp. baking powder
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 1 Tbsp. skim milk powder
- 3 Tbsp soft margarine
- 1 small egg
  Cold water.

Sift dry ingredients together into bowl. Cut in margarine with two knives until mixture is crumbly.

Beat egg in a cup with a little of the cold water. Dribble over crumbly mixture, working the dough into a ball. Add only enough water gradually to make dough stick together.

Mould into a ball with greased fingers.

Turn on to a lightly-floured wax paper; roll out fairly thinly to fit a 9-inch pie plate with spare pieces left for top.

Line pie plate; fill with cooled fruit mixture. Take surplus dough and roll into thin round ropes, laying pieces across top of pie to form an open lattice. Anchor by pressing pieces lightly to under-crust on each end.

Bake in moderate oven 177 deg. C. for half an hour. Cool before serving.

Notice both these dishes need the same oven temperature for same length of time and therefore are perfect oven companions.

Meanwhile the green vegetable (and others if desired) is prepared, to cook in the last few minutes before serving the meal. The pie can be put into a cool porch to cool.

Now for a quick rundown for making plain low-fat yogurt at home. Make it often enough and you need no recipe but until then, keep the directions handy for making this economical instant food at any time.

Yogurt keeps well for 5 days in refrigerator in glass jars. Make a fresh batch every fifth day from the last jar before it is emptied.

PLAIN LOW-FAT YOGURT

- 1½ cups skim milk powder
- 3 cups warm water
- 1 cup evaporated milk (small can, with rinsings to make up 1 cup)
- 4 Tbsp. yogurt from last batch, or from store bought.

Beat all together with wire whisk; pour into three glass jars having screw-top lids. Stand jars on wire rack in saucepan having tight fitting lid.

Have warm water halfway up jars. Place pan over low heat to maintain water temperature of 35 deg. C. (95 deg. F.) for about 2 hours. By testing the outside feel of the pan frequently with the hands you soon become familiar with the warmth needed for the yogurt culture to work. It must be neither too hot nor too cool.

At two hours, tilt a jar to see if contents have thickened. If so, it is done; if not, leave for another half-hour.

When thickened, remove from heat at once. Remove jars, place lids, and put into refrigerator to chill immediately.

Camping Stoves Work Wonders

tiny bennett

A big show in my area was Quarterama 1978, a quarter horse show this month at Exhibition Park in Toronto. One is bound for your district before long.

There will be about 2,000 of these shows in Canada and the U.S. this year, but the point that grabbed my imagination is that most of the people camp in trailers while attending and do all their cooking under camping conditions.

Most of us get so used to our efficient kitchen stoves, with electricity or gas, that a two-burner camp stove, usually burning propane, seems inadequate by comparison.

Yet camping by trailer is growing at such pace that many thousands of cooks head onto the highway on summer weekends with just that small stove for the family cooking.

That's half the normal number of rings, and no oven.

Being an avid camper-cook, I've used two-burner propane stoves for so many years that I feel quite comfortable with them, and have modified a technique that makes cooking a meal quite a simple matter.

Take, for example, a breakfast of tea or coffee, toast and eggs and bacon.

The hot drink is prepared on one ring and when ready is put at the back of the stove to mature. In place of the pot I put a camper's toaster, a folding wire-frame unit that handles four slices of bread at a time — these units are available at all camping supply stores and are reasonable in price.

While the bread toasts — you have to turn it over when the inside is done — I put my sheet steel skillet on the other burner, fry the bacon and pour away the fat, and with the bacon heaped to one side of the skillet fry the eggs. Getting into a good pattern, one can serve eggs — bacon and hot tea and toast without a wasted motion.

Then there are accessory hot plates that fit on top of the two propane or white gas burners and give extra cooking space for eggs, bacon, sausages and, most especially, hotcakes and breakfast pancakes. Most of these invaluable hot plates need to be seasoned first — just get them hot, wipe with oil and repeat.

In the next couple of weeks the big outdoors shows will be on all across Canada and hundreds of people will be buying trailers and camping gear, so it is a good time to think seriously about the cooking equipment on display at the shows. Don't be fooled into buying costly setups — you will be surprised at how well one can make out on those compact two-burner units.

Two years ago I taught a cooking class and since the stove at the school was against the wall, I used my propane two-burner for 90-odd per cent of all the cooking — including four dishes of Chinese food, including rice.

On just one burner I cooked a super beef stew with red wine, and such one-pot dishes as lamb casserole with white beans, mushrooms, onions and carrots, and chili with chunks of tender beef. You can plan ahead for such one-pot dishes and reap the joys of knowing they can cook themselves while you relax.

Most campers, myself included, really enjoy cooking over an open fire, but there are rules to this, too — like getting hold of a grill that can be fixed firmly on top of the fire. I've seen such items in the camping stores. However if you know where there is a discarded stove, the oven racks are ideal and very strong.

Probably the most important rule is to work with a fairly small wood fire — it takes less fuel and doesn't scorch the face and arms. I build a base of heavy, thick logs and put the cook fire on top to raise to a good cooking height — and you cook on glowing embers, not dancing flames.

In some areas fires are forbidden during dry spells, so be prepared to revert back to the stove.

A barbecue in camp is a feast of enjoyment for all and if you are sure of yourself, this can be done over an open fire. But take a look at the new, folding barbecue units that are little more than a big sheet iron dish on folding tripod legs. With a bag of brickettes and some solid fuel starter, you have an outfit that can handle everything from a big sirloin steak, to burgers or hotdogs.

Naturally with all this you are going to need a set of long-handled kitchen tools AND heat resistant kitchen gloves.

Later in the year I'll deal with barbecue and open-fire cooking, but meanwhile I have written this in the knowledge that this is the time of the year when most of the big camping gear is bought. Look it over well, and keep an eye open for the accessories I've mentioned.

GUIDES HIT

TORONTO (CP)— A nutritional scientist, who co-ordiinated food and nutrition programs for the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), said today that food guides such as those drawn up by the Canadian government "do not come to grips with the nutritional needs of today's society."

Dr. Paul A. Lachance of Rutgers University in New Jersey told a nutrition symposium he "sincerely believes that nutrition education without food education has little hope for success."

"How does a food guide come to grips with practices such as (eating) a baked potato topped with butter and sour cream or salads topped with mucho salad dressing, potato chips used as an equal substitute for potatoes or vegetables at a meal?"

Dr. Lachance said that the issue is not the lack of an available supply of food or an effective distribution system.

"The issue is food practices," he said. "A food guide which says that food selected according to the guide can supply 1,000-1,400 calories promotes obesity.

"It provides the comfortable feeling that there is room for extra.

"Consumers can count calories and see the effect in the mirror but they don't know the nutrient density of foods and how to fit fun foods into their daily food intake."

Dr. Lachance said that the Canadian food guide doesn't make it clear that meat is not essential every day "in our interest to promote a certain nutrient intake such as calcium."

"We have avoided ruffling feathers by not distinquishing between foods within a food group.

Where you store fresh meat in the fridge determines how long it will stay fresh. The coldest spot is usually the top shelf, which should be 32 degrees. Set a paper cup full of water on the shelf. If the water freezes, you know it's 32 degrees or lower. meat freezes at around 28 degrees. Also, defrosting frozen meat on that shelf will take longer, but it will stay fresh longer if you can't use it within a couple of days and need to refreeze it.

Why limit your slow-cooking crockery pot to stews, soups, sauces? Your pot can "bake" a ham or turkey roll, cook cheese fondues, warm rolls, make steaming hot buttered rum or spiced cider. And the cost to use the slow cooker is usually much less than the cost of using your electric or gas range.

Plastic wrap or foil doesn't always prevent a chunk of cheese from drying out. But paraffin can. Dip the cut cheese in melted paraffin then wrap it in plastic wrap or foil.

dear abby

Troubles, Troubles

DEAR ABBY: Boy, I have so many problems I hardly know where to begin. Right now my two sons, ages 8 and 10, are fighting, chasing each other through the house and screaming so loud I'm ready to knock their heads together!

This morning my husband told me he promised the guys at work he'd open the fishing season with them, which means he'll be gone next weekend. (He forgot that Saturday is our anniversary.)

Our 17-year-old daughter came home from her date an hour later than her curfew, and I was half crazy worrying about her.

Maybe I shouldn't complain about my boys. My neighbor has two the ages of mine — one in a wheelchair and will never walk, and the other is a deaf mute.

About my husband: I suppose I should thank God he's able to go fishing. My sister's husband died of cancer six months ago, and they'll never celebrate another anniversay together.

And my daughter is really a good girl. She's well-behaved and popular, and this is the first time she's ever come home later than she promised.

After writing this I realize that my problems aren't really as bad as I though they were, but I think I'll mail it anyway. Some folks only think they've got serious problems until they look at somebody else's.

LUCKIER THAN MOST

DEAR LUCKIER: I'm glad you mailed it. I'm sure a lot of people will be better able to face their problems today because of your letter.

DEAR ABBY: We are from the West Coast and we're quite friendly with two couples who are from the East Coast. When we dine out together, my husband always asks the waiter for separate cheques.

Our Eastern friends say they don't do it that way where they come from. They say they have everything put on one cheque and settle up afterward by splitting the bill three ways.

My husband and I don't drink, but the other couples always have a cocktail (sometimes two) before dinner. They also have an after-dinner drink.

Is this fair? How do you think this should be handled?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Exactly the way your husband has been handling it. And if your Eastern friends complain, tell them they aren't where they came from.

Something New at the Zoo

TORONTO (CP) — In a secluded area of the Metropolitan Toronto Zoo there is a one-storey building that blends into the rolling hills.

Inside is a modern, well-equipped hospital whose patients run the gamut from garter snakes to gorillas.

Like most modern zoo hospitals in North America, this one is contributing both to the well-being of the animals on display and to the general knowledge of the world's wild species.

Health care for animals at Metro Zoo begins as soon as they arrive, with a stay in quarantine. While there, they are examined and observed for any signs of illness, vaccinated against domestic diseases and treated for internal and external parasites.

The preventive medicine program continues after the animals are on display. Keepers are trained to observe behavior and recognize signs of illness. Regular parasite checks are carried out. Blood tests, worming and trimming of nails, hooves and beaks are done whenever animals have to be handled for any reason.

Nutrition is carefully evaluated and diets organized to meet both physical and psychological requirements. Some animals like to find their food, some like to rip it up and some like food they can sit and gnaw on for a while.

"Animals often come in for treatment because they are at the bottom of a pecking order and have been injured by those above them," said Dr. Bill Rapley, one of the zoo's two full-time veterinarians.

Sometimes the relationships of animals in a group change, as in the breeding season, and there are fights. Occasionally there are other injuries and digestive upsets. Respiratory ailments are common.

Veterinarians cannot generalize from one species to another nor can they specialize in one animal. So zoo medicine depends on a computerized data bank to which all zoos contribute and from which all may draw.

"Zoo medicine is a relatively new field," Dr. Rapley said. "In the last 15 years we have developed many new techniques for handling wild animals and the published data have grown enormously."

There are are only a few places a veterinarian can go to get training in zoo medicine. There are formal internships at the San Diego Zoo, the National Zoo in Washington, the St. Louis Zoo and the Bronx Zoo.

The vocation is a limited one. There are only 40 full-time zoo veterinarians in North America, although hundreds work with wild animals part-time.

HORNCHURCH, England (CP) — A card on the notice board of a Norfolk golf club read: Last week my husband played the best round of golf he has ever played. If by chance there are any members who have not heard about it they should ring . . . for a stroke-by-stroke account of it.

your health

BY L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I'm in the middle of my second pregnancy. For the second time, I'm made miserable by a blocked and congested nose. In between pregnancies, I have never had these symptoms. I've never known anyone else who has had this, yet I wonder if my stuffy nose could be related to my pregnancy. — Mrs. T.E.O.

Dear Mrs. O.:

Congestion and blockage of the nose does occur fairly often after the third month of pregnancy. This is referred to as the "naso-genital" relationship. Sneezing, occasional nose bleed and symptoms that usually suggest an allergic reaction are associated with this temporary imbalance of the hormone system.

Fortunately, the distress of persistent nasal congestion disappears almost immediately after the baby is born.

In an effort to provide better breathing, there is a tendency to use and overuse nose drops (vaso-constrictors). A greater and greater dependence on these drugs can result in complete blockage of the nasal passage. There are some mild solutions that do not carry with them the "rebound" effect so noticeable with the nose drops that contain ephedrine or cortisone. "Rebound" is the secondary reaction of swelling of the lining of the nose to the overuse of these drugs. It's an unfortunate cycle. As more and more drops are used, more blockage results after the first few moments of clear breathing.

When I get a bloated feeling after a heavy meal I sometimes take some baking soda and mix it with club soda. A big belch, and I'm relieved. Is there any danger to doing this? — Mr. G.L.

Dear Mr. L.:

Baking soda, or sodium bicarbonate, has been used for years to relieve the feeling of bloat that sometimes follows a heavy or immoderate meal.

Sodium bicarbonate is one of the major ingedients in the tablets commonly used to reduce acidity and stomach distress. The quantity in these tablets can do little or no harm and can frequently provide relief. When, however, too large a dose of bicarbonate is taken, especially when combined with club soda, sudden distention of the stomach can result.

My immediate reaction to your problem is that there probably would be no problem if you readjusted your eating habits.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . the transmission of germs and fungus infections is very common in the gymnasium. Children, adolescents and adults should wear protective sandals in the dressing rooms of gyms and in the swimming pool area. Directors of gymnasiums should make this an infexible rule if "athlete's foot" and other infections are to be avoided.

METABOLISM? TUBBIES MAY JUST BE RIGHT

By JUDY CREIGHTON
CP Family Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Overweight people who blame metabolism for an inability to lose weight may be correct in that assumption, says a nutritionist from Michigan State University.

Dr. Gilbert A. Leveille told a nutrition symposium Monday that obesity has generally been viewed as the result of gluttony but "more recent evidence supports the view that this disease results from a variety of causes and in many instances involves a true metabolic aberration."

He said the underlying metabolic defect responsible for some cases of obesity appears to involve biochemical steps responsible for the regulation of the "efficiency" of energy metabolism.

Specifically, Leveille said these are futile biochemical steps which utilize energy but serve no apparent useful purpose.

He said that in normal individuals, these metabolic pathways can be accelerated or slowed to compensate for variations in the level of energy intake.

"An inability or a reduced ability to modulate the rate of these metabolic steps could lead to obesity or chronic underweight," he said.

Dr. Leveille admitted that "while this hypothesis is not new, there is an increasing amount of evidence supporting it, both from animal and human studies."

He said the treatment of obesity remains imperfect.

"At the present time, it must consist of reducing caloric intake, increasing energy expenditure, or ideally both. It is imperative that the obese recognize that efforts at weight control are a life-time commitment."

Sithole Rules Out New Talks

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, one of the three black members of Rhodesia's new supreme executive council, today ruled out further international discussions on the African country as proposed by the United States and Britain.

He also said foreign-based militant black guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe are welcome to return to Rhodesia without preconditions to contest one-man, one-vote elections.

"The idea of going to New York, Pretoria or London to start another discussion is out of place," he told a news conference. "We are not going to reopen the debate—the debate is closed."

Rhodesia was under multi-racial government today for the first time in the country's history.

White power which has dominated the country since it was founded by British pioneers in 1890 ended Tuesday when the three moderate black leaders were sworn in as members of the council.

Britain and the United States have proposed a fresh Rhodesian conference because they want to include the Nkomo-Mugabe Patriotic Front alliance in any settlement.

Sithole, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Chief Jeremiah Chirau formed a transitional government Tuesday designed to lead to a black-ruled Zimbabwe by Dec. 31. Zimbabwa is the black African name for Rhodesia.

Ian Smith, who is destined to become the eighth and last prime minister of a minority-ruled Rhodesia, has said that Nkomo must renounce terrorism before he may return. The Patriotic Front has been conducting guerrilla war against the white regime.

But Sithole said there should be "no preconditions, no renouncing of terrorism."

Sithole claimed the allegiance of guerrillas operating from neighboring Mozambique—Mugabe's main power base. He said that once the transitional government is fully in effect, with the formation probably next week of a second-tier ministerial council of blacks and whites, he would order the guerrillas to lay down their arms and return home in peace.

In Dar Es Salaam a Tanzanian goverenment spokesman said today the two leaders of the Patriotic Front would hold a summit meeting shortly with the leaders of Angola, Botswana, Mozambique, Tanzania and Zambia to discuss their next move.

Informed sources said Andrew Young, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, also will attend.

Foreigners Given Secrets, MP Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Bill Jarvis (PC—Perth-Wilmot) said in the Commons Tuesday that eight copies of a document on spying in Canada the government says is top-secret were circulated to foreign governments or their agencies.

Jarvis later told reporters the copies were received by government or government agency representatives in the United States, Australia and New Zealand.

Six went to Americans, perhaps to the CIA or FBI, Javis said. His information was based on "a rather reliable report."

The copies were among 58 reported to have been circulated by a federal government committee, Jarvis said.

Entitled Canadian-Related Activities of the Russian Intelligence Services, the document has been the focus of several controversies on Parliament Hill.

Last week, Justice Minister Ron Basford announced charges under the Official Secrets Act were laid against Toronto Sun Publishing Ltd. and two of its senior employees following publication in the newspaper of information the government says came from the document.

At the same time the minister decided that to prosecute Conservative Tom Cossitt for having allegedly secret dokuments.

No minister has confirmed that 58 copies of the document have been spread around. And Basford told Jarvis in the Commons "it would not be proper to outline what the distribution of these documents are."

Disillusioned Hijackers Risk Death to Return

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Six U.S. citizens who fled their country in skyjacked airliners have come home in prison irons — willing to face possible death sentences rather than austere lives in Cuba.

"They're anxious to go home," said Thomas Morris, an assistant U.S. attorney, as the six prisoners were taken before a federal judge here late Tuesday after a flight from Havana via Jamaica.

Shackled hand and foot, the fugitives were sombre as U.S. District Judge Howell Melton ordered bail of $250,000 for five men and $500,000 for another.

The six were wanted for five hijackings between 1969 and 1971 — years when violence stalked air travel as rebels and revolutionaries commandeered airplanes in search of exotic lives in faroff lands. Most found only disillusionment.

"They are using us as political pawns," Jesus Garland Grant, 28, of Milwaukee told an interviewer in Havana in 1977. "I feel inside that I'm dead."

Grant, a onetime Black Panther who hijacked a Northwest Airlines plane from Milwaukee on Jan. 22, 1971, was one of the six fugitives in court.

The other five were identified by a justice department spokesman as Richard Witt, indicted for air piracy in Philadelphia in 1970: Angel Casado and Rudolfo Rivera-Rios, both indicted in Brooklyn in 1971, and Larry Brooks, 34, and Nobel Mason, both indicted in Tampa in 1969.

Morris said Brooks and Mason will be moved to Tampa for arraignment later this week. He said hearings will be held, possibly next week, on removal of the other four to the cities where they are charged.

Under federal skyjacking law, conviction could bring a death sentence, though the FBI has said all persons previously convicted have been sentenced to life in prison.

The six were originally expected back in the United States March 9 on an Air Canada flight from Havana to Montreal, then New York. But Air Canada declined to carry the fugitives, saying security precautions were not satisfactory.

Tuesday's trip was by Air Havana from Havana to Kingston, Jamaica, where U.S. Marshal George Grosse and a squad of eight deputies took custody of the six fugitives.

All That Cash Splits Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Heriberto Castro says an acquintance gave him some suitcases in Los Angeles to bring to New York. Castro says he did not know the suitcases contained $593,080 in cash.

The story unfolded Tuesday when one of Castro's two pieces of baggage split open en route from Los Angeles. Unbelieving baggagemen saw that it was full of money — $100s, $50s and $20s.

Authorities said Castro, 33, a Colombian national with permanent resident status in the United States, was in Los Angeles last week. While he was there, Castro told investigators, "a fellow named Juan," an exporter, asked him to bring the suitcases across the continent, and arranged to pick them up from the Castros' apartment here.

Castro flew into New York on Monday. His baggage arrived on another flight on Tuesday, and one of the bags split open in Pittsburgh, revealing the money.

When Castro and his wife Fanny, 37, arrived to pick up the baggage at Kennedy International Airport, officials had some questions. Among the agencies that took turns interrogating them were the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Queens district attorney's office, the U.S. district attorney's office, the New York police department and the Internal Revenue Service.

Since possession of suspicious money is not a crime, the Castros were released. The cash was confiscated by the IRS, which issued a jeopardy assessment to hold the money on the presumption that taxes might be owed.

Hard-Up Miners Return?

WASHINGTON (AP) — "My men don't like the contract but they're getting hard up, they're feeling the financial pinch," says the president of a United Mine Workers (UMW) local in Pennsylvania.

That's why Joseph Mucho thinks his men in Local 6394 at Sidman, Pa. — as well as miners throughout the U.S. coalfields — reluctantly will ratify a new proposed contract to end their walkout that began 107 days ago. "I think we can live with it," said Mucho.

That sentiment was echoed in interviews this week with more than 100 UMW local presidents in Appalachia and the Midwest: The threat of the union's financial ruin may force a majority of the 160,000 strikers to ratify a contract few of them like.

The ratification vote on the tentative agreement — the third since the strike began — will be held Friday.

"It looks like it will pass," said Brogan Rose, president of the 1,200-member Local 9690 in Mullens, W.Va.

Like the rest of the miners, those in Mullens soundly rejected a previous coal-industry contract offer early this month. But the coming vote may be different, said Rose.

Not all the union presidents interviewed, however, predicted the latest proposed contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association (BCOA) will be ratified.

"They'll reject it," predicted Robert Fulk, president of Local 343 in Petersburg, Ind., "even though the BCOA is trying to starve us out."

In Associated Press telephone interviews with 109 local presidents, 53 said they believe their members will vote for the contract, 22 said their members will vote aginst the pact and 34 said either that the outcome will be too close to predict or declined to express an opinion.

The presidents interviewed represent more than 23,000 of the 160,000 miners eligible to vote Friday.

Mob Helps in Moro Hunt So It Can Resume Work

ROME (UPI) — Italian mobsters trying to get "the police off our backs" acted as guides today for detectives conducting a massive dragnet for the kidnappers of former Premier Aldo Moro.

Police said they had accepted the offer of help from gangs of Roman pickpockets, burglars, fences, drug pushers and armed robbers because "these guys know every possible hideout within 50 kilometers."

"These people have networks of abandoned houses and caves that we could never find on our own," said one detective involved in the manhunt for Red Brigades gang members.

More than 50,000 police and army troops have combed Italy without success since the Red Brigades seized Moro Thursday, slaughtering his five bodyguards in a hail of gunfire.

Gang bosses said they decided to aid police because "Rome is crawling with cops and we can't work."

"My men are paralyzed with all these cops around and I've got to pay them even if they don't work," complained one gang leader. "We figure the sooner they find Moro the sooner we'll get the police off our backs."

Two commandos from the crack British Special Air Service and two West German anti-terrorist agents are in Rome reportedly to aid Italian police in the final assault once the Red Brigades hideout is found.

The SAS squad is expert with the stun-grenades that blind and deafen people for eight seconds and were used successfully by the Germans in the raid on a hijacked jet in Mogadishu, Somalia.

Premier Giulio Andreotti Tuesday enacted harsh new measures to counter terrorism, allowing police to hold a suspect without a warrant for up to 24 hours and to question him without his lawyer being present.

Terror in the Streets

LONDON (AFP) — The Times reports that the streets of Addis Ababa are strewn with the victims of officially-inspired assassinations.

"Red terror openly incited by the Ethiopina government has gone through Addis Ababa like a fury," a Times correspondent wrote in a front page report spread over five columns.

"The blood in the streets is thick like oil," the report says. "It does not disappear. At times, a note may appear next to a corpse saying: 'Sorry, this killing was due to a mistaken identity.'"

A number of the victims were young people killed in front of their parents "as an example," it says.

The city is divided into 300 subdistricts, each with a prison and armed guards roaming about with authority to kill. "If each subdistrict has only eight to 10 armed guards, this makes a total of some 3,000 authozied killers," the report say.

Less than a fortnight ago, The Times report says, armed men entered a mosque and fired indiscriminately around them killing at least 25 persons.

U.S. Retirement Age 70

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed a bill Tuesday to raise the mandatory retirement age to 70 for most private sector employees and abolish the age limit for most U.S. government employees.

On a 391-to-6 vote, the House approved a compromise measure worked out by a congressional conference committee two weeks ago. The bill was sent to the U.S. Senate for final passage.

President Carter is expected to sign the measure quickly.

The prohibition on forced retirement at age 65 for private business would go into effect Jan. 1, 1979. The ban on forced retirement for federal employees would begin Sept. 30.

The measure applies to private sector workers whose employer has 20 or more persons on the payroll. That covers about 70 per cent of the labor force.

The bill would grant up to two years for age-65 retirement provisions to be phased out of existing labor union contracts.

The appplication of the new upper age limit to tenured college and university faculty members would be delayed until July 1, 1982, to give the institutions time to adjust their hiring policies.

The bill would permit mandatory retirement at age 65 of an individual who, for two years before retirement, is employed in an executive or "high policy making position and is entitled to a pension from the employer of at least $27,000 annually."

$20B 'Waste' in Car Repairs

★ Ford Denies Deaths

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. has denied there is evidence linking the firm's widely used automatic transmissions to a series of bizarre accidents that caused six deaths and 39 injuries over a five-year span.

The transmissions — installed in nearly 9 million 1973-1978 Ford, Mercury and Lincoln cars and light trucks — are suspected by federal investigators of having defects that can cause idling vehicles to slip from park to reverse.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which began investigating the problem last fall, said such incidents caused at least 114 mishaps since 1973.

John C. Eckhold, director of Ford's automotive safety office, Tuesday said the company's own investigation has turned up no evidence of a defect.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost 40 cents of every dollar spent on car repairs in the United States are wasted because of faulty—sometimes fraudulent—repair work, poor owner maintenance and new car design, the head of the federal highway safety agency said Tuesday.

Joan Claybrook, administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, told a U.S. Senate commerce subcommittee the total cost is more than $20 billion a year.

"Consumers lose vast amounts of money through industry repair practices that are legal and acceptable, but wasteful," she said.

"We believe that slightly more than half of the $20 billion waste results from fraudulent, incompetent, or unnecessary repairs performed by the repair industry," she said. "The remaining losses appear to be attributable to new car design or a lack of owner understanding of their car's maintenance and repair needs."

She said the $20 billion estimate is probably conservative and is based on surveys by her agency of problems consumers have with their cars.

However, the auto industry promptly criticized Ms. Claybrook's remarks as vague and unsubstantiated.

"The allegations . . . tar and feather virtually everyone connected with the automotive industry, especially the many thousands of independent locally-owned service operations," the Automotive Information Council, an industry trade association, said.

"Anyone can throw out claims, but to be meaningful they should be backed up with facts," the council said. "Blanket indictments and contrived figures are not admissable in court, and they therefore should not be used in the arena of public opinion."

Ms. Claybrook said one of the most widespread methods of wasting consumer dollars is selling package deals, such as telling a car owner he needs a tune-up when there is only one bad spark plug.

"Outright fraud by repair facilities is common but is by no means the only villain," she said. "Large sums are also lost due to incompetent repair industry personnel and equipment. Consumers themselves have some responsibility for losses due to incorrect preventive maintenance policies."

GAS PUMP HAZARD?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pumping gas may be hazardous to your health.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration says gas station attendants may be inhaling too much EDB, an additive suspected of causing cancer.

OSHA, estimating there are 650,000 gas station attendants, said it was considering strengthening standards for exposure to the fumes.

It made no mention of millions of Americans who fill their cars at self-serve stations across the nation.

EDB is formally known as ethylene dibromide, and is an additive in leaded gasoline. It also has chemical uses and is a fumigant and solvent for resins, gums and waxes.

ESB also is used as a fumigant of grain, fruit and vegetables and, in separate action, the Environmental Protection Agency has opened an effort to determine if it should be banned or restricted.

The Environmental Defense Fund petitioned for EPA action following release of a study showing EDB caused cancer in rats and mice.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And rememper, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

U.K. to Bar Canadians?

LONDON (CP) — Canadians planning to exercise patrial rights to settle in the United Kingdom might find themselves excluded should one key proposal of a controversial new immigration report be adopted.

In 1976, the last year for which figures are available, 229 Canadians won right of abode by proving that at least one grandparent was born here.

The report, by an inter-party select committee of the House of Commons, advocates restraining large-scale immigration—especially black immigration—from what is called here "the new Commonwealth."

However, immigration from the old Commonwealth—countries such as Canada, Australia and New Zealand—would also be affected by the section which states:

"One grandparent born in the U.K. should not be enough to establish right of abode."

The report makes no suggestion as to what the criterion should be and a Home Office spokesman said, "It's a muddle."

The report, by a committee of five labor and five Conservative members of Parliament, has touched off a storm of controversy and has been heavily attacked by black organizations.

Kate Francis, executive officer of the National Association of Community Relations Councils, said "It is absolutely racist to suggest a quota of people from India."

The Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants describes the report as "a gift to racialists."

Timing of the report also is criticized by some observers, coming on the heels of Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher's recent speech in which she said Britons are afraid of being "submerged" by an influx of people of "a different culture."

She promised a full Conservative program of proposals on immigration.

Britain may have a general election this year and immigration is expected to be one of the major electoral issues.

Even the five Labor MPs, in a statement following the report, said they had been outmanoeuvred by the five Conservatives.

They claimed "these proposals are designed to win votes; they come from a spirit of desperation."

"Margaret Thatcher is aware she is losing the battle for electoral support."

Dudley Smith, Conservative vice-chairman, said the report did not go as far as he would have liked but that he agreed to it as a compromise.

"There are some valuable and important recommendations which gain immensely in their authority if the remain unanimous," he said.

White Slavery Link Eyed

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police suspect that a 16-year-old Toronto girl who died in a fire in a Florida body-rub parlor may have been the victim of a white slavery ring operated by Canadian and United States motorcycle clubs, a police spokesman said Tuesday.

Florida police say the body of Sylvia Christine Bayer was found Feb. 18 in the wreckage of a Fort Lauderdale massage parlor, used as a prostitution front by a motorcycle club with 32 chapters in Canada and the eastern U.S.

Toronto friends of the dead girl, who said they did not wish to have their names used because they fear for their lives, said that the club operates several "safe houses" in southern states where hitch-hikers and runaway youths are kept on drugs until they are taken to body-rub parlors and dance bars.

The friends said that in one of her last telephone conversations, Miss Bayer said she had been sold in December, among Ottawa members of the club, for $200 and was then taken to Florida.

The girl's mother and stepfather, Raimund and Imelda Bayer, said they last saw their daughter in the fall when she left for Ottawa. Friends say she went to Ottawa to join a member of the club whom she liked.

Mrs. Bayer, who talked to her daughter only hours before her death, said Tuesday that she had the feeling someone was telling her daughter to hurry the telephone conversation and then she was cut off.

The Bayers said Slyvia talked of having bought a car and having lots of money but no evidence of a car or money was found when Sylvia's body was identified a few days after the fire. Personal belongings, including several valuable rings, were missing.

HAWAII-BOUND after three years in the optical shop on Little Saanich Mountain, the heart of the Canada-France-Hawaii telescope project is admired by its polishing crew. The 12-foot blank of non-expanding ceramic glass passed its optical tests and will now be readied for shipment after France supplies mechanical components for the new telescope on Mauna Kea. Among those who worked on the mirror are, from left, assistant optician Maurice Nunn, optician John Miller, chief optician Roy Dancey, project associate director Dr. Graham Odgers, instrument maker Tom Bridge, and optician Norm Hutchings. Others included engineer George Brealey, astronomer Don Andrews who designed measuring instruments, and astronomer Murray Fletcher, designer of computer programs used in grinding and testing. FIVE MONTHS TO GET MAIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Six letters destined for Montreal that were mailed last October from a small Ontario town passed through the Commons Tuesday as they neared the end of their five-month journey.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) presented the letters to Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne, saying they arrived at his constituency office in Whitehorse, Yukon.

Nielsen said the letters were postmarked in Courtright, Ont., Oct. 19 and were properly stamped and addressed.

They turned up in Whitehorse this month with a routine shipment of envelopes sent from Ottawa. The letters were discovered in the bottom of a postal bag shipped by the department of supply and services, the Conservative MP said.

He reported they had not been opened and appeared to be routine bill payments.

Nielsen presented them to the government by way of an explanation as to how opposition MPs sometimes obtain confidential documents.

The public had a right to be told of the neglect in the postal service, he said.

Liberal Propaganda With Cheques-NDP

Finance Minister Jean Chretien denied the pamphlets were a violation of the Election Expenses Act, prompting Broadbent to reply "this government wouldn't recognize a bucketful of slime if it fell into it."

Broadbent said the treasury board has told him the pamphets cost $100,000 to produce and mail.

Broadbent said the pamphlets, to be mailed out this month with the cheques, contained "blatant economic propaganda about the government's economic performance."

It was a clear violation of the Election Expenses Act because publication was paid with money from general tax revenue funds, he said.

The pamphlets tell family allowance and pension cheque recipients to remember when they go to the doctor, a hospital, a national park or watch television "that federal funds help finance these public projects," Broadbent said.

"There is nothing but the truth in what is written there," Chretien shot back amid howls from MPs. "It's the government's duty to transmit information to the public."

Chretien said the statements were made in the name of the government, not in the name of the Liberal party. Parliament had voted spending on national parks.

Broadbent said if this was all right in the government's view, then opposition parties should be given an equal amount of money "to state their side of the story."

In a motion before the daily question period, Broadbent asked the Commons to refer the matter to the auditor-general, who keeps tabs on federal spending and to the chief electoral officer who administers the Election Expenses Act.

The motion did not get unanimous consent from MPs required before it can come to a vote. In it, Broadbent described the pamphlets as a "one-sided, partisan description" of Liberal economic policies.

Chretien said he found it "a bit strange" for Broadbent to object. The opposition had complained the government did not give enough information to the public and now it was complaining when information was coming out.

The minister in denial of Broadbent's charges made a reference to "colored pictures" once circulated by David Barrett, former NDP premier of British Columbia.

Hamilton Re-elected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Employers' Council of British Columbia have re-elected the organization's two top officers — William Hamilton to another term as president and T.G. Rust to another term as chairman. The group is an association of leading businessmen in the province.

Ferries' Decision 'Muddled'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A human rights board of inquiry decision upholding British Columbia Ferries' refusal to hire an engineer with an artificial leg and arm is an example of "stereotyped, muddled thinking and discrimination," Kathleen Ruff, human rights branch director, told representatives of 17 services for handicapped people Tuesday.

She said that the Sept. 13 decision against David Jefferson "truly boggles the imagination."

"If, as the inquiry discovered, Jefferson was more than capable of performing the job duties, and yet could still be turned down, where does that leave the handicapped person with the human rights code?" she asked.

Ruff said that the decision was a regressive step.

Jefferson was the first to have his case heard before a human rights board of inquiry.

He was one of four who applied for openings as junior engineers with B.C. Ferries. His application was the only one rejected; the other three applicants were hired later.

The inquiry decided that Jefferson was above average in his ability to do the job, but held out that "it is normal for management to be cautious; employers wish to take the safe course and hire the average person who is certain not to make a mistake."

Their reason, said Ruff, "is an excellent example of the bias we deal with on a daily basis."

Soviets Say Canada Tricked by 'Spy'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet intelligence, obviously smarting from last month's mass expulsion of Soviet diplomats by the Canadian government, today revealed the story of a Soviet double agent who fed Canada false information in exchange for money.

The weekly Soviet Writers Union newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta detailed the spy story in a dispatch by Arkady Sakhnin.

The weekly charged that Canadian intelligence services were actively engaged in organizing espionage against the Soviet Union.

It said that RCMP thought they had recruited a Soviet trade organization employee, who was given the false name of Alexei Martinov for purposes of the story.

It said Martinov reported the initial contacts by the RCMP to his Soviet superiors in Ottawa and was ordered to proceed with the deception.

"After preliminary preparations Martinov met with F. Dantremont, the head of an RCMP division who offered Martinov money and guarantees of security in return for espionage information about the Soviet Union," Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

The Martinov case, which apparently took place in 1973 and 1974, was revealed in the wake of the Canadian Governments expulsion of 13 Soviet diplomats on charges of espionage.

"If you agree to keep in contact with us I am ready to give you written guarantees by any of four highly placed Canadian officials," Martinov said he was promised by the RCMP officer.

He said he was then handed over to Bill Cliff, an RCMP department chief who provided him with money, letters of guarantee, Canadian passports and identification documents.

The weekly said that in exchange for this Martinov passed along false information carefully prepared by Soviet authorities in Moscow.

Martinov was originally provided a Canadian passport in the name of Mikhail Dzyuba, but bearing his own photograph, a birth certificate, social security card, credit cards on the Bank of Canada and Bank of Switzerland, and a letter written on the stationery of Solicitor General Warren Allmand.

"This letter guaranteed that Mikahil Dzyuba was a Canadian citizen with all rights, and at the same time promised that the Canadian government guaranteed asylum to Mikhail Dzyuba anytime he required it," the weekly said.

The letter was dated Sept. 23, 1973.

The article said the Soviet trade official later met with Cliff in New York.

"Cliff had a new assignment for him. He was particularly interested in the economic ties between the Soviet Union and West Germany, France and Italy.

"Analysis of all these questions prove that we are not talking here about petty espionage. Far from it. The Canadian intelligence services intended to inflict great moral and political damage to the Soviet state. Its activities could have caused losses of millions in the economic field," the weekly said.

The article said that Canadian officials later gave Martinov new identify papers in the name of Yaroslav Stadnik, a trade representative of Husky Injection Molding Systems Ltd., based in Ottawa.

Ottawa Unveils Terms Of $750M Bond Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced terms Tuesday of its special $750 million bond issue to be sold in the U.S. and said the offering will be made today.

The sale, designed to help stabilize the value of the Canadian dollar, will be made th same day that Prime Minister Trudeau is to address the prestigious Economic Club of New York.

The bond offering will include three maturities as follows:

—$250 million U.S. of eight-per-cent, five-year bonds due April 1, 1983, to be offered to the public at a price of 100.2 per cent.

—$250 million U.S. 8.2-per-cent, seven-and-a-half-year bonds due Oct. 1, 1985, to be offered at a price of 100 per cent.

—$250 million U.S. of 8.625-per-cent, 20-year bonds due April 1, 1998, to be offered at a price of 99.75 per cent.

The government has approved underwriting commissions on the bonds of six-tenths of one per cent on the principal amount in the five-year bonds, 0.65 per cent on the 7.5-year bonds and 0.875 per cent on the 20-year bonds.

The issue, which marks the first time the federal government has borrowed abroad in 10 years, is designed to support the dollar in money markets by covering part of the country's deficit in international transactions.

The dollar has recently dropped to a 45-year low and now is worth about 89 cents U.S.

Today Trudeau is to address a black-tie dinner of 2,000 businessmen on Canada's economic and political situation.

Little Nuclear Concern Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Uffen, dean of applied science at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., told a parliamentary committee Tuesday the public doesn't seem concerned about the use of nuclear energy.

"They do not show the same opposition as in other parts of the world," Uffen said when he appeared as a witness before the Commons natural resources committee.

This was probably because the Canadian nuclear reactor "is the safest, most efficient and the best nuclear facility in the world," he added.

The committee is studying a report which says the country's nuclear power program should continue to grow but that a national plan to deal with disposal of nuclear wastes must be considered as an urgent matter.

Men Can't Accept Women In Combat, Says General

OTTAWA (CP) — Women are barred from combat because the armed forces do not think Canadian society is prepared to accept them in such roles or to see their names on casualty lists, General Jim Smith said Tuesday.

Smith, whose statements apparently contradict recent comments by Defence Minister Barney Danson, blamed the tradition of men protecting women for the armed forces policy.

"It's the protectionist philosophy we've all been reared with," said Smith, an assistant deputy minister in the defence department's personnel division. He thought the attitude is changing.

He was commenting in an interview after telling the Commons defence committee that 5.7 per cent of the Canadian armed forces are women.

That is the highest percentage of any other army, he said.

Danson said in the Commons last week that women are barred from combat because men are emotionally unable to accept them fighting at their sides, not because women cannot fight.

He said experience in other countries is that having women in combat is demoralizing. Ottawa had not come to grips with the women-in-combat question.

Danson was replying to David MacDonald (Egmont), opposition spokesman on women's rights. He had asked when the government will stop barring women pilots in the armed forces.

Danson said the issue, under constant review, is related to the question of women in combat.

Smith said 18 of the 27 classes of officers now are closed to women because of the combat question.

But under a new program the U.S. might soon overtake Canada.

He said five per cent of Australia's army are women one per cent in France and less than one per cent in the Soviet Union. The percentage in West Germany is negligible.

Smith also told the committee there has been progress employing more women in higher defence department positions.

Equal opportunity aims were being hampered in part because many female employees "are service wives and their resulting mobility is a deterrent to their careers."

Inflation Clause Warning by AIB

SASKATOON (CP) — An Anti-Inflation Board (AIB) official has warned labor and management negotiators not to build "inflation clauses" into their contracts.

Bill Black, of the AIB's compensation section in Ottawa, said such clauses are still within the board's jurisdiction.

Black told a joint meeting of the Saskatoon Board of Trade and the Saskatoon personnel association the AIB is not interested in contracts as such.

But he said the board is interested in contracts and they are included within a company "guideline year." If a contract began prior to Jan. 1, 1977, and runs to Dec. 31, 1978, it is still governed by AIB regulations.

Officially, the AIB goes out of business April 14, but staff will still be working until the end of the year on a backlog of business.

All banks are not the same.

On March 9th, Canadian banks announced they would be raising the interest rate on high-interest savings accounts. From 5¾% to 6¼% per annum.

But.

Most banks are waiting until April 1st before the new higher rate becomes effective. Not TD. In fact, TD is making the new rate retroactive – to March 1st. So, if you have a TD Premium Savings Account, you're already getting this new higher rate.

Now 6¼% on Premium Savings Accounts.

There are certain repetitive card combinations which, if led up by a defender, will give declarer a trick which he could not, or might not, have made on his own power. In today's deal there is featured a card combination in which declarer would have made only one trick if he had played to suit himself. But he played the hand is such a manner that he forced the opponents to lead the suit. As a result, he made his game-going trick.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 NT	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

After capturing West's opening spade lead with his ace, declarer promptly led another spade and ruffed it. He next returned to the South hand via a trump to his ace, after which he ruffed his remaining spade. The king of trumps then picked up West's last trump.

The ace and king of hearts were cashed next, and a third heart was then led, West winning with his jack. If West now led another spade (or, in theory, a heart, if he had one), South would ruff it in dummy while discarding the losing deuce of clubs from his own hand. From here in, declarer's only loser would be a club trick. So West had no choice but to lead a low club, South playing the fourspot from dummy. East won the trick with the king — and South was home safely no matter what East played back.

Had declarer led clubs himself, he would have lost two club tricks. If he had led the deuce and inserted the board's jack, East would have won the trick with the king. A club return by East would now have entrapped South's ten, and enabled the defenders to win a second club trick. Or, if declarer had led the ten or clubs on the initial club lead, West correctly would have covered the ten with the queen, and dummy's ace would have won the trick. But the ace would, in this case, have been declarer's only club winner, since dummy's remaining J-4 of clubs would have been entrapped by East's K-9.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Thursday, March 23
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on getting job done. You are able now to sense weak points, correct errors, separate fact from fancy. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Be discreet — don't reveal all you know. Element of deception could be present.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Significant changes due; don't hug status quo. You have marvelous opening for expression, graphically illustrating meanings, desires. You are involved, committed — go all the way, give your best, discard "lukewarm" notions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finish rather than begin assignment. Evaluate relationship. Your security, emotional well-being could be at stake. Choice between intrigue and happiness is yours. Degree of maturity will be deciding factor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Ideas bounce, sparkle — humor much in evidence. Be confident, fexible. Display versatility. You meet someone who could play important role in your life. Take notes; put concepts, plans on paper. Movement, travel, writing, participating in social affair — these are highlighted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on determining what is of value — this is a time to discard the superfluous. You also sort out relationships. Who is good for you? Answer comes from within. Accent on costs, estimates. Aquarius, Cancer persons could be in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What had been "frightening" is disposed of — you call your own shots, dance to your own tune. Cycle is high — take initiative, make personal appearances. Diversify. Expand sphere of activity. Welcome invitation which provides you platform for self-expression.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Judge situation based on factual material. Avoid rushing to conclusions. There is "trade" or backstage information accessible. Key is to persist. Be willing to tear down, dismantle for purpose of rebuilding on more solid stucture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on results from business-professional endeavors. Indications point to change, communication which wins friends, influences people. Seek reasons, reject the superficial. You are popular enough to plant the nucleus of a fan club.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Practical affairs related to home, business, income potential, cash flow — these tend to dominate. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. One who professes love may be thinking more about money. Protect your own interest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Favorable lunar aspect equates now to journey, gain through reading, writing, publishing. Aura of mystery is an asset. Know it and don't reveal all. Being discreet whips up enthusiasm for your project.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If persistent, you get rounded view of situation, venture. Business at hand is made to order for you. Key is to know it. What appears hidden becomes available once you display confidence, conviction. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Spotlight on your understanding of public responses, willingness to make a commitment, ability to complete a project and to get best legal counsel. Aries, Libra figure prominently — so does number 9. Permit others to have their say, play your own cards close to chest.

IF MARCH 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inquisitive, a natural reporter, attractive to opposite sex, a quick study, fond of travel, change, variety. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. Domestic adjustment or change of residence could occur this year, especially around September. November also will be a memorable month.

BUS DRIVERS MAKE MORE

Shortage of Pay, Shortage of Pilots

LONDON (CP) — In Britain, where fighter pilots are paid about the same wage as a London bus driver, a severe shortage of pilots has developed who are qualified to man the complex new Tornado battle plane.

The Tornado is one of five aircraft the Canadian government is considering to replace its fleet of aging fighters under a contract expected to be worth $2.5 billion.

Experts here, however, estimate that of the 250, about 170 are unfilled vacancies for pilots to learn to fly the Tornado, a plane scheduled to go into service later this year.

RAF spokesmen are quoted as admitting that there has been a problem finding Tornado-calibre crews even from among personnel flying less-complicated aircraft.

Behind this, there is a general lack of suitable recruits. Serving officers say low pay is a root cause.

Service pay is being re-examined by the armed forces pay review board, but even if an expected increase is decided, there is the question of whether the raise can go higher than government-imposed wage guidelines of 10 per cent.

Few believe that 10 per cent would come anywhere near solving the problem.

Lorraine cost the government £1 million (about $2.14 million) to train. He flies a Jaguar strike plane worth about £2 million ($4.28 million).

His earnings average about £20 ($193) a week. Out of that, he pays accommodation and meals charges.

Tom, the bus driver, earns about £78 a week ($167) plus overtime which can bring him up to about £120 a week ($257).

On an hourly basis, when the pilot works a 70-hour week, he's making £1.30 an hour ($2.79).

London Transport is advertising for bus drivers and offering about £2 ($4.28) an hour for a 40-hour week, plus overtime at up to double time and free travel.

The result of the low service pay has been actual poverty conditions among lower ranks, forcing wives to work and husbands to moonlight to make ends meet.

In addition, observers see a crumbling of morale among servicemen with earnings far short of civilian counterparts and even below those of persons with jobs demanding lower qualifications and ability.

Juvenile Bill Aims At Parents

EDMONTON (CP) — A bill introduced in the Alberta legislature is aimed at making parents and their children more responsible, John Kushner (PC-Calgary Mountain View) said.

The bill he introduced to amend the Juvenile Court Act would allow the victims of a crime committed by a juvenile to know the name and address of the juvenile.

Kelowna School Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Universities Council of British Columbia has rejected a Simon Fraser University proposal to set up a school of resource management in Kelowna.

A council spokesman said the decision was taken because SFU's proposal wasn't deemed complete enough and there wasn't sufficient information on the college's intended curriculum.

The council voted to pay for a consultant to review the scheme and bring in fuller recommendations, said the spokesman. He said the council favored the idea.

SFU had asked for a $586,230 grant to begin the program.

U.S. WINTER AMONG WORST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The past winter in the United States, with record snowfalls and piercing cold temperatures, was one of the worst in recent history, say government weather experts.

For most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains, the season almost equalled — and in some places exceeded — the coldness of the 1976-77 winter, the most severe in at least 50 years in the Northeast and much of the Midwest.

Looking ahead, the weather service has predicted a cooler spring than normal for the Great Plains, the South and the Southeast. For New England, New York, much of the Southwest and California, temperatures are likely to be warmer than normal. Predictions are indeterminate for the rest of the country.

Melting ice and snow in addition to rains are expected to cause flooding problems in parts of the United States this spring. Flooding hit eastern Nebraska and parts of the Dakotas Monday as ice floes jammed rivers swollen from runoffs.

Dr. Donald Gilman, chief of the National Weather Service's long-range prediction group, said the cold was more widespread this winter than last, with the area sandwiched between the Rockies and the Mississippi particularly hard hit.

"This year, the big crisis had to do with snowfall," Gilman said. "Perhaps two dozen states had snowfall records set in January. It was a winter noted for storms as well as cold, while the previous one was noted mostly for prolonged low temperatures."

Hospital Crisis For Judy

LOS ANGELES — Judy Carne, the "sock-it-to-me girl" of the old Laugh-In television series, was taken to hospital Tuesday for emergency treatment after she collapsed in her apartment.

Miss Carne, 38, has been arrested three times in recent months on drug charges.

She was treated and released at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said, but would give no other information.

Robert Bergman, the entertainer's former husband, told sheriff's deputies Miss Carne "appeared to be under the influence of something" when she returned to her apartment in West Hollywood around noon, then fell to the floor and "began foaming at the mouth."

Paramedics said she was unconscious when they arrived.

Miss Carne faces trial May 3 in Cincinnati, Ohio, on charges involving heroin and possession of an allegedly forged prescription for a tranquilizing drug.

She is scheduled to go to trial In Los Angeles April 3 on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Billie Sol Back In Business?

TYLER, Tex. — Fifteen years after he defrauded the U.S. government and 400 individuals of several million dollars, convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes is back in the promoting business, several embittered Texans say.

The investigations were brought about by two suitcases full of documents turned over to investigative agencies and The Associated Press by Mississippi developer Don Trull last year.

Trull, a self-described gambler, said he shared an Abilene office with Estes in 1976 and took the documents because his "friend of 20 years" persuaded him to buy several sagging properties and then reneged on a $1-million loan. Trull moved to Tyler, where he continued his efforts to get back his initial investment with Estes.

Trull and eight other businessmen were interviewed by The AP. Their collective stories and sworn statements weave a complex web of promotional schemes which they say were orchestrated by Estes, including a steam cleaning operation that has attracted state and federal investigations.

Estes, paroled in 1971 after serving six years of a 15-year sentence has been barred from any self-employment or promotional activities. Last month, a federal judge ordered him and his wife Patsy to pay $45.6 million in back taxes on the millions he received in the 1963 swindle.

U.K. TO AUSTRALIA . . .By TIGER MOTH

SYDNEY, Australia — Royal Air Force pilot David Cyster touched landed his antiquated biplane at Sydney's International Airport today, ending a 16,000-kilometer solo flight from Britain to commeorate the first such flight 50 years ago.

The 37-year-old Cyster, flying an open-cockpit Tiger Moth, was given a heavy escort of private aircraft and helicopters as he flew to Sydney early today from an Australian Air Force base north of Sydney.

At Sydney airport, Syster was greeted by his wife Cherry, who has been following him on his trip. He told reporters he would not want to undertake such an adventure again.

"There'd have to be a jolly good reason to do it. I've thoroughly enjoyed it," the pilot said. "I would not have missed it for the world, but there'd have to be a good reason, my word."

Cyster, a flight lieutenant in the RAF, landed in Darwin on March 11 after a 33-day journey from Britain to mark the 50th anniversary of the first such solo flight by Australian avaiation pioneer Bert Hinkler.

Hinkler had made the same flight in only 15 and one-half days in an Avro biplane, but Cyster was repeatedly delayed by weather, maintenace on the vintage Tiger Moth and what he described as the "form-filling required for air travel these days."

The Wedded Life A Joy for Karen

VANCOUVER — Karen Magnussen, world champion figure skater in 1973, an Olympic silver medalist in 1972, the girl from North Vancouver who signed a six-figure contract to turn professional only to give it all up just four years later, has become a "nice married lady" in Boston.

Now Mrs. Tony Cella, she and her husband were visiting here recently and she spoke candidly about leaving her career.

"When you're a celebrity you expect all the attention and you enjoy it for the time that it's happening to you," she said. "But it isn't there now and I can't say I miss it.

Mrs. Cella says she has no regrets about leaving professional figure skating. In fact, she has never been happier.

CBC Tapes Seized

TORONTO, Ont. (CP) — Two CBC radio tapes of interviews with Peter Worthington, editor-in-chief of The Sun, were seized Tuesday by the RCMP, the executive producer of As It Happens, a CBC radio program, said.

Bob Campbell said the tapes, each six minutes long, were interviews of Worthington by program host Barbara Frum concerning a March 7 article in the newspaper which mentioned a secret document on security.

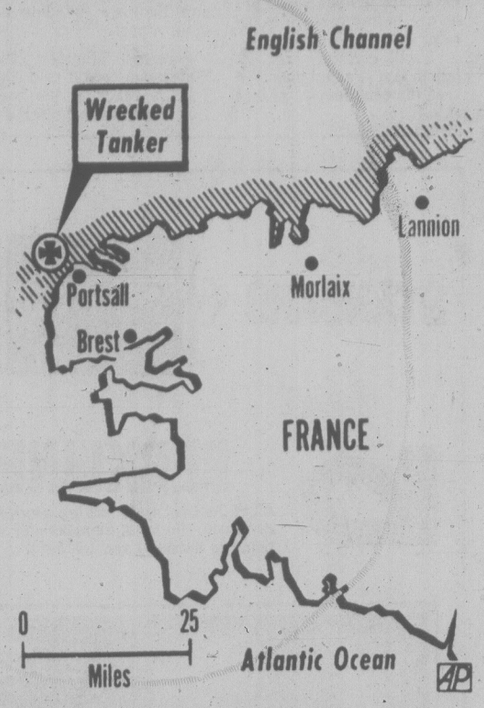
Toronto Sun Publishing Ltd., Worthington and publisher J. D. Creighton were charged Friday under the Official Secrets Act for publishing information detrimental to national security. They are to appear in court April 7.

Two RCMP inspectors, Gordon Butt of the criminal investigation branch and Sonny Saunders of the security service in Ottawa, served the CBC with a search warrant Tuesday afternoon.

The warrant said the RCMP had reasonable grounds to suspect the tape recordings offered evidence with respect to the commission of offence against the Official Secrets Act.

Meanwhile, the RCMP has returned film seized from the CTV network of a news conference held by Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative MP for Leeds, a CTV spokesman said Tuesday.

He said the RCMP told the network that since Cossitt had not been charged, the film was not needed as evidence. The film, still sealed, was returned Monday.



TOTAL LOAD SPILLED

Waves Smashing Oil From Tanker

BREST, France (UPI) — The last intact compartments of the supertanker Amoco Cadiz were broken open today by waves 30 feet high that banged the hulk against razor-sharp reefs and spewed the remaining 50,000 tons of crude oil onto what is already the worst oil slick on record.

A spokesman for Amoco International told reporters that only 50,000 tons out of the 220,000 tons the tanker was carrying were still contained by the vessel and that these were spilling rapidly.

Heavy seas and high winds left experts almost helpless against the black ooze. The initial 110,000-ton spill was rapidly spreading north and threatening the coast of Normandy and the Channel area.

Forecasters said winds of 25 mph would double in force and the spring tide would push the slick higher up the beaches to the top of Brittany's white dunes.

Salvage crews this morning estimated 150,000 tons of oil — about 43 million gallons, or 1½ times the previous record spill from the Torrey Canyon in 1967 — have gushed out of the tanker.

The 230,000-ton vessel, owned by Amoco International and chartered by Shell International, was transporting 220,000 tons of light Arab crude in 12 holds from the Persian Gulf to the Netherlands.

An Amoco spokesman said conditions on the wrecked tanker were "very gassy," confirming reports there was a risk of explosion.

The slick washed over 100 miles of coastline, bathing the pink granite cliffs and white sand beaches of Roscoff port.

Eight Dutch experts landed by helicopter on the tossing ship Tuesday to fix emplacements for 14 American pumps that arrived in Brest from Tulsa, Okla. for funneling the remaining oil into another ship.

But "for the moment there is simply nothing anybody can do in this weather," authorities said. Sources trying to fight the pollution said their equipment was so inadequate it was "ridiculous."

The slick covered 1,700 square miles.

Observers flying over the tanker's hulk Tuesday reported a new rupture spewing out black ooze. Observers with binoculars crowded blackened beaches to watch the gushing oil.

Delays Hit PWA

Members of the Canadian Air Lines Employees' Association working to rule are causing minor delays in Pacific Western Airlines service but a union spokesman warned today service will be disrupted even more by imminent rotating strikes.

The work-to-rule campaign and a ban on overtime were put into effect Tuesday night after negotiations broke off about 6 p.m. Tuesday.

If the parties are unable to get together during the next two days, rotating strikes could inconvenience thousands of people planning to travel during the Easter holiday.

However, threatened rotating strikes were cancelled when negotiations resumed in Calgary Tuesday.

A CALEA spokesman said today the employees' actions so far have resulted in delays of up to an hour for flights leaving Vancouver.

However, a spokesman for the PWA reservation desk in Vancouver said that although flights are late the delays are not major.

PWA's 6:40 a.m. Victoria-Vancouver flight was only three minutes late leaving and the return flight from Vancouver was only a minute late in arriving.

CALEA represents passenger reservation agents, baggage handlers and ramp personnel in about 40 PWA centres including B.C., Alberta, the Northwest Territories, Uranium City, Sask., and Seattle.

The employees' contract expired in August, 1977 and the main issue, aside from the pay matter, is job security.

However, negotiations on the subject of contracting out have been held up pending agreement on the distribution of this year's pay package which comes under the federal anti-inflation guidelines.

The union is seeking parity with employees of other airlines in the second year of a two-year contract. The union says PWA salaries are $150 a month lower than those at Air Canada and CP Air.

A PWA spokesman said Monday the company is not prepared to make any statement at this stage

He said services will be maintained.

WALLENDA DIES IN 120-FT. FALL

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — A gust of wind today swept 73-year-old Karl Wallenda from a tightrope wire strung between two hotels 120 feet above the ground and he fell to his death.

The elderly head of the "flying Wallenda" family was attempting to cross a wire strung between the Holiday Inn and the old Flamboyan Hotel, which was recently bought by the Holiday Inn and now is being rebuilt.

Witnesses among the 200 onlookers said Wallenda was killed instantly.

They said he had completed about two-thirds of the 200-foot stunt walk when heavy wind from the sea in the beach-front Condado forced him to drop his balancing bar and grab onto the wire at 11:15 a.m.

"He tried to hang onto the wire for a few seconds but then had to let go," said Mike Segarra, a witness. "The wind was too strong for him."

TOKYO (AP) — A severe quake occurred today in the Pacific Ocean about 297 kilometres off the eastern coast of Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido, the Japanese central meteorological agency said. No damage or casualties were reported.

HYDRO SETS 'REVIEW'

B.C. Hydro has agreed to meet next Tuesday with a representative of three unions that have served strike notice on the Crown corporation.

Hydro general manager J. Norman Olsen said Tuesday that the meeting will be a review of the issues in the dispute and not a negotiating session.

The meeting was called at the request of Fred Trotter, president of Local 378 of the Office and Technical Employees Union. Trotter also will represent the Amalgamated Transit Union and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at the meeting.

Trotter was appointed to represent the three Hydro unions at a meeting Monday.

Hydro services have been running smoothly since Monday, when 3,500 ATU bus drivers and mechanics returned to work here and in Vancouver after a week-long strike.

All three unions have agreed that none will sign with Hydro until all contracts have been settled.

Wages are not an issue in the dispute, in which Hydro is demanding greater control of scheduling and rejecting union calls for a shorter work week. (A detailed report on the key issue, the drivers' spare board, appears today on Page 8.)

Palestinian Fire Shatters Truce

Times News Services

Palestinian guerrillas today ignored a cease-fire proclaimed Tuesday by Israel and fired salvos of rockets toward Israeli lines from the Rashidiyeh refugee camp outside the encircled port of Tyre, one of the few positions left to them following the Israeli blitz through southern Lebanon.

"The word cease-fire does not exist in our dictionary," said Yasser Abed Rabbo, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization's information department.

A Palestinian guerrilla communique said, "Our forces clashed with Israeli troops in more than one location in south Lebanon throughout the night and early Wednesday."

The guerrillas also reported heavy Israeli artillery fire on the town of Nabatiyeh, a major Palestinian stronghold north of the Litani River. "We returned the enemy fire," the communique said.

An advance guard of Iranian UN peacekeeping troops, meanwhile, moved into Israeli-held southern Lebanon today despite a threat by Christian Lebanese militia to prevent them from entering the area.

"There were no problems," a UN spokesman said in Tel Aviv.

He said 18 soldiers in the 52-man group went through the frontier checkpoint at Metulla, Israel's northernmost town at the tip of the Galilee panhandle. He said

Oscar Rookie Rates

The Times and CJVI are offering a chance on a weekend for two in Hollywood plus 10 major secondary prizes for those who correctly predict the Oscar winners for best actress, best actor and best picture. Entry form is in the advertisement on page 20.

Keaton was nominated for Annie Hall, the almost-biographical account of her marriage to Woody Allen, who plays himself in the movie. The film has been nominated as best picture.

Many critics said Keaton was good enough in Looking for Mr. Goodbar to get a nomination if she had not been even better in Annie Hall.

In almost any other year she might have been a runaway winner but the competition is tough this time. Any one of her four rivals could win in what is expected to be a close vote. The full list of candidates is printed on the entry form.

High Jobless Forecast

OTTAWA (UPI) — Unemployment will remain high through 1978 because growth in the Canadian economy this year will fall short of its potential, the Conference Board in Canada has forecast.

The board also said in its quarterly report Tuesday Canada's economic growth may be a moderate 4.5 per cent while inflation will top 7.5 per cent.

"Although the expected performance... shows an improvement over the record of the past several quarters, economic growth will still fall short of its potential," said board chief economist Lawrence Murphy.

"Consequently, the unemployment rate is forecast to remain above the 8 per cent level throughout 1978."

The Conference Board said consumer prices are expected to rise by 7.5 per cent. "However, between the end of 1977 and the end of 1978 the rate of increase should be closer to 6 per cent."

The independent research and analysis organization forecast a 4.5 per cent increase in real Gross National Product in 1978, following a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.2 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1977.

In its first forecast for 1978, the Board said it appears there will be a "significant improvement" in the nation's trade balance in 1978 and that will provide the basic economic stimulus.

Report Charges Gov't Snubbing Bilingualism

OTTAWA (CP) — Senior government officials are jeopardizing Canada's survival by ignoring the importance of language reforms recommended by Parliament, says official languages commissioner Max Yalden, in his annual report.

All other factors are given a higher priority than language considerations when decisions are made about new policies and programs, Yalden said Tuesday in a highly critical report of the government and its institutions.

"Only then are language problems brought to the fore, as if they were an afterthought, something dreamed up at the House on the Hill, laudable no doubt as an ideal but not to be taken seriously in administrative circles."

This attitude is endangering national unity, Yalden said.

"Language reform, quite simply, was and remains necessary if Canada is to survive."

Yalden's report lamented that many French-Canadian public servants are still unable to work in their mother tongue and that French-language services to the public, especially in the national capital area, are insufficient.

Even in Parliament, bilingual services are lacking, he said.

"It is painful to have to report that the very institu-

Campbell River Boy Found Under Log

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — A seven-year-old Campbell River boy was found in good condition Tuesday, 51 hours after he went missing in bush country wearing only jeans, a shirt and running shoes.

Jason Bishop wasn't too worried about cougars, though. His first concern was for the black baseball cap he had borrowed from his buddy, Joey McLeod, and for his own watch, which had gone astray since the pair of them got lost while cutting sticks for a wiener roast Sunday afternoon. When they realized they were lost Joey sat tight, but Jason walked.

Joey was found five hours after the pair were missed.

Jason was found about 3 p.m. Tuesday by Dale Danell, an engineer at MacMillan Bloedel's Menzies Bay operation who along with five others had determined that one more creek bed had to be searched.

They were among more than 400 searchers, many of whom took the day off work, who turned out Tuesday to pursue the search for the boy in a shoulder-to-shoulder sweep of the heavy bushland.

"There were loggers, drivers, hookers and slingers, all with one goal," Danell said. "Find that youngster."

"He was curled up in a ball in the dry leaves with his shirt pulled right over his head.

"I really didn't know what to think when I saw him; you know, with cougar activity, and with him being missing two days and such a young kid...

"Anyway, I called his name, He wouldn't pull his shirt down at first, so I helped him.

"He cried a little bit, but not for long. He started talking about the baseball cap and the watch.

"I gave him some sandwiches and cookies. He wolfed them down and then we carried him out to the road where a police helicopter picked him up and took him to hospital," Danell said.

The check at the hospital didn't take long. Said Dr. John Depew: "He was a bit cold; he had wet feet but mostly he was dry. He was in good shape and I was very pleased. I sent him home."

That's where Jason was Tuesday night, sleeping off the two days of tramping through heavy brush and wondering what he's going to tell Joey today about the baseball cap.

Silly Sport

What Do They See in Skiing Anyway?

Skiing reminds me of the comedian who used to say he enjoyed banging his head against the wall.

Why, someone would always ask.

Because it's lovely when you stop, he'd say. And to me nothing could describe this silly slippery sport better.

You dress up in the most ridiculously uncomfortable clothes surpassed in bulkiness only by the suits America's astronauts wore to the moon; you clamp on two slender pieces of wood (you have to put those on or you'd never be able to move those ugly great boots!); you dangle precariously from the most fiendish contraptions man has ever devised to reach what are fondly referred to as "the slopes"; and then you take the most unbelievable risks in hurtling downward so you can (hopefully) reach the bottom and do it all over again . . .

After doing it enough times that your feet have forgotten how to walk and will only slide and the rest of your body has been pulverized by the snow which just looks soft, you head back for what can only laughingly be called the "apres ski." For me that consists of undoing the buckles (which I'm sure could have been used as torture devices in medieval days) on those great boots, lowering myself gently into a hot bath and seeking sympathy for my aches and pains.

Avid skiers (the crazy ones who will actually go through all this winter after winter) will tell you, of course, that zooming down the slopes is an exhilarating experience. It is not. Don't envy any of them!

They'll tell you, too, as they give the impression that they're relaxing in all those colorful sweaters beside a roaring fire that they feel great. Great is not what they feel at all. It's relief. They're relieved to get those boots off and find they can actually move their toes again. They're relieved that it's all over for another day. As the comic said, it's lovely when you stop.

Now I (mercifully) wasn't exposed to the sport of skiing as a child. My children are getting the chance to learn early and at ages seven, nine and 11 they're lapping it up. They leap eagerly on to the chairlifts (never fearing they'll fall off or be tipped out) and come flying even more fearlessly down the slippery slopes.

They are not afraid of going out of control and into a giant somersault thus breaking every bone in their body. I am. And I suspect that is the main thing keeping me from being a skier.

That and the fact I haven't the slightest idea of what I'm doing. And don't say take lessons because I tried that and couldn't do what the young lady instructor told me to do.

And so I come down the hills so gingerly doing the snowplow almost the whole way (because if you don't the things run away with you) that by evening I'm walking around like a pigeon-toed cowboy.

At the Island's Forbidden Plateau it took me a long time to graduate from the rope tow (which by the end of the day has wrenched your arms from their sockets) to the T-bar.

This is so called because there is a T-shaped thing which is supposed to slide behind you and drag you gently on your skis up the hill. It doesn't, of course. It knocks you flying.

"Don't sit on the T-bar," a sign tells you but your first reaction when something clips you under the buttocks is to take a seat. That's what I did, crashing to the ground while my larger friend travelling with me shot skyward and we both ended up being dragged feet-first for about 20 metres.

Being petrified of heights, I didn't dare try a chair ride until we went for a skiing holiday last week to Washington's Crystal Mountain.

The chairs swing high and the alpine scenery is unbelievably beautiful — when you can bear to look — and you see the maddest things. High on a post just before you swing out over one of the deepest ravines is a sign saying 'No jumping off the chairs. Violators will lose skiing privileges.'

You'd be very lucky if that's all you lost and who the hell would jump off a chair anyway? I had enough trouble just sliding down the ramp at the end of each ride without crashing into somebody.

For three of the days we were there, soldiers of the U.S. Army were training in the snow, uniforms and all. That made me feel good not because I'm pro-military but because here obviously were some other non-skiers. Just like me they let go of the rope tows, hollered 'Look out below!' and ended in a crumpled heap at the bottom.

Well, what do you think of skiing? I asked one young soldier later in the store.

"Painful," he said. "But what I can't understand," he added shaking his head, "is how you people can PAY to do it."

I didn't like to tell him that I couldn't understand it either . . .

Shortage of Space Shadows Sundance

A space shortage rather than a surplus is the biggest problem faced by the Sundance school, one of six eyed by the school board for possible closure.

Sundance has a small flexible program established in 1973 as an alternative to the regular elementary school system. Enrolment is stable at a yearly average of 120 pupils, but the school, the former Quadra Primary, has no room to expand.

At a public hearing Tuesday night, the million dollar question was how and where to expand the program.

Six schools have been singled out for possible closure, space reduction or program shuffling next fall but Sundance is the only one not faced with declining enrolment, district planner Evan Oakley told the group.

It has no gymnasium, a tiny playing field and a shortage of office, staff, storage and medical space.

The staff washroom doubles as a medical facility, principal Donna Woolliams said.

Woolliams explained that grade structures do not exist at Sundance, students progress at their own rate and parent participation in all areas is encouraged.

Oakley said Sundance costs 14.6 cents per square foot per month to run, two cents higher than the district average.

He said trustees can leave the school as it is, add portables at a cost of $6,000 each, renovate to the tune of $270,000 or close the school and move the program.

The first and second options are not satisfactory to parents and teachers, who would like to expand the program to a maximum 200 students.

The school is already inadequate on its 1.2 acre site and couldn't accommodate portables, which would rob it of valuable play areas, they said at the meeting.

Ministry of education approval for the third proposal would be almost impossible to obtain, according to school superintendent Allan Stables.

And the fourth option is unlikely at this point because there's nowhere to put the program.

The school board today announced it has cancelled its April 11 decision-making public meeting on school closures and instead will hold meetings April 12 and 13.

Spokesman Bill Stavdal said the meetings will be in the Paul Building media centre, adjacent to the school board offices and will start at 7:30 p.m.

No Leads In Reid Stabbing

A spokesman said today despite the posting of $3,000 rewards police have received no new information on the case.

"We've had no phone calls and we're getting nothing from the kids," the spokesman said.

Saanich Sharply Split On Subdivision Sizes

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Saanich aldermen were presented Tuesday night with two directly conflicting requests concerning the permissible minimum size of rural subdivisions.

Contractor Nick Liberto submitted a 140-name petition to the planning committee, asking that the present five-acre minimum in the Hector-Liberto-Ivor area be reduced to two acres.

And municipal planner Gil Laurenson submitted a separate report, strongly urging that the subdivision minimum in the rural area outside the urban containment boundary be doubled to 10 acres.

Laurenson indicated to the committee there is some urgency in discussing the matter due to the "really alarming" rate of building activity in outlying rural areas in recent months.

But the committee chairman, Mayor Mel Couvelier, urged aldermen to table both matters.

By the time Laurenson's report came up for discussion Liberto had already left the meeting informed that his petition would be tabled, and Couvelier said in fairness to him the planner's request should also be held over.

In Liberto's case, the delaying action was taken so that some aldermen unfamiliar with the area in question could accept his invitation to "walk over" it and assess the validity of the petitioners' arguments.

Among these were the claim that reducing the permissible lot size would "create a better economic housing environment, and make a smaller acreage available to those who cannot afford five acres."

But the fact-finding walk may accomplish little besides aldermanic exercise. At least three committee members — Ald. Howard Sturrock, Ald. Robert Cameron and Ald. Ian Cass — said somewhat ominously that they know already how they will vote on the matter.

In his report, the planner expressed concern that increasing subdivision activity in the rural areas is eroding council's policy of urban containment.

"Scattered subdivision, even with a minimum of five acres, will cost the municipality additional dollars for police and fire protection, costs that are somewhat hidden," he noted.

"Inevitably, the municipality will be faced with improving roads to serve these subdivisions. Also, the school board will be hit with the increased cost of providing additional classroom space, or by having to expand their bus routes."

Laurenson's report recommends that the subdivision bylaw be amended to increase the subdivision minimum in rural areas from five to 10 acres.

He suggests the five-acre freeze now in effect within the urban containment boundary remain unchanged, except for most of the Blenkinsop Valley which should also be increased to 10 acres.

The planner told committee members that much of the subdividing in outlying areas has been carried on under a section of the Municipal Act nicknamed the "relative clause," whereby a property can be subdivided to provide a home for the owner's relative.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said he is concerned that this method of bypassing subdivision regulations is eroding valuable farmland in Saanich.

WOSK'S HIRING

Wosk's Ltd. has begun hiring 20 employees for its Victoria store which opens in May.

Store manager Gene Archambault said local people will be given preference.

The company is renovating the former Kelly Douglas building at 1810 Store and plans to carry $1.5 million worth of stock.

The company has a lease on the building with an option to buy.

Archambault said the opening will make Wosk's among the two largest furniture stores in the city.

Sidney Ferry to Continue

Washington State transportation commission has agreed to keep some type of ferry service on the Sidney-Anacortes run despite a U.S. federal decision against providing funds to buy a new vessel.

Ralph White, deputy general manager, said today the corporation will put a small vessel on the run indefinitely until a permanent solution can be found.

Most likely, he said, the 100-car ferry Evergreen State will be used, running twice a day starting June 18. At the present time it is running once a day in each direction.

The Sidney-Anacortes ferry had been the 160-car vessel, Kaleetan, but it is being renovated and will be used closer to Seattle to handle commuter traffic.

White said the U.S. government decided against making a grant because it feels ferry service is a Washington State responsibility, including the international run to Sidney.

White said Washington State has reluctantly accepted this decision and is studying alternatives. Funds from the federal U.S. government would have been used to buy the Finnish vessel, the Polar Express, for about $3.5 million.

Among the options, White said, would be to continue service with the Evergreen State or for the state to buy the Polar Express with its own funds.

The state is in the middle of a ferry construction program but the vessels will not be ready for three years. After that time, pressure would be eased and better service might be available on the Sidney-Anacortes run.

White said a decision on these options might be taken at the next meeting of the state transportation commission on April 17.

In any case, the commission will recommend that minimal service be continued to Sidney until a permanent solution can be found.

Pressure Urged Against Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — Groups representing labor unions, churches and students announced support Tuesday for a campaign to withdraw accounts from four Canadian banks making loans to South Africa.

Group spokesman Donald Montgomery, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, said at a press conference it would not be possible to estimate how many millions of dollars would be withdrawn from the four banks named — Royal Bank of Canada, the Toronto-Dominion Bank, Bank of Nova Scotia and the Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Included in the press conference were representatives from the Canadian Labor Congress, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Oxfam-Canada, the Task Force of the Churches and Corporate Responsibility, the Canadian Universities Services Overseas and the National Union of Students.

Grace Hartman of the public employees union said her group was taking its money to credit unions.

While the CLC and CUPE were making immediate withdrawals, CUSO said it was giving the banks two months to change its policy of making loans to South Africa.

Rev. John Zimmerman, representing the churches, said no decision has yet been made by the churches to withdraw accounts.

In Montreal, a spokesman for the Royal Bank of Canada said there was "not a hell of a lot" the bank could do about the campaign.

"All we can do is explain the situation," he said.

The spokesman said the Royal Bank has refused any multi-purpose loans to South Africa or loans for foreign exchange because "the ultimate use of the funds could not be clearly determined."

Fred McNeil, chairman and chief executive officer of the Bank of Montreal, said the move had been expected but he had no idea to what extent union locals and others would go along.

At any rate, added McNeil, "I don't think it would break any of us."

Strike Right For Servants Stressed

OTTAWA (CP) — The organized labor movement will unite to defeat any politicians who support a federal government proposal to restrict bargaining and strike rights of federal public servants, Shirley Carr, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Tuesday.

"We will make it clear that if they don't support the public employees of this country, we are not prepared to support them," she said following a meeting of 30 employee organizations representing three million public servants at all levels of government.

A bill introduced in the Commons March 8 by Treasury Board President Robert Andras would tie public sector wage increases to salaries in the private sector.

Job Plan Labelled Glorified Welfare

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conservative MP James McGrath said Tuesday the Progressive Conservative party's study on unemployment views the federal government's Canada Works program as a form of glorified welfare.

McGrath, who represents the Newfoundland riding of St. John's East, said the one million jobless in Canada need something better. He said many people look upon the program as welfare because they can only get the minimum wage.

The study group members said at a news conference that any recommendations on changing Canada Works would go before party leader Joe Clark before being made public.

Mcgrath, James Gillies (PC—Don Valley) and Bill Clarke (PC—Vancouver Quadra), were visiting the city as part of a tour to form party policy on unemployment, with an eye to the expected 1978 federal election.

"I want to say frankly that this is a pre-election exercise," McGrath said at a residents association meeting.

Workers Protected If Firms Go Bust

OTTAWA (CP) — Revised federal bankruptcy laws giving additional rights to wage earners of bankrupt companies were introduced in the Senate Tuesday.

The government proposals, though watered down from an earlier bill introduced two and a half years ago, still tighten the rules for directors and officers of bankrupt corporations.

Originally, the government had proposed to give employees of a bankrupt company an absolute right to claim up to $2,000 of unpaid wages and benefits. These claims would have priority even over secured creditors.

This proposal has been changed. Wage earners would still have priority over unsecured creditors for up to $2,000 of unpaid wages per employee and for another $500 to cover pension and health and welfare fund contributions. But wage earners would not have priority over secured creditors.

The original proposal ran into a storm of criticism from corporate representatives and the Senate who claimed it would make it harder to raise money for financing corporate activities if wage earners had absolute priority in the event of bankruptcy.

However, the revised bill still would make directors of a bankrupt corporation personally liable for unpaid wages.
